MARTENS BOASTS BIG CORPORATIONS ARE AIDING SOVIET

Asserts Chicago Packers and Others Urge State Department to Grant Recognition.

CHARGE PROMPTLY DENIED

MARTENS WRITES LANSING

Offers to Send Every Undesirable Russian Home—Six Communist Teachers in Schools Here.

The big packing companies of Chicago and some of the largest business and manufacturing houses in the country are aiding Soviet agents here in their effort to obtain a basis for the resumption of trade relations between the United States and the Bolshevist part of Russia, according to Ludwig A. C. Martens, the "Bolshevist Ambassador" to this country, whose activities here are to be reinvestigated this afternoon by the Lusk Committee. All of the concerns mentioned that could be reached last night emphatically denied Martens's assertion.

Martens, who asserts that the Bolshevist agitation here is hampering his campaign for an understanding between this country and Lenin's Government and that his real strength is with the big commercial and industrial interests, made public yesterday a letter to Secretary of State Lansing offering to provide transportation to Russia of all Russians who are in the custody of this Government or are held by this Government to be undesirable.

At the same time, Martens protested against alleged "beatings," which, he asserted, were inflicted on Russians during the Department of Justice raids in this city, and said that the lot of thousands of Russians in the United States today is "exceedingly unhappy." This, he said, was in contrast to the situation in Soviet Russia, where the legal rights of Americans were scrupulously respected.

Martens to Testify Today.

Martens will probably be the star witness today before the Lusk Committee, which is endeavoring to trace the source of the funds of the Communist Party, which is alleged to have spent millions in the past two months in its revolutionary campaign. This campaign has made some progress among public school teachers, according to Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger, who said yesterday that six public school teachers in this city had been found to be members of the Communist Party. One of these will be placed on trial next week and the others will be expelled as fast as the charges against them are proved, according to Superintendent of Schools W. L. Ettinger.

Martens will be charged with a misdemeanor, according to Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger, if he persists in his refusal to give up the correspondence that has passed between him and the Lenin régime. According to Mr. Berger, Martens, by his own statement, is guilty of another crime, because the correspondence by courier between him and Lenine is a violation of the Trading with the Eenemy act, which made it a criminal offense to correspond except by mail with any country, enemy, neutral, or allied, during the war. Instead of having any diplomatic or semi-diplomatic prerogatives, Martens is in the same position as any other Bolshevist agitator, according to the counsel of the Lusk Committee.

Denies Aiding Communists.

Martens denied that he was using any of the funds of the Russian Government to pay the salaries and furnish the expense money used by the Communist Party and other radical organizations in the tremendous efforts they have made in recent months to combine all radicals into one organization to bring about a general strike and mass action for the capture of Government and private property and the erection of a proletariat dictatorship after the Bolshevist model. Martens asserts that he has used all his power to discourage such propaganda among Russians.

According to Martens, instead of carrying on propaganda among the radicals and the proletariat he has addressed most of his efforts to winning to the side of Russia the big business and manufacturing interests of this country, the packers, the United States Steel Corporation, the Standard Oil Company, and other big concerns engaged in international trade. Martens asserted that most of the big business houses of the country were aiding him in his effort to get the Government to recognize the Soviet Government.

Says Packers Favor Recognition.

A. A. Heller, the commercial attaché of the so-called Soviet Embassy, to whom Martens referred reporters for details, said:

"Among the people helping us to get recognition from the State Department are the big Chicago packers, Armour, Swift, Nelson Morris, and Cudahy. We are placing enormous orders for the delivery of food supplies to Russia as soon as this Government allows business relations to be resumed. We have been negotiating for large supplies of condensed milk from the Sheffield Company. Many of the firms with which we have been negotiating have been doing

"Down with America," Cried Berlin Anti-League Crowd

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—As a sequel to the meeting arranged by Dr. Mathias Erzberger, Vice Chancellor and Minister of Finance, Friday night, at which speeches favoring the League of Nations were made and which was broken up by hostile persons, the crowd marched to the Wilhelmplatz and gathered in front of the old American Embassy. Here cries of "Down with Wilson!" and "Down with America!" were raised by the people.

Afterward the mob proceeded to Erzberger's office, in Budapest Street, where the Minister was hooted.

SURROUND I. W. W. FUGITIVES IN CABIN

ANOTHER POSSE SENT OUT

Special Details Ordered to Recover Body of Forester Killed in First Encounter.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 16.—A posse of forty men, composed of former soldiers and loggers, scoured the country today in the vicinity of Hannaford Valley in search of the I. W. W. fugitives who yesterday killed John Haney, one of a posse which was endeavoring to capture the men who had made a stand in Hunter's cabin. A special detail was charged with the recovery of Haney's body, which lay about 100 yards from the cabin where the fugitives were thought to be still lurking. The place is surrounded by dense woods. Every outlet is being guarded.

Captain Lloyd Dysart, local commander of the posse in the district, was directing today's operations.

"We have verified the fact that Haney fell when fired upon from ambush," said Captain Dysart. "A comrade saw him drop at the first volley. Haney, with three other men, had become separated from the main party and they were working their way toward Hunter's cabin where, according to information which we had obtained, Bert Bland, Hansen, alias Loughtenoff, and one other radical were hiding. A volley rang out and Haney, who was ahead, was seen to fall.

"The firing became general and bullets whistled all around our posse, one of whom sprained his ankle and was forced to drag himself away. The other two were unable to continue the fight unaided and withdrew, as they could not locate the source of the firing accurately in the semi-darkness of the woods."

Captain Dysart said that all day would be required for the relief posse to reach the scene of yesterday's battle, and that the proposed new attack on the hidden outlaws would probably not begin before Monday morning.

The reported confession of Lauren Roberts, who gave himself up Friday, and who said he was one of the three men who had fired on the Armistice Day parade from Seminary Hill, was to the effect that his two companions had been Hansen and another man known as "Curly." Roberts's detailed statements have practically identified this man as Bland, Assistant Prosecutor Roberts said today.

Ben L. Moore, Assistant United States District Attorney, and Walter P. Christensen, Assistant Attorney General, spent the day at Chehalis examining alleged I. W. W.'s held for murder in the Centralia tragedy, in an effort to connect the attack with propaganda carried on from Seattle.

TAKE I. W. W. AT THEIR WORD.

Omaha Police Arrest Seventeen in Hall Whence Came Defiance.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 16.—After defying the Omaha police to arrest them and sending the authorities word that they were in their hall waiting for the police, seventeen members of the I. W. W. were arrested this afternoon and put in jail, where they are held without bail.

The raid was conducted by the city police under Chief Eberstein and Federal soldiers under Major E. O. White. When they arrived the I. W. W. were discussing evolution and revolution. Everything in the hall was taken to the police station, and the hall was locked. A large amount of literature in the Russian language was seized.

Several days ago Governor McGelvie ordered every Sheriff in the State to arrest Reds and I. W. W. wherever they could be found. This is the first step toward ridding the State of radicals. The arrests are being made under State laws which are more stringent than the Federal laws.

One of the prisoners, who gave his name as Albert Kersey, Quincy, Ill., was wearing a soldier's uniform. Each of the seventeen men had an I. W. W. card, but no weapon was found. The raiders had orders to shoot if they encountered resistance.

I. W. W. Roundup Near Walla Walla.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Nov. 16.—In a roundup of two railroad construction camps near here, conducted today by county officers and ex-service men, fourteen men were arrested under the criminal syndicalism law. They had I. W. W. cards, it was charged. The posse lined up the others and required them to take the oath of allegiance to the United States.

MEXICO CAUSES JENKINS'S ARREST AS BANDITS' AID

PEONS ARE HIS ACCUSERS

Say They Saw the American with the Bandit and Not Under Any Restraint.

NO PROOF KNOWN HERE

State Department Not Yet Informed of the Arrest, but Will Defend His Rights.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 16, (Associated Press.)—William O. Jenkins, United States Consular Agent at Puebla, was placed under arrest on Saturday and held under surveillance in his home, following charges by officials of Puebla that Jenkins was not abducted by Frederico Cordova, the bandit leader, but was in connivance with him, according to information received here last night.

The arrest of Jenkins came after twelve peons had sworn to statements before a Judge in Puebla, declaring that Jenkins had been seen in company with Cordova, who accomplished his recent abduction from Puebla, under no restraint and in apparent understanding with his alleged captors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—No confirmation of the reported arrest of William O. Jenkins, American Consular Agent at Puebla, on Saturday following charges by Mexican officials at Puebla that he was not really abducted by Frederico Cordova, the bandit leader, but was in connivance with him, has been received by the State Department.

The charge of connivance against Jenkins is an old one, having been freely made in certain quarters in Mexico for the last two weeks, but State Department officials have asserted, and reiterated the statement tonight, that they have so far received not the slightest confirmation of the charge. The Governor of Puebla was recently quoted as not only asserting that Jenkins had been in connivance with the bandit who demanded the ransom, but was represented as even having gone so far as to allege that Jenkins conspired with Cordova with the knowledge of the American Government, a wholly ridiculous allegation.

Jenkins continued to be an American consular agent and as an official of the United States Government he will be accorded the fullest protection in Mexico. If he has actually been arrested on such a charge this Government will see to it that his rights as an American and as an official are in no way denied or abridged.

Jenkins Denounced Charges.

HANFORD, Cal., Nov. 16.—John W. Jenkins, father of William O. Jenkins, made public tonight portions of a letter received from his son at Puebla, under date of Nov. 6, in which the Consular Agent said that he was being accused falsely of connivance with his kidnappers.

Mr. Jenkins declared in this letter that the accusation came from Carranzistas who were acting in behalf of the Mexican Government in its effort "to cover up its failure to afford protection" to American citizens.

The letter recounted details of his capture and said that the ransom demanded by the bandits was paid by him.

"I am coming out of this country just as soon as I can arrange my business affairs," the letter added. He said that citizens of Puebla in general were highly indignant over the accusations made by the Carranzistas.

John W. Jenkins said today that he had no information regarding the reported arrest of his son.

Advices received in Washington on Nov. 7 from Mexico City stated that Consular Agent Jenkins had been cleared of all suspicion of complicity in his kidnapping by Mexican bandits on Oct. 17. The judge investigating the abduction, the dispatches added, took occasion to praise Jenkins as a friend of the Mexican people and a respected member of the community in which he had lived for a number of years.

Jenkins was held for $150,000 ransom and the United States Government, demanding his release, sent what was said to have been the strongest note ever dispatched in a dispute between the two republics. Jenkins was released on Oct. 26, after his personal attorney, Señor Mestre, had settled the ransom demand with Federico Cordova, the bandit leader, by money and promises to pay.

An official statement issued in Washington on the abduction of Jenkins said he would have to effect his own reimbursement of the money paid to the Mexicans who kidnapped him unless he could prove that the Mexican Government was negligent in affording him protection. His standing as an official of the United States Government had no bearing on the matter, it was stated.

Take French Fliers for Devils; Try to Kill Them in India

PARIS, Nov. 16.—A message was received here today from Etienne Polet, the French aviator, who is flying from Paris to Australia and who reached Karachi, India, last week, having completed nearly 4,000 miles of his journey.

"Obliged by motor trouble to stop," says the message, which was dated Karachi. "One day the inhabitants wished to kill us, taking us for devils. Fortunately, we had guns and ammunition."

GLASS UNCERTAIN ON SENATORSHIP

Head of Treasury Comes Here to Consult McAdoo on Resigning Post.

TO CONSULT OTHER FRIENDS

Charles S. Hamlin Is Mentioned as His Successor if He Leaves.

Carter Glass, Secretary of the United States Treasury, arrived here last night from Washington to consult William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, as to whether or not he should accept the position in the United States Senate made vacant by the death of Senator Thomas S. Martin of Virginia.

Secretary Glass stated as he entered the McAdoo home at 863 Park Avenue:

I came here to see my personal and devoted friend, Mr. McAdoo, to ask his advice as to whether I should resign my position as Secretary of the Treasury. As you know, Governor Westmoreland Davis has offered to me the office of Senator from my native State. You know that it is a position which is not to be regarded lightly. I will confer with all my close friends before making my decision.

Secretary Glass was asked if he wouldn't have something definite to say after his conference with Mr. McAdoo. He replied that he must confer with other friends.

When Mr. McAdoo was interviewed at his home prior to the arrival of Secretary Glass he stated that both he and Mr. Glass had become very close friends, as they had been associated when Mr. McAdoo was Secretary of the Treasury. He said it was at the time when Secretary Glass was Chairman of the Congressional Committee on Banking and Currency that their friendship was cemented.

"Is there a possibility, Mr. McAdoo, that you have been offered or will reassume the position of Secretary of the Treasury," he was asked.

He smiled and replied:

"I have moved five times in the last nine years, and I don't think that I will accept another public office."

He said that he regarded Mr. Glass's call as a social one.

Secretary Glass arrived at the McAdoo home at 9:15 o'clock. When he left, at 11 o'clock, he was asked if he had reached any decision.

"It will be two or three days before I will give an answer," he replied.

He returned to Washington shortly before midnight.

Insists Glass Accepted.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 16.—Governor Davis was out of the city tonight and could not be reached for a statement relative to the report last night that Carter Glass had accepted the appointment as Senator to succeed Thomas S. Martin.

Colonel Leroy Hodges, the Governor's aid, however, said: "The Governor's statement given out last night will stand."

The statement, referred to, as given out last night by Colonel Hodges, read:

"Governor Davis authorizes the announcement of the appointment of Hon. Carter Glass of Lynchburg to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the death of Senator Martin, and that Mr. Glass has accepted the appointment."

Hamlin Talked of as Successor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—While there is no definite indication yet of President Wilson's choice of a Secretary of the Treasury to succeed Carter Glass, should he decide to resign, there is reason to believe that serious consideration is being given by the President to the name of Charles Summer Hamlin of Massachusetts, who is a member of the Federal Reserve Board and was its first Governor. He has had much experience in governmental financial matters and there are political considerations favorable to him that appeal to the Administration.

Mr. Hamlin is 58 years old. He was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in the second Administration of President Cleveland and in the early part of the first Administration of President Wilson. He was appointed to the Federal Reserve Board upon its organization in 1914 and is still a member. Mr. Hamlin has been honored by Massachusetts Democrats with nomination for political office on several occasions.

One consideration which would be urged as a reason for the appointment of Mr. Hamlin is the fact that he is from a State that has become a larger factor in national affairs on account of its rejection of radicalism in the recent election.

President Wilson has expressed his satisfaction over the election of Gov-

PARIS, Nov. 16.—The indications are that the Bloc National, the grouping of the non-Socialist parties, won a sweeping victory today in the law-and-order election.

The Bolshevist tendencies of the Socialists appear to have brought them to stinging defeat.

No disorders marked Election Day, although elaborate preparations had been made to prevent rioting.

The Bloc National, organized only a few weeks ago, comprises the Organized Radicals, Democratic Left, Alliance Democratique, and the Progressionists and Federated Republicans, holding in the old Chamber of Deputies 392 seats. They formed a union mainly to combat the Socialists, consisting of the Organized Socialists, Independent Socialists, and Independents, with 150 seats between them.

A third group, which includes Royalists and Clericals, had 60 seats, the Action Liberals having 34, and the Right 26.

PARIS, Nov. 16 (Associated Press.)—The results of the elections thus far in hand indicate victories for ex-Premier Briand, Finance Minister Klotz, and ex-Premier Viviani.

It is reported also that Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber of Deputies, and General Castelnau have won their seats, while the returns indicate the almost certain defeat of M. Colliard, Minister of Labor, and M. Augagneur, former Minister of Marine.

Election day dawned fine and clear, with a moderate temperature. The balloting in Paris, Marseilles and elsewhere was heavy in the early hours.

Three-fifths of the vote had been cast by 1 P. M., the well-to-do districts seeking to counteract the activity of the extremists. No disorders have been reported.

Paris cast an unprecedently heavy vote. For instance, in one ward 27,000 of the 30,000 voters inscribed on the lists had cast their ballots by 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The greatest doubt exists as to when the result of today's elections will be known. It is recalled that when list voting was last used in France, in 1885, when the method was far simpler and involved no complications of quotients to allow proportional representation, Paris did not know how it had voted for a whole week.

In the northern part of the country the voters trudged through snow that reached a depth of eight inches. Paris had the heaviest November fall in seventy-five years, and in the south there had been heavy rains.

In Paris 4,000 workmen spread 2,000 tons of salt on the streets yesterday, and narrow canals were thus created along miles of the curbs, and all transportation was impeded. The polls opened at 8 o'clock and remained open until 6.

President Poincaré, accompanied by Foreign Minister Pichon, voted at 9:45 A. M. Cardinal Amette was at the polls at 8:30, but the booths were not open.

Much difficulty was encountered in providing election inspectors in some of the Paris districts, because four times the usual number were required. The Mayors in some instances were forced to call upon voters at the polling places to make up the necessary number of inspectors.

|---|---|
| Democratic Left | 102 |
| Organized Socialists | 102 |
| Alliance Democratique | 100 |
| Progressivists and Federated Republicans | 54 |
| Action Liberale | 34 |
| Independent Socialists | 30 |
| Right | 26 |
| Independent | 18 |

WILSON AND HITCHCOCK CONFER TODAY; TREATY RATIFICATION VOTE WEDNESDAY; SENATE CHANGES PERTURB THE ALLIES

Wickersham Deplores Senate Reservations, Which in Effect, He Holds, Are Amendments

Speaking at the Forum of Public School 101, last night, George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General of the United States, declared that the reservations adopted by the Senate weakened the treaty, in his opinion. Mr. Wickersham asserted that the reservations were in effect amendments.

The former Attorney General was speaking on the treaty in general, the difficulty of creating it, and its immense importance to the world.

"Unfortunately, the treaty in this country has now taken on a political and partisan aspect," he went on. "No question ever came before our people so important as the treaty, and it should not be made a football of politics. It is my belief that the American people will speak in unmeasured terms of those who would defeat the treaty."

BRITISH SEE LOSS IN SEPARATE PEACE

View the Prospect of Failure of Treaty at Washington with Great Apprehension.

COULD NOT BIND GERMANY

Puzzled Over Senate Situation and Still Hope the President Can Save Treaty.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Reports that President Wilson, as a result of the Senatorial reservations in regard to the League of Nations covenant, will probably abandon the Peace Treaty, of which the covenant is an integral part, and thereby throw upon his opponents the responsibility of making a separate treaty with Germany, have today added to the confusion into which British opinion has been cast by the complexities of the American situation. One thing, however, stands out clearly, that is, the apprehension with which the possibility of so radical a step by the President is viewed.

There is considerable reluctance to believe that such action can become necessary, although it is believed that President Wilson's insistence on incorporating the covenant in the treaty in the earlier stages of the Paris discussions may be the gauge and measure of his determination to have the treaty and covenant ratified as a whole or not at all. Even in quarters where cynical views in regard to the League of Nations have all along been uppermost, the American position causes some forebodings. Although American abstention would not invalidate the treaty of Versailles, it would seriously prejudice it and open up vistas of alarming possibilities. German acquiescence in the terms imposed upon her by the allied and associated powers, grudging as it was, would have still less binding force and moral sanction if the great associated power, the United States, should now dissociate itself from the other signatory powers. The prospect of the United States negotiating a new treaty with the German Government is regarded as essentially destructive of the old treaty, whatever formal measures might be taken to safeguard, in appearances, the conclusions reached at Paris. Consequently, it is not astonishing to find convinced opponents of and disbelievers in the League of Nations hoping that the quarrel between the President and the Senate majority will not come to a chaotic head, as indicated in today's cablegrams from Washington.

"Good, bad, or indifferent as the League of Nations may be," said one who has always taken a skeptical view of the covenant today, "we've got it and we've got to make the best of it or the fat will be in the fire all over again. The League ought never to have been put in the forefront of the treaty as it was. If the League of Nations was necesary or useful it would have developed naturally and logically out of the situation created by peace. Months of valuable time were lost in following what now looks like will o' the wisp. Had the Paris plenipotentiaries devoted their first efforts to making terms with Germany, the result would have been no worse a peace than it is and the world would have been saved possibly half a year's anxiety and unrest. It is the irony of fate that the protagonist of the League is the first to find his ideal coming into contact with hard realities."

That of course represents the more or less individualistic view, and as against it may be set the opinion which is held in some very high quarters here, namely, that had the League not been made the basis on which peace was constructed, it would have been impossible to arrive at anything like lasting peace. The public opinion of the world, according to this view, would never have ratified the treaty of Versailles had not the covenant of the League been there to hold out hopes of better things.

Fervent leaguers are downcast over the difficulties with which the covenant

REED RESERVATION CALLED FATAL

League to Enforce Peace Advises Rejection of Treaty if It Stays.

IT DECLINES ARBITRATION

Held to Mean Repudiation of Twenty Treaties Already in Force with Other Nations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The League to Enforce Peace, of which former President Taft is the head, in a statement issued here tonight, authorized by President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, Chairman of its Executive Committee, urges the flat rejection of the treaty of peace with Germany by the Senate in the event that reservation number 15, providing that the United States declines to submit to arbitration or to the League of Nations "in any way for consideration" questions affecting its honor and vital interests, is adopted by the upper body as a part of the ratifying resolution.

The league takes the attitude that in at least twenty treaties made by the United States with other powers since 1913 the principle of submitting such questions to arbitration is clearly stipulated. If reservation number 15 were to be put in the treaty with Germany, the league maintains, the United States will be in the position of repudiating the policy to which it has already committed itself.

The league's statement was based on a meeting in New York Thursday night, in which Dr. Lowell, former President Taft, ex-Secretary McAdoo, Vance McCormick, Talcott Williams of Columbia University, Herbert S. Houston, publisher of The World's Work; Judge Wadhams, Oscar S. Straus, and William L. Saunders, of the Rand Ingersoll Company, participated. The statement says:

"It was the unanimous decision of the Executive Committee of the league that reservation number 15 or any other designed to express the same idea not only kills the treaty and the League of Nations covenant but that its adoption by a majority of the Senate for incorporation in the ratifying resolution would do incalculable harm to the cause of world peace.

"In the discussion at the meeting which preceded the unanimous action it was pointed out by the several speakers that the adoption of this reservation would reverse the peace policy of the United States and send America to the rear of the line of progress toward the judicial settlement of international disputes. By adopting the reservation the Senate would repudiate its own former action, by which it ratified the Bryan treaties for the advancement of peace.

"In 1913 Secretary of State Bryan proposed to the powers that in addition to existing arbitration treaties there be negotiated a series of agreements providing that 'all disputes, of every nature whatsoever, which diplomacy shall fail to adjust, shall be submitted for investigation and report to an international commission * * * and they agree not to declare war or begin hostilities during such investigation and report.'

"Twenty treaties are in force between the United States and other countries containing that provision. The Senate's action upon them began Aug. 13, 1914, and every Senator now and then a member of that body will repudiate his acceptance of those treaties, five years ago if he should vote for the 15th reservation.

"The investigation plan of settling disputes not suitable for arbitration was adopted as one of the four cardinal principles of the League to Enforce Peace when it was organized in 1915, and it was incorporated into the covenant of the League of Nations in these words: 'The members of the league agree that, if there shall arise between them any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, they will submit the matter either to arbitration or to inquiry by the council, and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the report by the council.'

"The plan for the peaceful settlement of international disputes in the League of Nations is American to the core, American in theory, American in origin.

"It is the view of the Executive Committee of the League to Enforce Peace, expressed by unanimous vote, that no Senator of the United States who votes for the 15th reservation is representing the sentiment of the great majority of the American people and that if the final issue in the Senate is between ratifying or not ratifying the treaty with such a reservation the treaty should be not ratified, and the responsibility for failure to ratify will rest upon those Senators who vote to incorporate this reservation in the ratifying resolution."

WILSON UNLIKELY TO YIELD

Minority Leader Predicts He Will Urge Rejection by Democrats.

HOPES FOR A COMPROMISE

But Lodge Insists Support of Ratification Will Alone Save the Treaty.

REED CLAUSE FIGHT TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Will the Administration Democrats in the Senate vote to reject the resolution of ratification of the treaty with Germany with the majority reservations embodied in it and in doing so run the risk of throttling the treaty?

That was the question uppermost in the minds of Senate leaders tonight as the deliberation on the Versailles treaty tomorrow approaches the final stage. The answer to it will not be definitely known, apparently, until Wednesday, when vote on the ratifying resolution is scheduled to come.

Senator Hitchcock, leader of the minority forces, said tonight that he would confer with President Wilson at the White House tomorrow to lay the treaty situation before him. He expects the President will urge that the Administration Democrats vote to defeat the Lodge resolution and rely upon the chance of later reaching a compromise with middle-ground Senators among the Republicans.

The Nebraskan thought, he said, that with thirteen drastic reservations already adopted by the Senate the President would feel impelled to advise the abrupt rejection of the Lodge resolution. But Mr. Hitchcock declined to predict how many Senators he thought might follow such advice.

Mr. Hitchcock was aware, he admitted, of reports at the Capitol that, when it came to final vote on the Lodge resolution, a number of the Administration Senators would balk at taking an attitude which might mean the rejection of the treaty with slight hope of being able to resuscitate it. He felt reluctant, he said, to speak for the bulk of Democratic Senators as to their attitude, but added that he did not see how any of the "treaty's friends" could consistently vote to put the Lodge resolution through.

Apparently, Mr. Hitchcock has something more than a slim hope of being able to effect a compromise with the middle-ground Senators who have stolidly supported the Lodge reservation, in the event that the Administration forces vote the Lodge resolution down. Whether he has had any assurances of support from the ranks of the middle-grounders the Senator would not say.

Hitchcock Looks for Compromise.

"I feel that there are enough Senators on both sides, who want the treaty saved, to form the basis of a compromise," said Mr. Hitchcock tonight. "It seems impossible that they cannot reach an agreement. If the Lodge resolution is voted down and the minority resolution later rejected, then the time will be propitious for such a compromise, and I cannot allow myself to believe that it cannot be effected."

Mr. Hitchcock's apparent confidence of ultimate agreement, however, is not shared by Senators on the Republican side of the fight over the treaty. Senator Lodge insists that no compromise can be reached and that the only way for the Democrats to avoid "killing" the treaty is to vote for the majority resolution, with its reservations. The time for compromise, Mr. Lodge says, long since disappeared.

Leaders among the middle-ground Senators, who did not want their names used, said today that it looked very much as though the treaty would be defeated, and that attempts to revive it would fail. One of these Senators, who in the early days of the battle on the treaty endeavored to bring about a compromise between the so-called "mild reservationists" and the Administration forces, said that the latter declined to listen to any efforts at agreement, and that, in consequence, the middle-grounders were forced to do what they could with the Lodge group.

"It is regrettable that compromise was not reached," said the Senator. "If the Democrats had yielded, the treaty would have been saved the likelihood of defeat at the hands of the Senate. The middle-ground Senators found themselves obliged to commit themselves to the Lodge program, after concessions were made by the radicals, and they now are unable to break away."

That the Administration forces could manoeuvre any compromise on mild reservations that would command a two-thirds vote of the Senate was declared by several of the middle-ground Senators tonight to be unlikely. The middle-grounders, these Senators said, would probably vote to sustain Vice President Marshall in any ruling that would give the Administration forces an opportunity to obtain a vote on their own substitute resolution of ratification, if the Lodge resolution were voted down, but there was nothing to indicate, they said, that these same middlegrounders would go so far as to vote for the minority resolution.

The trend of talk at the Capitol tonight all tends to confirm the impression that has gained ground in the last week that the Lodge resolution will be voted down by the Administration forces, aided by the irreconcilables among the Republicans, and, after that, the treaty, failing a two-thirds vote for the minority substitute, will remain inert in the Senate unless withdrawn by the President.

The Administration forces, it was estimated tonight, could not count upon more than forty-two of the forty-seven Democratic Senators to vote for a substitute resolution. If they were able to command the support of ten middle-ground Senators, which is the extreme number they might depend upon in the event that a compromise were accomplished, it is figured the minority ratifying resolution would have only 52 votes, or 14 less than enough to adopt it.

This prophecy of the possible support for a minority substitute resolution was based upon the prospect of the Administration forces being able to impress the middle-grounders with the advisability of uniting on a program that would save the treaty. No middle-ground Senator, however, was willing to admit tonight that he would go with the Democrats once they voted to reject the Lodge resolution. Their support of a compromise, therefore, it was admitted, must be regarded only as tentative.

Fight Over Fifteenth Reservation.

A hard fight will come up in the Senate tomorrow over the fifteenth of the majority reservations, drafted at the instance of Senator Reed of Missouri, by which the United States would decline to submit for arbitration or consideration of the League of Nations any questions involving the "honor and vital interests" of this country. This reservation reads as follows:

"The United States reserves to itself exclusively the right to decide what questions affect its honor or its vital interests and declares that such questions are not under this treaty to be submitted in any way either to arbitration or to the consideration of the Council of the Assembly of the League of Nations or any agency thereof, or to the decision or arbitration of any other power."

If this reservation were adopted, Administration Senators argue, it would mean that a policy established by the United States six years ago, and written into a score of treaties, would be repudiated. Not only that, they say, but the reservation would leave the United States free to lift almost any question not embraced in the reservations already adopted from the jurisdiction of the League of Nations.

While the committee reservations on Article X. touching on the guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity of nations in the League on purely domestic questions, such as tariff and immigration and on Shantung, already adopted, are regarded by the Administration forces as knifing the treaty, they consider the fifteenth equally "deadly."

Senator Lodge makes no prophecy as to Reservation 15. The vote on it is expected to be close. It was not originally a part of the Foreign Relations Committee majority's program and is opposed by several of the "mild reservationists" who accepted the remainder of the reservations.

The other reservation remaining of the majority's list, under which the United States declines to participate in the disposition of the German overseas colonies, will also be voted on tomorrow.

With these two reservations out of the way, the Senate will have before it some fifty substitute reservations, some of which will be voted on tomorrow or Tuesday, the remainder, constituting the minority's program, to come up after the Lodge resolution is voted on. In the meantime the Lodge resolution will be moved by Senator Lodge, and, under the rules, will lay over for two days before coming to final vote.

In the time intervening before the vote on the Lodge resolution, Senator Hitchcock will hold a conference of Democratic "friends of the treaty" at which the definite course of the minority will be mapped out. The conclusion reached by this conference will reflect the attitude of the President as to what to do with the Lodge resolution.

Mr. Hitchcock explained tonight that, while the conference on the treaty would be participated in by "friends of the treaty," it would be confined to Democratic supporters. A false impression had got around, he said, that the Administration forces would invite middle-ground Republican Senators to the conference. Any efforts that would be made with the Republican Senators, he explained, would come after the Lodge resolution had been voted upon.

ASSAILS ARTICLE XIII.

G. H. Payne Proposes Association to Support Reservation Senators.

A call for "moral support of the Senators who have been fighting for reservations to the treaty of peace" was sent out yesterday by George Henry Payne.

His statement said an association to further this aim was proposed, with the following officers: President, Richard M. Hurd; Vice President, L. F. Loree; Treasurer, J. S. Bache; Secretary, Mr. Payne.

"The great victory in the Senate on Saturday must not lead those who have been alive to the seriousness of the situation to assume that the fight is all over," says the statement. "Some of the most important of the reservations are yet to come, and there is none more necessary than the one referring to Article 13 of the treaty itself.

"This article, Thirteen, is internationalism and Bolshevism gone mad. It practically substitutes for the Governments of the world a labor supergovernment, in which Britain will have twenty-four votes to our four. It legalizes and authorizes in time of peace an economic boycott, the far-reaching effects of which are impossible to conceive.

"It is important that the reservations drafted for the purpose of freeing us from this Bolshevist program be passed."

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Nov. 16.—Bolivia has ratified the Peace Treaty of Versailles.

DESERTER FOUND STARVING.

Shell-Shock Victim Hid to Avoid Punishment.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 16.—Investigation of a story told by children of hearing groans under a bungalow at the Hampton Roads Naval Base today disclosed Harry J. Harley of Philadelphia, a third-class naval fireman, who had been missing for two months, and was on the verge of starvation.

When the man was dragged out and hurried to a hospital he was barely alive, but physicians said tonight he might recover. He weighed sixty-one pounds, which was 100 pounds less than when he enlisted last May.

Harley, who had served in the army in France, was suffering from shell-shock; and, apprehensive of punishment when he overstayed his leave, he took refuge, officials said, under the building. A pile of half burned cigarettes were found near the place where he had slept. Officers at the post said he probably had been supplied by a comrade with food for a time, and later, being unable to crawl, remained in hiding without food or water until the groans resulted in his rescue.

Harley was officially rated a deserter on Oct. 22.

Arrest Another Trenton Radical.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 16.—The arrest of an alleged "Red" here was made late last night when Samuel Baranowsky, a Russian, residing at 151 Houghton Avenue, was taken by Federal officials. Baranowsky was employed at the Trenton Rubber Manufactory and is alleged to have circulated literature among his fellow-workmen. Joseph Pinto, recently arrested because he had suspicious literature in his possession, has been released.

OWNERS WILL FIGHT SEIZURE OF MINES

EXECUTIVE IS ASSAILED

Operator Says He Used Military Power to Socialize Private Property for the State.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 16.—Directors of the Washburn Lignite Coal Company, whose property at Wilton, N. D., was the first taken over by the State of North Dakota, when Governor Lynn J. Frazier declared martial law, met today to discuss methods of regaining control of their mines.

"We are determined to fight the seizure to the end," said W. D. Washburn, a director, tonight. The case will be taken to the Federal courts, if necessary, Mr. Washburn said. Persons purchasing coal from the State of North Dakota, which has been taken from the Wilton mines, may have to pay the company once more for it, he added. The conference will be continued tomorrow.

Denounces Mines' Seizure.

The seizure of the North Dakota collieries by Governor Lynn J. Frazier of that State, and his announced intention to operate them for the State, allowing the companies from 10 to 25 cents royalty a ton, was described here yesterday by Major Stanley Washburn, Vice President of the Washburn Coal Company, whose mines were taken over, as an unprecedented seizure of private property and a radical attempt to socialize private industry for the benefit of the State.

Governor Frazier took forcible possession of the mines by means of the State militia, after proclaiming martial law, acting twenty-four hours after the Federal Courts had enjoined the strike and only a few hours before the order calling off the strike had reached the North Dakota coal fields.

Previously, Mr. Washburn said, the Governor had tried to induce the operators to sign an agreement whereby they would increase the miners' wages 60 per cent. and would pay the sum accruing under this increase directly into the treasury of the United Mine Workers, which was preparing for the country-wide strike while the Governor was trying to swell their war chest.

The Governor, who was elected on the platform of the Nonpartisan League, so far as could be learned, has intimated no intention to restore the mines to their owners or to abate the state of martial law.

The sequence of events which makes the North Dakota situation a unique example of State interference with private industry was as follows:

Says Governor Aided Miners.

Early in October the North Dakota interests telegraphed to Acting President Lewis of the United Mine Workers, asking whether the strike, if called would affect the lignite mines in that State. Lewis is understood to have replied that the lignite miners would be advised to continue at work if they had an agreement. Such an agreement, running until September, 1920, was in force.

Subsequently, Governor Frazier called a conference of operators at which there was present to represent the miners, Henry Brennan, President of District No. 27, of the United Mine Workers. The Governor said he did not propose to have mining stopped in the State, and requested all the operators to sign an agreement to which Brennan was willing to subscribe his name and which read:

"This memorandum of agreement made in duplicate in the State of North Dakota between the members of the United Mine Workers of America operating in North Dakota through the President of District No. 27, Henry Brennan, and the undersigned coal mine operators of North Dakota, witnesseth that:

"Whereas, In view of the conditions that now exist throughout the country in the coal industry and taking into consideration the fact that the State of North Dakota, to a great extent, depends upon the fuel produced in the mines within its borders, and that the nature of this fuel is such that it is practically impossible to store the same for future use, thus creating a condition that does not exist in any other State; and,

"Whereas, The Governor of the State of North Dakota, the Hon. Lynn Frazier, has used his good offices in bringing about an agreement between the miners and the mine owners of the State with a view to the continuance of the operation of the mines in said State, in order that conditions prevailing elsewhere throughout the United States should not obtain in the State of North Dakota.

Urged Granting 60 Per Cent. Rise.

"Now, therefore, it is mutually agreed by and between the parties hereto as follows:

"Article I.—That the miners shall continue to work under the following stipulations of increases, with the understanding that the same shall apply until negotiations have been concluded in what is known as the Central Competitive Field, comprising the States of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, and Western Pennsylvania.

"Article II.—That an increase of 60 per cent. is to be applicable to the present tonnage rate and day wages, as set forth in the different agreements formerly entered into in the State of North Dakota between the United Mine Workers of America of District 27 and the various coal companies on the basis of $5 maximum.

"Article III.—That no coal shall be shipped outside of the State during the terms of this agreement.

"Article IV.—That increases provided for above shall be applied to the miners' pay, but shall be deducted in the same manner as initiation fees and assessments are now collected by the different companies, and shall be forwarded to the secretary and treasurer of District 27, United Mine Workers of America."

Major Washburn said that one or two operators acquiesced in this proposal, which would have resulted in enriching the union treasury in preparation for the then approaching country-wide strike. The operators, he said, consulted with United States District Attorney Hildreth at Fargo, and were advised by him not to sign. All then refused to sign.

Mines Seized by Militia.

A week ago last Saturday Brennan called out the miners in the district. The injunction was issued in Chicago the following Tuesday and, a few hours before word of it was received, the Governor proclaimed martial law, directed the militia to seize and operate the coal mines, and called upon the operators to give the State the benefit of their skill and experience in running them.

The next day the militia began taking over mines, though in the meantime orders calling off the strike had been received in the district, according to Major Washburn. The operating head of his own company telegraphed East for instructions, and was directed not to surrender the mine, and not to aid in its operation, but to surrender control of the company's real and personal property, including books and papers, only if the State actually exhibited force.

Subsequently a telegram from the operating head advised that the militia actually had appeared to seize the mine and that he had surrendered the property when such action became necessary to avoid a breach of the peace.

Yesterday, Major Washburn was informed, the State actually began operating the property, the Governor meantime having announced his intention of paying the owners a royalty. It is understood the Governor proposes paying any balance in profit to the State itself.

INDUSTRIAL ARMISTICE FOR A YEAR PROPOSED

American Mining Congress Delegates Also Urge Government to Curb Radicalism.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 16.—A twelve-month industrial armistice to settle labor unrest was advocated tonight by delegates to the twenty-second annual convention of the American Mining Congress, which opens here tomorrow. Drastic action by the Government to rid the country of radicalism was urged.

More harmonious relations between capital and labor must be brought about immediately to check the spread of radicalism, the delegates emphasized.

"At a time when the country needs most of all maximum production," asserted Bulkeley Wells of Denver, President of the congress, "attempts are being made to close down the steel mills and other essential industries, and to stop production of bituminous coal. If organized labor expects to be a ruling power in industry, it must respect contracts which it entered voluntarily.

"Radicalism must be wiped out by drastic action on the part of the National Government in co-operation with the various State Governments. An industrial armistice of one year, I believe, would assist materially in allaying the unrest."

FIGHTS ANTI-STRIKE LAW.

Boston Central Union Joins Contest Over State Measure.

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—The Boston Central Labor Union by unanimous vote today authorized the appointment of a special committee to co-operate with representatives of the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor, during the special session of the Legislature that will be convened on Tuesday, in an endeavor to defeat anti-strike legislation. A law to prohibit strikes on street railways under public management has been recommended by a special Legislative Commission.

By direction of William D. Mahon, International President, electric railway employes will assist in the effort to defeat the recommendation.

Frank H. McCarthy, New England Organizer of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement tonight characterized the anti-strike program as "part and parcel of a national campaign that is being tried out in street railway and other lines of industry."

WOULD LEAVE REDS ALONE.

Well-Known Actress Calls Lusk Committee Action "Silly Business."

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 16.—Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale, the actress and lecturer, speaking here tonight, characterized the action of the Lusk Legislative Committee in issuing a manifesto against I. W. W. newspapers as "silly business."

"Deportation of these so-called 'Reds' is not going to help matters a bit," she said. "They don't deport people in England. The United States leads the world in that respect."

"If you wouldn't deport these I. W. W.'s and Reds what course would you pursue to rid the country of the radical menace?" she was asked.

"I don't believe, if we would leave these people alone, they would do a bit of harm," she said.

SENATORS TO FRAME A NEW ARMY BILL

FAVORS FORCE OF 300,000

Has Other Ideas on Subject Different from Those of Baker and March.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The Senate Committee on Military Affairs has decided to draft its own army bill, discarding the bills already before it. In drafting the bill, the Senate Committee will be assisted by Colonel John McA. Palmer, of the General Staff, who is known to be opposed to many provisions of the Baker-March bill.

Colonel Palmer was a recent witness before the committee and so impressed the members that they decided to ask Secretary Baker to assign Colonel Palmer to duty with the committee. Secretary Baker informed Senator Wadsworth, its Chairman, that he would prefer to assign Major Gen. Frank McIntyre to aid the committee. It is reported that he stated that Colonel Palmer was busy in the War Plans Division of the General Staff.

The committee replied that, while General McIntyre was esteemed by the committee, he was not the officer wanted. So Colonel Palmer was ordered to report to the committee.

Colonel Palmer was before the committee about four weeks ago. In his testimony he stated that the War Plans Division was not consulted in regard to the policy underlying the Baker-March bill, and he went on to say of recommendations made at various times by the War Plans Division:

"I think I can say that these recommendations invariably embodied these ideas: Universal military training, an organized citizen army, and the minimum regular establishment, necessary to carry that policy into effect. These recommendations, in my opinion, are diametrically opposed to the policy outlined in the War Department bill."

Colonel Palmer thought a regular army of 280,000 men ample for the country during peace, this being about half the strength called for by the War Department bill. During his testimony he said:

"The main feature of the military establishment of the United States, in my opinion, should be a trained citizen army organized territorially in divisions, army corps, and field armies, in such a manner as to permit immediate mobilization in the event of emergency.

"In the initial organization of this force the charter members should be those veterans of the great war who volunteer to enter a unit of the citizen army whose territorial allocation includes their place of residence. This force should be perpetuated by universal military training.

"Every young man should undergo military training for not less than six months, and after such training he should enter an organization of the citizen army and should be a member thereof for five years, after which he should pass to the unorganized reserve unless after due qualification he elects further service in the citizen army as an officer or non-commissioned officer.

"All original vacancies in commissioned and non-commissioned officer grades in the organized citizen army should be filled by the appointment of veterans of the war in civil life and by detail from the regular army.

"The six months' training course should be conducted by a thoroughly trained corps of officers and non-commissioned officers detailed or elected from the regular army and supplemented to such extent as may be practicable from citizen officers and non-commissioned officers who voluntarily accept active service for such temporary but sufficient periods as may be necessary.

"With sixteen training centres located with proper reference to the distribution of military population, each such training centre should generate and maintain the personnel for an army corps of two or three divisions. The commander of this army corps, provided with a proper staff, should command the army corps and should be responsible for all military activities within his corps area. In the initial organization of each army corps its component units should be given the designation of previously existing local military units having historic records in former wars, in so far as this can be done without defeating the primary objects of correct military organization and the localization of homogeneous tactical units.

"Whether such a force as that is practicable depends on whether citizen soldiers can be trained to perform the functions demanded of them under that system. I do not think there is any question about the feasibility of doing that if the citizen army is actually organized."

STUDENTS TO PAY BILLS OF JOHNSON'S DOCTOR

London Boys Say Their Action Is to Show Sympathy with "Dry" Organizer.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The students of the various colleges concerned in the "ragging" of William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson, the American Anti-Saloon League organizer, last week, purpose to take up a subscription and pay the expenses of Mr. Johnson for his doctor and nursing.

"This will not be done as a recompense, because he was not injured by a student, but to show practical sympathy with him, although he thoroughly deserved the ragging," said one of the leaders of the demonstration against Mr. Johnson today.

COMMUNISTS CHANGE FRONT

Still Defiant, but Announce They Will Be Less Revolutionary.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Alarmed by the arrest of hundreds of their members within the last ten days, leaders of the Communist Party of America announced today that hereafter the party, as a whole, would pursue less revolutionary tactics to gain their goal of a "dictatorship of the proletariat."

Thousands of cards, it is said, will be mailed within the next few weeks to the members of the party, asking their ideas regarding the future tactics of the organization.

I. E. Ferguson, chief counsel of the organization, declared tonight that arrests would not stop its activities but would increase them.

"For the last three months no radical meetings have been allowed in Cleveland," he said, "but at the same time there has been more Communist literature, pamphlets and proclamations distributed and more Communist agitation carried on in Cleveland than in any other city of the world since that edict went into effect.

"In New York our tactics will be the same as in Cleveland. Arrests of our members will not stop our activities—it simply forces us to new tactics."

Work in the shipping rooms of the national headquarters of the party has been redoubled in the last few days. Thousands of copies of The Communist have been sent through the mails, as have other thousands of booklets, copies of the Communist manifesto, and other publications of the organization.

Nurse Accused of Homicide.

Marion Crutch, a nurse, who rents a room at 542 West 112th Street, was arrested there last night and taken to Knickerbocker Hospital, where she is a prisoner on a charge of homicide. It is charged that the young woman strangled an infant boy to whom she gave birth on Thursday. She told the police that she was formerly a nurse at Camp Gordon.

Spain to Get Houses from America.

MADRID, Nov. 15.—The shortage of dwellings has become so serious in Spain that a society has been organized to import wooden houses from the United States.

ernor Coolidge, who was nominated by the Republicans to succeed himself, and the Administration has placed itself on record as in sympathy with the issue of law and order which Governor Coolidge espoused and as opposed to the principles advocated by Long, his Democratic opponent. It is pointed out that it would be a good political move to appoint Mr. Hamlin to the Cabinet and thus emphasize the President's desire to recognize his sympathy with the majority of the voters of that State in electing as Governor a man who fought his battle for election on the law and order platform.

Foremost among other names mention as possible successors to Secretary Glass, should he resign, is that of Bernard Baruch of New York, former Chairman of the War Industries Board, and one of the advisers of President Wilson at the Peace Conference on economic and financial subjects.

Mr. Baruch declined to allow his name to be considered for appointment as Secretary at the time of William G. McAdoo's resignation. According to those familiar with the circumstances, Mr. Baruch declined to accept the portfolio, mainly because he believed a man of his wealth should not occupy that office. He is credited with taking the stand that it would be embarrassing for President Wilson to have him serve as head of the Government's financial establishment.

Mr. Baruch has been active in financial affairs for many years, and has large interests in various parts of the country. There is no reason to believe that he has changed his attitude toward a possible appointment.

MARTENS BOASTS OF CORPORATION AID

Bolsheviki Offer $200,000,000.

"They are all perfectly satisfied with our ability to pay, and we are in a position to send to this country $200,000,000 in gold, if such an amount is necessary to secure our credit. The purchases that we will make in the few months following the re-establishment of commercial relations between the two countries will amount to a billion or more.

"Among the other firms that we are negotiating with are the American Steel Export Company, the Lehigh Machine Company, the Adrian Knitting Company, the International Harvester Company, the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing Company, the Aluminum Company of America, the American Car and Foundry Export Company, the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, M. C. D. Borden and Sons, the Boston Thread Company, and the Glover Machine Works.

"These are only a few taken at random. We are negotiating with the big boot and shoe manufacturing firms, with tool and machine makers of nearly every description. On the other hand, we are getting inquiries from the big export houses which wish to import from Russia the enormous stocks of hides which are stored there, flax, seeds, furs, bristles, and many other articles, which this country is in great need of."

Says Corporations Seek Trade.

Commercial Agent Heller said that many of the big concerns they were negotiating with had sent letters or representatives to Washington to urge the reopening of trade with Russia. He gave out a letter from the Lehigh Machine Company to President Wilson on Nov. 5, pleading for a change of policy toward Russia. In the letter this company said that it had received an order amounting to $4,500,000 for 1,000 printing presses. The letter continued:

"Germany manufactures printing presses, and before the war shipped printing presses to the United States in competition with American manufacturers.

"It is evident from the present German policy that the Germans desire to secure a friendly standing with the people of Soviet Russia, and that unless we accept this business and open a way toward supplying the needs of this vast country, with its tremendous population and natural resources, both Germany and Japan will get in and get the benefit of a large portion of this trade which should come to the United States.

"We are informed also that English exporters, with their keen business foresight, have already shipped large quantities of goods into the Baltic countries, such as Finland, Esthonia, and Letvia, and have these goods in those countries ready to ship immediately into Russia, the moment the way is opened. England also manufactures printing presses, typesetting machines, as well as other manufactured machines and products, which the Russian people are greatly in need of."

Martens was asked if it was not strange that, according to him, his dealings in this country were mainly with big corporations and industrial interests, which had been destroyed by the Bolsheviki, while he was shunning all connection with the proletariat of the United States.

"This is a curious world," he said. The "Soviet Ambassador" admitted that Lenin himself had addressed Soviet propaganda to the American workingman and to the American soldier, but he said that Lenin did that in his character of a private citizen. He asserted that the Soviet Government had not countenanced Bolshevist propaganda outside of Russia except in the case of Germany, where, he said, Soviet propaganda won the war.

"In behalf of the Government of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic I deem it my duty to protest against such acts.

"A number of affidavits bearing evidence to the fact that the lives and liberties of Russian citizens have been threatened without reasonable ground will be submitted to the State Department in a few days.

"According to reports in the daily press, a number of citizens of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic are being held in custody by United States immigration officers, and it is proposed to deport them to parts of Russia which are under the control of enemies of the Soviet Republic. Having no means to ascertain the truth of such reports, I still deem it my duty to call your attention to the fact that such deportations would mean certain death to those Russian citizens and would constitute a most flagrant breach of all principles of international law.

"Moreover, it is quite unnecessary for the Government of the United States to take the trouble of deporting citizens of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic. My office has received thousands of applications from Russian citizens who desired to return to their homes. They had been driven by the political, economic, and religious oppression of the Czar's Government to seek refuge in the United States, which they believed to be a haven for the oppressed of all nations. They had hoped to make their homes here and to become useful members of the community.

"Now, however, that they are daily insulted in the press and by public officials, too, with intimations that their presence is not wanted in this country, they are only too anxious to leave. But they are prevented from leaving America by the authorities of the United States, who have made it practically impossible for citizens of the Soviet Republic to receive the requisite papers without which they cannot secure transportation.

"I therefore respectfully suggest that the United States Government could be easily relieved of the presence of unwelcome Russian citizens if these citizens of Russia whose lives are becoming unbearable in the United States were permitted to depart. I desire to assure you, Sir, that the Government I have the honor to represent is ready and willing to provide means of transportation from the United States to Soviet Russia for every Russian citizen in this country who desires to return home, or whose presence in this country is undesirable to the Government of the United States."

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 16.—Acting under police permission, ninety Russians met here today and drafted a petition to the United States Government asking that Russians in America desirous of returning home be granted passports. The meeting place was a room raided by police last week in a campaign against Industrial Workers of the World.

DENY MARTENS'S STATEMENT

Packers and Judge Gary Say They Have Had No Dealings with Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 16.—Allegations that Chicago packers had entered into dealings with Ludwig Martens, Bolshevist Ambassador to the United States, were emphatically denied here tonight.

"I have never heard of this man before in my life," declared G. F. Swift, Jr., in charge of the export department of Swift & Co. "Most certainly I am sure that we have never had any dealings with him of any kind."

O. H. Swift, the only other member of the packers, who could be reached here tonight, also denied any knowledge whatever of Martens or his bureau in New York.

Judge Elbert H. Gary said last night that there was no foundation for the statement that the Soviet representatives here had had any dealing with the United States Steel Corporation.

Loton Horton, President of the Sheffield Farms-Slawson Decker Co., said: "I don't know anything about the matter. Our condensed milk supply is sold up between two and three months in advance. If Martens has made inquiries of our firm for condensed milk, I know nothing about it."

TO IGNORE MARTENS'S OFFER.

State Department Will Not Recognize Soviet Representative.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Secretary Lansing was out of town tonight, and State Department officials said they did not know if a letter from Ludwig C. A. K. Martens offering to provide shiproom for all Russians anxious to leave this country had been received.

No attention would be paid any communication from Martens, they said, because this Government had never recognized his claims as Ambassador of the Russian Soviet.

SIX SCHOOL TEACHERS AVOWED COMMUNISTS

Hold Cards in the Party—Charges Prepared Against One of Them.

Six teachers in the public schools of this city have been found, according to Deputy Attorney General Berger, to be possessors of cards in the Communist Party, membership in which is a crime in itself, punishable by years of imprisonment, according to Chief City Magistrate McAdoo's interpretation of the Criminal Anarchy act. Martens was called before the Lusk Committee in its investigation of the sources of the funds of the Communist Party, which had spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in this city in the last two months in its campaign for members, which has been waged even in the city schools.

"There are probably many more teachers who belong to this party, which openly declares its plan to overthrow this Government by force and substitute a proletariat dictatorship," Mr. Berger said. "We have found six already, but we found them by accident. After we had interviewed the first one of these teachers, Superintendent of Schools Ettinger wrote to me asking for an account of the case and for my recommendation whether the teacher should be dismissed. It happened to be a woman, who had asserted that, though a member of the Communist Party, she had never taught radicalism to her pupils. Nevertheless, I recommended her dismissal, because such a person should not be in the schools. Whether they set out deliberately to teach radicalism or not, they are bound to do it by indirection. For instance, if a pupil asks such a teacher what a radical is, she will probably explain that he is a gentle idealist.

"The Communist Party and other radical organizations have made a strenuous effort to gain converts in the teaching profession. While I believe in dismissing teachers who have joined such revolutionary parties as the Communist organization, the Lusk Committee will in all probability recommend to the Legislature increases in the salaries of the teachers because they are underpaid, and by spreading a well-founded sense of injustice among the school teachers we are playing into the hands of the radicals."

Supt. William L. Ettinger said last night that the Corporation Counsel was preparing charges against one teacher who belonged to the Communist Party, and that the trial would be held this week.

The Lusk Committee is at work on a constructive program for attacking Bolshevism by education as well as by force, and is preparing to introduce in the State Legislature at the next session a bill providing for an hour's schooling each day for uneducated foreigners, the hour to come out of their regular working day and the schooling to take place at or near their regular places of employment. The English language and an understanding of American institutions are the subjects proposed for teaching.

BRITISH SEE LOSS IN SEPARATE PEACE

is meeting in Washington. Mr. Balfour's statement at recent League meetings, "If one of us begins to make reservations, the future of the League of Nations is dark indeed; reservations that one great nation makes will be copied inevitably by others; the whole sense of equality of effort will be thrown aside and solidarity will be dissolved," is quoted today as expressing the British Government's view on the position created by the resolutions of the Senate. But the speaker's remarks were presumably not intended to be read apart from their context and should not consequently be regarded as a criticism of the Republican Senators' attitude.

The British Government, THE TIMES correspondent is informed, has expressed no official opinion bearing upon the American domestic controversy. Newspapers, as various extracts already cabled have shown, are more outspoken. The Nation hopes that "Mr. Balfour's strong protest against reservations will be heeded in America." One of the Sunday papers says:

"President Wilson let American citizens into supporting the League and now they are climbing down. One thing is clear, they must be in the League or out of it. If they ever mean to be a real world power, they must take their world duties seriously and shoulder their share of responsibilities with the other great powers. We cannot have them in the League as a kind of country member with no liabilities. To pick and choose is all very well, but if they do that the whole scheme of the League of Nations must be recast."

Another says:

"We are afraid President Wilson is to blame for the impasse. With the best intentions, but with a stubbornness which could not be mistaken, he insisted upon making the League of Nations part of the Peace Treaty, believing thereby to be able to enforce his views on the Senate. He has failed and the results cannot but be serious. It was a fundamental error to mix up the League ideals with an instrument for enforcing the allied terms on Germany."

PREAMBLE THE CHIEF CONCERN OF ALLIES

With That Eliminated They Might Take No Notice of Senate Reservations.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—The hope of England, France, and Italy to have American ratification of the Versailles Treaty deposited with theirs appears now based on the belief that the American Administration will be able to get the Republicans to withdraw the preamble to the reservations, which demands that three allied powers accept the reservations. It is believed that there have been conversations between Washington and European capitals on this subject, and it is further believed that the American peace delegation has recommended to the White House that the Democrats demand this price for agreeing to any ratification resolution containing reservations.

It is the inclination of the Allies, if provision requiring their assent to the reservations be withdrawn, to take no official notice of the reservations. Their diplomats seem convinced that the Republicans are masters of the situation in the Senate to the extent of being able to force some reservations. But they believe they can follow the policy of regarding the reservations as advice from the Senate to the executive branch of the American Government for the purpose of guidance in the enforcement of the treaty and the operation of the international machinery of the League of Nations.

This policy would take the stand that the Allies have no concern with the advice the Senate may choose to give the other branches of the American Government, and that ratification is ratification. They would not go back of the official ratification by the United States.

But if the Democratic Administration cannot kill the Lodge preamble the situation will become difficult. While it would be rash to say that the Allies would under no conditions accept the preamble, it is doubtful, and it is certain that the demand of the American Government that they accept the reservations officially would place America in a very unenviable diplomatic situation. The argument already is being advanced that the American Government, whose representative joined in the refusing to the small powers the right of modifying their acceptance of the peace terms, should not ask the Allies to do for her what she helped to refuse to small nations.

There is a striking tone of assurance in the statements of the allied diplomats that they do not believe they will be asked to take official cognizance of the American Senate reservations. This firmness of belief is backed up by the fact that the Allies still are waiting for American ratification before putting the treaty into effect. Did they believe they would have to take official steps approving American reservations, it is unlikely that they would be holding up the whole European reconstruction program by waiting for United States ratification.

"Blow at France," Says Lanterne.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Discussing the vote of the United States Senate on Article X. of the Peace Treaty, La Lanterne, the Radical Socialist paper, one of the few now being printed, says:

"The blow struck at France by the American Senate vote, if not warded off in some manner or other, can become mortal. It serves no purpose to conceal its gravity."

The paper adds that the United States Senate by its action "saps the foundation of the already too fragile framework of the League."

PRINCE WORSHIPS WITH MOUNTAINEERS

PLAYS GOLF IN AFTERNOON

Attends a Sacred Concert in the Evening—Will Leave for New York Today.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 16.—The modest little wooden church which nestles among the pine trees on the mountainside here probably for the first time in its existence had a capacity congregation today with the double attraction of a Bishop preaching and a royal Prince as one of the worshipers.

When the Prince of Wales entered the edifice every seat, with the exception of those reserved for him and his suite, was occupied. Among the trees outside the church the old fashioned buggies of the mountain folk were tied alongside the luxurious limousines of the resort's social colony.

Little groups of the mountaineers and their families gathered near the church to watch the Prince as he entered and left the building, but with the courtesy for which they are famous there was no attempt to crowd the royal visitor. From a considerable distance they watched silently the young man whose path in life is so very different to their own, and then drove off to their distant farm houses.

The sermon was preached by Bishop William L. Gravatt of West Virginia, who took for his text: "He set his face steadfastly to go to Jerusalem." The substance of the sermon was the necessity of every man, Prince or peasant, to have a purpose in life.

At the close of the service the Prince waited at the door of the church to greet the Bishop, who surprised him by telling him that he had been introduced to him once before in London when the British heir was a boy of seven.

The afternoon was devoted to golf, and on the links the Prince had his second introduction of the day, this time to a British veteran of the war, Private Christopher Nelson of the Lancashire Fusiliers. Private Nelson reminded the Prince that he had fought with him at the capture of Guillemont in the great British offensive on the Somme in the Summer of 1916.

The Prince played his match with Sir Godfrey Thomas, his private secretary, but the main interest was centred on what was announced as the "boob championship" of the United States and Canada, played between General Burstall of the Canadian Army, who is attached to the Prince's staff, and J. M. Nye, chief special agent of the United States State Department. Both claimed to be the worst players on the continent, and Nye won.

This evening the Prince attended a sacred concert in the hotel. The Prince's vacation ends tomorrow, when he leaves for New York. He is scheduled to arrive at the metropolis at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

PROGRAM COMPLETED FOR PRINCE'S WELCOME

City's Reception Committee Will Meet Him Tomorrow—Ceremonies at City Hall.

Rodman Wanamaker, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Reception to Distinguished Guests, announced yesterday that there were a few changes in the itinerary of the Prince of Wales during his coming visit to New York, but that the main features of the program would remain as published in the newspapers on Sunday, Nov. 9. At 10 o'clock tomorrow morning the police boat Patrol will leave Pier A at the Battery with members and guests of the Mayor's Committee for Jersey City, where they will meet the Prince of Wales on his arrival from Washington.

Among those on board will be Rodman Wanamaker, Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plants and Structures; Coleman du Pont, Lieut. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, commander of the Department of the East; Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, commandant of the Third Naval District; Major Gen. David C. Shanks and Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Henry P. Davison, Henry Clews, and Police Commissioner Enright.

The special train is due to arrive at 10:30 A. M. and after an informal reception on the platform in the Jersey City terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad the Prince will embark in the royal motor barge from the battle cruiser Renown, which is painted a deep blue and has the Prince of Wales's feathers painted in white and gold on the bows, and proceed to the Battery, accompanied by his suite and Commissioner Wanamaker. The other members of the Reception Committee and the guests will follow the barge on the Patrol.

After landing at the Battery the Prince will be escorted by Mr. Wanamaker to a limousine decorated with American and British flags. When the committee and guests have taken places in other automobiles the drive to the City Hall via Broadway and Park Row will be taken under the escort of two platoons of mounted and a squad of motorcycle policemen.

On his arrival in the Aldermen's Chamber, where the remainder of the Reception Committee and other guests will be waiting, the Prince will be officially welcomed to New York City by Mayor Hylan and State Secretary Hugo, who will represent Governor Smith. After the official reception the Prince will go as per schedule, to Grant's Tomb, where he will deposit a wreath, and then proceed to West Eighty-sixth Street, where he will review a company of Scotch Scouts who took part in the war. He will then go to the Columbia Yacht Club landing and thence to the Renown, where he will be received with a salute of twenty-one guns, the guard of honor and band being drawn up at the gangway.

After luncheon the Prince will receive a delegation composed of seventy-five persons representing thirty races, to illustrate to the heir to the British throne the important part these peoples play in American life. The delegation will include British, Greeks, Canadians, Italians, Russians, Syrians, Ukrainians, Lettish, French, Swiss, Lithuanians, Japanese, Jugoslavs, Portuguese, Spaniards, and Jews, the latter being represented by Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Samuel C. Lamport, and Louis Marshall. Each member of the party will be presented to the Prince by General Coleman du Pont, Chairman of the Inter-racial Council. After the reception a Bible will be presented to the Prince by Bishop Charles Sumner Burch on behalf of the New York Bible Society. The Bible will bear his coat of arms in gold on the cover and contain an inscription on the inside. The society presented such a Bible to the Prince's grandfather fifty-nine years ago when he visited New York in 1860, and the same dies have been used to print the coat of arms on the present occasion. A medal will be presented by the Numismatic Society.

The Prince will remain on the Renown until 6 o'clock, when he will go ashore to attend a dinner given in his honor by Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Davison at the Waldorf-Astoria. At 9:45 he will be at the Metropolitan Opera House.

A number of friends of the officers and crews visited the British warships Renown and Constance yesterday afternoon via the landing at the foot of West Eighty-sixth Street, the steam pinnaces of the ships coming to shore every hour throughout the day.

Tonight Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, Commandant of the Third Naval District, will entertain the British naval officers at a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore.

ALL SOULS CELEBRATES.

Ex-President Taft and Dr. Eliot Speak at Centenary Services.

Ex-President Taft and Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, were the speakers last night at the concluding service of the centennial celebration of All Souls Unitarian Church, at Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street. The auditorium was crowded to capacity and a great many were unable to obtain standing room.

Dr. Eliot, the first speaker, told the progress of the church in the last hundred years and of the service it had rendered during that period. The Unitarian Church, he said, stood for co-operation, and one of the great lessons of the war, he continued, was co-operative discipline. Another important function of the church, he pointed out, was to promote happiness. The Unitarian Church had influenced to a very large extent, Dr. Eliot said, the change that had come over theologians and the people generally in their belief of what God is. He is no longer pictured as a cruel and harsh God, but a God of mercy, love, tenderness, and justice.

The congregation arose as ex-President Taft was presented. He said the church was as old as Unitarianism in this country and should have a great celebration. Unitarianism is religion, he said. If the world is to progress we must have religion, without it it would be a dismal place. What is religion? he asked. It is responsibility to God—satisfaction for the yearning of immortality in which the inequality and suffering may be equalized and recompensed. Religion was overthrown in the French Revolution, and similarly the Bolsheviki, I. W. W. and the like are trying to drive out religion in the present day. They recognize man as supreme and give no thought to a higher power.

"What we have to fear in this day and generation," Mr. Taft said, "is the indifference to any religion." There has been a reaction revealing the weakness, the defect of human nature, from the high ideals and spirit that carried through the great war. The same is true, he said, of the national spirit, which in all countries is tending to selfishness. That should not discourage us, for the result is what should count. There will be a reaction of the reaction."

to themselves the right to order the closing of wineshops, should the people show signs of excitement.

The Ministerialists placarded the walls of the city with posters on which various warnings are inscribed, such as:

"Voting for the Nationalists means military dictatorship and the unchaining of civil war."

"Voting for the Catholics means a clerical dictatorship and bringing us back to the time of Giordano Bruno, the philosopher, who was burned at the stake by religious intolerance."

"Voting for the Socialists means proletariat dictatorship, which would throw us into barbarism."

The electors are advised to "vote for democracy, which means peace, liberty, order, and work."

The patience and endurance of the police and special troops were taxed by the series of election eve meetings, processions, speeches and demonstrations throughout the city yesterday.

Many of the soldiers, who performed admirable work in preventing or repressing outbreaks of violence, are suffering from severe injuries, the wounded among them being almost as numerous as among the civilians.

Troops were held in readiness today to put down any disorder and carabinieri and police occupied strategic positions throughout the city. Detachments of cavalry patrolled the more dangerous quarters.

Streams from fire hydrants were employed on several occasions to calm the excessive emotions of the crowds and produced excellent results.

In this election, for the first time, Italian Catholics participated in the campaign as a party—the Popular Party—with the approval of the Vatican.

The Italian Chamber of Deputies, as the result of the election of October, 1913, showed these political divisions:

|---|---|
| Constitutionalists | 318 |
| Radicals | 70 |
| Republicans | 16 |
| Socialists | 77 |
| Syndicalists | 3 |
| Catholics | 24 |
| Total | 508 |

BELGIAN SOCIALISTS WIN 22 NEW SEATS

15 of Them from Catholics, Who May Lose Their Majority in Chamber.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 16.—The returns in the general elections up to a late hour tonight show a Socialist gain of twenty-two seats, of which the Catholics lost fifteen and the Liberals seven. There are indications of Socialist progress everywhere. It seems certain that the Catholics will lose their majority in the Chamber.

The polling was considerably hampered by the snow, many trains being delayed thereby. The snow is three feet deep in the province of Luxembourg, and many of the voters in the province of Liége were unable to reach the polling booths.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 15.—Election day in Belgium was ushered in with sunshine after Saturday's blizzard. The first results of the elections in Brussels, Antwerp and Liége showed Catholic losses and Socialist gains. In Antwerp the official Socialist ticket, with Camille Huysmans, Secretary of the Socialist International Bureau, was leading.

For the first time in the Belgian elections "one man, one vote," applies, and the results are eagerly awaited, as a definite change of policy seems almost certain.

Voters to the number of 2,100,000 are registered, but, despite the 309,000 new electors, it is estimated that the number of votes cast in the present contest will be 800,000 less than in the last elections, in 1914, owing to the abolition of plural voting, which favored the Catholics and Liberals in the last House. These two parties are expected to lose from twelve to twenty seats to the Socialists. In addition to the candidates of these and the Christian Democratic party, there are candidates of the Flemish Activists and former followers of the Nationalists.

LABOR GAINS IN ISLE OF MAN.

Win Five of Twenty-four Seats in the House of Keys.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The general elections in the Isle of Man for the House of Keys (Representative Assembly) include for the first time five Labor members. The remaining seats are held by ten Liberals and nine Conservatives.

EXPECT TEST TODAY ON ENDING STRIKE

Meeting of Scale Committee Likely to Indicate the Outlook in the Coal Dispute.

OPERATORS TO MAKE REPLY

Miners Hold Out for Demands—Strengthened by Small Percentage Returning to Work.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The first real test which may determine whether an early agreement is to be reached between the operators and miners of the Central competitive coal fields will come tomorrow, when representatives of the scale committee meet in an endeavor to reach a basis of settlement. The Government will use all its efforts to speed a compromise, and it is not probable that any attempt will be made to force production of coal in the big central union district, at least until there is some clear indication of what may result from the present negotiations.

The operators of the central competitive field were in session at the Washington Hotel until late tonight, working on a statement of their position, which it is understood will be submitted tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, when the scale committee will reconvene. This statement, it is believed, will include interpretations by the operators of certain special propositions made by the miners which would have an effect upon the application of any proposed wage increases.

Both sides to the controversy continue the attitude that an early settlement must be reached because the public interest is involved. The miners have not as yet officially given any statement to the effect that they are prepared to withdraw their demands for the six-hour day, five-day week, and 60 per cent. increase, but it is not felt here that they will endeavor to enforce such demands, and it is said that they were made principally as a basis for trading.

The miners are strongly intrenched because of the fact that the workers in the central competitive field are showing no inclination to return. The Department of Justice, however, has found no justification to proceed against the miners. But the situation cannot hang fire for long, as the country's coal supply is being rapidly depleted.

Officials are awaiting with interest the developments of tomorrow in the hope that there will be a break in the ranks of the striking miners, but there were few indications tonight to justify optimism.

TO WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM WEST VIRGINIA

Those in Southern Mining Fields Will Leave Tomorrow—Governor Hears Nothing of Reds.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Federal troops doing strike duty in the coal mining fields of Southern West Virginia will be withdrawn from the State early Tuesday, it was learned from an authentic source here tonight.

Governor Cornwell announced last week that the troops would be out of the State by Monday, but it is understood that their removal had been delayed by lack of railroad equipment.

No information regarding the withdrawal could be obtained at military headquarters here, but it was learned that the Motor Transport Corps had been busy all day bringing equipment into the city from outlying camps. Soldiers on duty at Beckley, Clothier, and in the Coal River districts were reported to be preparing to withdraw to Charleston tomorrow night.

According to plans announced by Governor Cornwell several days ago, the troops will be brought to Charleston, where they will entrain for Camp Taylor, Ky.

Governor Cornwell said tonight that he had received no reports from the northern counties of the State today regarding the activities of the radicals. He also said he was without information from Thomas, Tucker County, where radicals were scheduled to hold a mass meeting this afternoon to "plan retaliation against Department of Justice agents."

Mine operators and officials of the United Mine Workers of America here expressed confidence that all union mines in the West Virginia coal fields would be operating tomorrow. It was generally agreed, however, that if the miners continued to refuse to go to work there was little hope for the resumption of mine operations for some time.

"There are several things cropping out that have weakened our sincere and earnest attempt to get the men back in the mines," said W. M. Blizzard, President of Sub-District No. 2, United Mine Workers. "We now have a record of sixty miners who have been discharged because of their connection with the strike. The attempt to impose fines has already been mentioned by some companies. Reports also have been made to us of a few companies refusing to take men back."

ONTARIO TAKES OVER ALL COAL STOCKS

Fuel Controller Acts to Protect the Public Against Shortage Due to Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 16.—H. A. Harrington, Provincial Fuel Controller, has ordered the seizure of bituminous coal in transit or storage.

The order forbids any coal dealer, either wholesale or retail, to deliver to any person bituminous coal without first obtaining written consent from the Controller's office. It does not apply to coal now in transit or in storage for the use of public utilities, hospitals, food manufactories, or newspaper publishing plants. Nor does it prevent deliveries of coal to domestic users.

The embargo put into force by the Canadian Trade Commission, which is cooperating with the Dominion Fuel Controller, effectually prevents shipment of coal to the United States without permission, and the order of the Provincial Controller will stop any shipments to other provinces.

Mr. Harrington explained that he did not desire in any way to interfere with as much coal coming into Ontario as possible, but that the steps taken were intended to give every protection to the essential industries.

C. A. Magrath, Federal Fuel Controller, says:

"Canada is advised by Washington that this country will be treated fairly, but as long as the present situation, induced by the recent strike on the bituminous coal fields, remains acute, coal can go only to public utilities and essential industries in actual need. It is therefore useless for Canada to look for coal from the United States under existing conditions unless in absolute need, and it is the United States Administration that must be satisfied on that point."

After pointing out that industries must obtain licenses to get coal, Mr. Magrath says:

"If any evidence of the failure on the part of any industry to put forth every effort to save coal comes to the attention of the Fuel Controller, he will not approve any subsequent application for coal which that industry may file with him."

WEST MENACED BY SHUTDOWN

Coal Shortage Threatens All Industry West of the Mississippi.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Indications in the coal strike situation tonight were that notwithstanding a predicted loosening of the tension in a few States, the seriousness of conditions would not be minimized. In Chicago, where regional coal and railroad representatives were scheduled to meet tomorrow, more stringent conservation of fuel was expected.

T. W. Proctor, regional coal committee Chairman, said tonight that continued nonproduction of coal for another week would likely mean a shutdown of every nonessential industry west of the Mississippi River.

Appeals for coal from Montana, North and South Dakota and the northwest generally have been received by Mr. Proctor.

A committee from Sioux City, Iowa, called upon B. J. Rowe, Chairman of the Central Western Regional Coal Committee, seeking the release of coal for Iowa industry. Mr. Rowe said he felt obliged to decline when he found the Iowa supply as great on the average as elsewhere in the Central West.

KANSAS WAITS ON MINERS.

State Operation Is Not Settled, Says the Governor.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 16.—At the conclusion of an executive conference here today, between Kansas coal mine operators and mine union officials, Governor Henry U. Allen of Kansas, who called the meeting, announced that no decision had been reached as to possible State operation of Kansas mines.

It was said that an action to be taken by State officials would be contingent upon the rejection or adoption of proposals to be submitted tomorrow to the national coal conference in Washington.

Neither the operators nor union officials who attended today's conference would discuss the subjects taken up.

MOB KILLS A NEGRO; HUNTS FOR THREE MORE

Victim Being Hanged When Limb Breaks and He Tries to Escape.

MOBERLY, Mo., Nov. 16.—A negro, one of four said to have beaten and robbed Edward Thompson, a farmer, Thursday night, was lynched here today by a mob of 100 masked men. The negro's three companions escaped after they had been taken from the jail at Macon early today and brought to Moberly secretly. Later they were reported to have been captured and in custody at a point unknown to the mob.

It was reported that farmers have gone to adjacent counties in search of the recaptured blacks. Local authorities said the negroes admitted they were Industrial Workers of the World.

Last night large numbers of farmers congregated on the streets here, and fearing mob violence, Sheriff Owens took the four negroes to Macon County. Learning of this, the mob motored there and demanded that Sheriff Jesse Stampor turn over the negroes to them. The sheriff pleaded with the men, but the jail keys were taken forcibly from him, and the blacks were returned here just before daybreak, clad only in their night clothes.

A large fire had been built in a public park, and sight of it produced a noisy demonstration among the negroes. A rope was placed over the head of one of them and swung over a limb of a tree. The mob pulled and the limb broke. The negro started running as he fell. Four guns flashed and he was killed instantly. At the sound of the shots, the other three escaped.

The negroes are alleged to have beaten Thompson into unconsciousness and robbed him of $12 on the outskirts of Moberly.

POLICEMAN KILLS HIMSELF.

Found Sitting in Fort Greene Park With Bullet Through Heart.

John L. Paweck, 36 years old, of 118½ Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, a member of the Police Department, committed suicide early yesterday morning in Fort Greene Park, Brooklyn. He shot himself through the heart with a revolver. He was found sitting on a bench in the park dead, with a revolver in his hand. He was not in uniform.

It is not known why he ended his life. The police of the Classon Avenue Station state that he was single and that he had no love affairs, and that he seemed to have no cause for worry.

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE REVIEWS STATE GUARD

Inspects 1,400 Members of the 20th Regiment in the Absence of the Governor.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 16.—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the Governor, reviewed 1,400 members of the 20th Regiment, Massachusetts State Guard, here today in the absence of the Governor, who was detained in Boston on official business.

The regiment recently returned from police duty in Boston, and were drilled this afternoon in riot duty and guard mount.

Brig. Gen. J. J. Sullivan also reviewed the troops.

FINDS LABOR LAGGING HERE.

Canadian Commissioner Says Europe Is Athrob with Industry.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 16.—A conference relative to the part Canada is to play in the rehabilitation of the allied countries was held here tonight, between Lloyd Harris, Chairman of the Economic Commission of Canada, who went abroad soon after the signing of the armistice to study conditions for the Dominion; Prime Minister Sir Robert Borden, and Ministers of various Canadian departments.

"Great duty reposes on the North American Continent in the present situation in the countries within the war areas," said Mr. Harris, after the conference. "Both the Dominion of Canada and the United States must immediately adopt a program that will help put these peoples back on their feet and give them a real start in their political life.

"Uninterrupted production is needed to meet the duty now confronting us. Since my return a few days ago I have been amazed at the way the United States is lagging. The labor of the United States is not measuring up to the way European labor is tackling the big job ahead. Abroad there is live industry everywhere apparent, labor is doing its level best to increase productivity, and is going at top-notch speed."

Mr. Harris said that the International Trade Conference recently held in this city under the direction of the United States Chamber of Commerce "was the best move so far taken to get the facts in their proper relation before nations."

Prince of Monaco Visiting Alfonso.

MADRID, Nov. 15.—The Prince of Monaco will arrive here Sunday to attend the Oceanographic Conference. He will be the guest of King Alfonso at the Royal Palace during his stay in Madrid. The Prince will deliver an address at a meeting of the Senate, at which the King will be present.

'BIG SIX' VOTES DOWN ARBITRATION OFFER

BALLOT TAKEN IN SECRET

Session Is Marked by Frequent Charges of Unfair Tactics and Railroad Measures.

After a stormy meeting of more than 3,000 compositors at the Lexington Theatre, in the progress of which charges of unfair tactics and railroaded measures were frequent, Typographical Union No. 6 voted yesterday that those men in the book and job shops should not return to work from the "vacations" which they have been taking in sympathy with the locked-out pressmen and feeders.

The decision was taken by secret ballot, and the final announced at the union headquarters in the World Building at night was 1,549 to 1,096. According to officials of the union, this vote finally disposed of the charges that those men who desired to return to work had been afraid to because of intimidation practiced in the regular open meetings.

When the result of the vote became known the only comment that Leon H. Rouse, President of Big Six, would make was that "it showed conclusively that all the men directly involved were determined to win the demands for which they were fighting." These demands are for the forty-four-hour week and a $14 increase in the weekly wages. The employers have offered a $6 increase and arbitration of the remaining demands, but have sent an ultimatum to the men, refusing further negotiations until they return to work.

In view of the action of Big Six yesterday, it will put the next move up to the employers. It was impossible to get their views on the situation yesterday, but from what has been previously stated, it is probable that they will attempt to bring union compositors to New York from other cities to take the places of the New York men.

The text of the ballot read: "Are you willing to return to work at the increase of $6 per week offered by the employers, in order that your officers may resume negotiations with the Employing Printers' Association?"

Edward Cassidy, Chairman of the Committee of Tellers, stated that both "vacationists" and newspaper compositors, who were not involved in the controversy, voted. A long debate took place on the issue of secrecy, and it was finally carried by a vote of 1,367 to 1,112. When it was announced that the ballots were printed, there were cries from the members that there was an attempt to "railroad" the proposition through, and that everything had been "fixed." The ballots were dropped in a box as the members filed out, each one showing his working card before being allowed to cast his vote.

The meeting of Big Six was the most largely attended as well as the noisiest that the union has held since the matter of "vacations" has been an issue. Besides the 2,700 who filled all the seats in the Lexington Theatre there were fully 500 more standing. For four hours argument flew back and forth. From the first there was manifest a spirit of discontent among the men in the newspaper shops, upon whom falls the burden of the support of the book and job men who are out of work. They have been paying a 10 per cent. assessment.

The proposition of the Executive Committee to return to work was offered in response to an ultimatum sent to the union by William Green, Chairman of the Special Committee, Printers League Section of the Association of Employing Printers, in answer to a request by Leon H. Rouse, President of Big Six, for further conferences with the employers. The letter read in part:

"On Sunday, Oct. 5, 1919, Typographical Union No. 6 passed by a practically unanimous vote the following resolutions:

"'The Executive Committee, after listening to the report of President Rouse on the present controversy between No. 6 and the employing book and job printers, in which the members of the union have peremptorily quit their jobs without sanction of the officers, recommends that the union, in meeting assembled, disavow the action of those members herein referred to and order said members to return to work in their respective chapels.'

"In view of this resolution and the fact that the members of Typographical Union No. 6 have lost control of their organization, the resolution quoted above was not passed in good faith. The committee, therefore, declines to hold further conferences with representatives of Typographical Union No. 6 until the 'vacationists' return to work as evidence of good faith that the union is a responsible body and that their own vote means what it says.

"The committee again repeats, as it has done throughout the whole controversy, the offer of fair arbitration."

George L. Berry, President of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, stated last night that more than two-thirds of the pressmen of the seceding local union had reaffiliated with the international body, and that practically every printing office in the city was operating, not with a full crew of men, but that progress was being made which would assure normal operation in a few days.

"The press feeders and assistants are reaffiliating rapidly," he continued. "Several hundred have already taken out their cards and a strong committee from the seceding union who were formerly officers of the organization have opened up their offices in the Sun Building with a view to getting active co-operation in bringing to a speedy adjustment the feeders' and assistants' branch of the business. John P. Mines, formerly business representative of the old union and now President of the new union, which is affiliated with the international organization, is in active charge. Max Lebos, custodian for the old Franklin Union for a great many years, is assisting Mr. Mines. The remaining committee consists of Joseph Barton, Robert Cahill, and John Dinan.

"The committee is made up of the conservative element of the old union who have constantly fought the policy of direct action and Bolshevism. Included in the committee are overseas men who represent the sentiment of several hundred members of the organization who are opposed to the un-American policy fostered by certain irresponsible leaders of the seceding organization. This committee has already been instrumental in opening up several large offices with their full quota of press feeders and assistants."

At 10 o'clock this morning the "vacationists" will meet in Webster Hall, 119 East Eleventh Street. The executive committee and the chairmen of the various chapels will meet at the same hour at the Big Six headquarters in the World Building.

ATLANTIC AGAIN WRECKED.

Handley-Page Biplane Goes Through Fence at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16.—The giant Handley-Page biplane Atlantic, which left Mineola, N. Y., Friday morning, with about 1,500 pounds of express on an attempted non-stop flight to Chicago, made a forced landing at the North Randall race track late today and was so badly damaged that at least two weeks will be needed for repairs.

The landing was made on the back stretch of the race track. While going about eight miles an hour, the airplane veered from its course and went through the fence. Thirteen feet were torn from each wing as it plowed between the judge's stand and the grand stand. It will be necessary to send to England for new parts.

The express matter was removed at Mount Jewett and forwarded to Chicago by rail.

ASK UNIONS FOR POWER TO CALL RAIL STRIKE

Chicago Labor Federation Supports Machinists in Anti-Strike Legislation Protest.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—The Chicago Federation of Labor today indorsed the action of the International Association of Machinists in calling for a vote "to authorize grand lodge officers to co-operate with other unions in declaring a strike on the railroads of the United States at such time as may be found necessary to protest against anti-strike legislation and to prevent a condition that will establish involuntary servitude."

The action means that the federation calls upon its locals to vote in protest against "anti-strike legislation" and send the returns to their international officers.

The Machinists' Union circular also said:

"This strike vote is to be taken by all local lodges, but is to affect only railroad members of the union unless it becomes necessary to support them by a general strike."

John Fitzpatrick, President of the Federation and Chairman of the general committee in charge of the steel workers' strike, in a speech declared that "the Federal Reserve Bank had to go to the aid of the Steel Corporation or we would have had a financial panic in this country." He also asserted that when W. Z. Foster, secretary of the committee, was prevented from speaking in Johnstown, Pa., recently, "a lot of men armed with revolvers tried to make him sign a paper ordering the men back to work."

James H. Maurer, President of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, another speaker, declared it was his conclusion that "the stage is set to crush the American labor movement."

NEGROES SHOOT POLICEMEN

Four Men Wounded in Fight Following Dice Game.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 16.—As the result of a riot over a crap game here this afternoon, four men, two of them policemen, are suffering from bullet wounds. While the game was in progress some one fired a revolver. John Smith, 18 years old, of 1,024 Mechanic Street, an innocent bystander, was shot in the leg.

Patrolmen George Hill, Maurice Mench and John Cowal gave chase to five negroes who took refuge in a bicycle store owned by Fred Stewart.

The negroes took refuge on the second floor and Patrolman Hill led the way. Stewart was on the top of the stairs, according to the police, and fired at the officers. Mench was hit above the heart, in the abdomen and twice in the arm. Hill was firing all the time and Stewart dropped with a bullet wound in the abdomen. Patrolman Mench may die.

The police took six negroes as prisoners. Charles W. Moore, a negro, defeated candidate for City Council on the Independent ticket at the last election, was also arrested.

Tenement Fire Routs Out Families.

Fire which started in the basement of the five-story tenement at 124 West Twenty-fifth Street early yesterday morning routed twenty-seven families from their homes. The flames ate their way through to the first floor, which is occupied by Isador Jablons, dealer in dress trimmings, and smoke filled the upper hallways. Battalion Chief James Brown sent the men of Engine Company 1 to the rear of the building and up the fire escapes to awaken the persons in the house. Captain James McGuire of Hook and Ladder Company 12 and his men followed. The damage was $5,000.

BROTHERHOODS WILL SEEK FURTHER RISE

To Push Demand for General Increase, Despite Grant to Freight Men.

STRIKE ONLY LAST RESORT

Executives Meet Today in Cleveland to Consider Hines's Offer of $3,000,000 a Month.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Timothy Shea, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, tonight stated that the railroad brotherhoods were prepared to continue their efforts for general increases in pay, although Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration had offered time and one-half for overtime to men in the slow freight service.

Telegrams announcing the receipt of the Director General's decision at the Brotherhoods' headquarters were received today by Mr. Shea and Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Both departed at once for Cleveland for a conference of brotherhood chiefs tomorrow.

"This decision is specifically on the demand of the road service workers for time and one-half for overtime," said Mr. Shea. "The yard men were granted this schedule Jan. 1. If time and one-half is granted the brotherhoods are prepared to renew their fight for general increases along the entire line of railway workers. If the demand is turned down we will continue negotiations providing the Director General leaves a loophole. There will be no strike until our last effort to reach the desired end by arbitration is exhausted.

"Apparently the Government is giving us about $36,000,000 a year in time and one-half pay for overtime and taking away $30,000,000 in arbitraries and special allowances."

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16.—The chief executives of the four railroad brotherhoods, Warren S. Stone of the Engineers, W. G. Lee of the Trainmen, Timothy Shea of the Firemen, and L. E. Shepard of the Conductors, will meet here tomorrow morning to consider the proposition of Director General Hines granting to train service employes in the slow freight service time and a half for overtime, amounting to approximately $3,000,000 a month.

Mr. Lee said the brotherhoods will try to have their answer ready in a week, so that if it is accepted it can go into effect on Dec. 1. Tomorrow's conference will consider the advisability of calling the general Chairmen of the four brotherhoods into a joint conference as soon as possible, probably here or at Chicago, to get the sentiment of the members.

Policeman Wounds Fugitive.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 16.—John Mallory of Camden, N. J., is in the General Hospital with a bullet wound in the lung, received in a pistol fight early this morning between himself and three other men in an automobile, and Patrolman William Burke, who attempted to halt the car when he became suspicious of the men's actions. The other three occupants escaped. The police say they found a kit of burglar's tools in the car, but as yet have made no charge against Mallory.

Here's something to tempt the pen of a Charles Dickens; or an Anatole France, if you would be more modern: Four stores gala-gay with wondrous silk shirts.

But the pencil of a merchant grows blunt and feeble at such a task. It is not given to all of us to transfix a color symphony with a phrase, or limn a loom harmony with a few well chosen words.

So we have arranged the shirts where the greatest possible number of persons will see them; many attractive windowsfull to tell an interesting story of thousands of more shirts inside.

Of course, Empire Silk Shirts are wonderful values at $10.50, $13.50, $15, $16.50 and $18; but the main point is not their comparative inexpensiveness, but how good they are regardless of price.

Riding a horse

in this week's horse show or just in the park on a Sunday morning, one must exhibit that easy-going poise of the saddle-born horseman or horsewoman. But first one must use a little good old horse-sense in the selection of the horse's harness. That means a visit to our Harness Department on the Fifth Floor, where there are dependable saddles, sets of harness 'n everything.

Then the horsewoman

gives a thought to "how she'll look" in the saddle and then—she gives another thought to the same thing! And then, if she wants to be sure she'll be smart later, she'll look at our riding habits. They are tailored along swagger lines. Every detail, every seam, every button-hole is trimly finished—every habit presents snap, chic and trig perfection. And all riding breeches are chamois-lined and reinforced with leather.

A semi-fitted habit

in mannish mixtures, invisible plaids and checks is $27.75.

A riding habit of corduroy has a norfolk coat of narrow wale corduroy. In beaver shades principally. $37.75.

Then there is a habit of Oxford or chevrona with a semi-belted coat, $39.75.

And a collection of exclusive and excellently styled habits in meltons, imported worsteds and tweeds from $49.75 to $89.75.

'DON'T ACCUSE ME,' MRS. WARREN CRIES

Lynbrook Woman, Held as Witness, Says Mrs. Clara Branch Was Like a Mother to Her.

THINK THEY KNOW SLAYER

Police May Make Murder Charge After Inquest Today—Seek Clues in This City.

LYNBROOK, L. I., Nov. 16.—"We feel pretty certain we know the slayer of Mrs. Clara Branch," said County Detective Carman Plant tonight, after a busy day investigating the murder of the woman found dead on her bed Friday night. The detective refused to intimate whether he had in mind a man or a woman. He declined to say when he would make a charge of murder, but he would not deny this might be done after the inquest tomorrow.

Nassau County officials again questioned Mrs. Marie Warren, who, with "Captain" Henry Wright, is being held in $5,000 bail as a material witness in the case, for several hours last night and today. She insisted she knew nothing of the death of Mrs. Branch. She is in the Nassau County jail.

"Please don't accuse me of this awful thing," she said. "Clara was like a mother to me. She gave me money whenever I needed it and was good to me in many other ways. If she could only talk she would tell you I did not kill her."

It developed today that Mrs. Branch, whose skull was crushed and face battered with a hatchet by her slayer, was deaf. Plant made this announcement after it had been called to his attention that robbery might have been the motive in the crime.

"It would not have been necessary for any one to kill her to get her money," he said. "It would have been easy to steal the money without her hearing the burglars."

Plant admitted that another detective had notified him that he had a clue that a person under suspicion had left a sum of money in a certain place in Manhattan. He will confer further with the detective tomorrow morning.

Assistant District Attorney Edwards, who, with District Attorney Weeks, has been working on the case, said that when Mrs. Warren was examined by Mrs. Phineas Seaman, matron at the jail, fresh scratches were noticed on her left shoulder, on both wrists, and on her arms. Mrs. Warren said they were made by "Bess," Mrs. Branch's pet dog, while she was playing with the animal early in the week.

The investigators found an apparent discrepancy in their examination of Mrs. Warren. She said she met Ethel Horechelner on the road in Valley Stream Friday morning, a short time after she left the home of Mrs. Branch, and talked with her. According to Miss Horechelner, she did not meet Mrs. Warren Friday, though she saw her Thursday afternoon.

Plant said a towel, used to clean the hatchet with which Mrs. Branch had been killed, was found under a bed in Mrs. Warren's room. It had been carefully folded, he said.

Mrs. Warren said she knew nothing about the towel. Neither was she able to throw any light on a small amount of heroin which was found in a bottle in Mrs. Branch's room. An analysis will be made of the contents of the stomach of the dead woman by Dr. Herbert Pease of Manhattan.

Detective James D. Martini, who went to New York today, reported by telephone that he could not find Miss Catherine Hayes, or Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hoffman, at 414 Riverside Drive, where Mrs. Warren said she visited Friday and Friday night.

The autopsy, performed last night by Dr. Arthur E. Jaques, assisted by Drs. J. Mansfield Foster and F. W. Shirck, showed that Mrs. Branch had three compound fractures of the skull, two on the right side of the head and one on the left side. The doctors will testify at the inquest, which will be held in the office of Justice of the Peace Edward T. Neu.

Charles Hanson, Bertillon expert of Nassau County, is expected to testify regarding fingerprints found on a doorknob, a counterpane, and other articles in Mrs. Branch's home.

Other witnesses who will testify are John Loeffler, the lumber merchant, whose telephone "Captain" Wright used to give the alarm, and who lives about 500 feet from Miss Branch's home. He reiterated tonight that he had seen a woman closely resembling Mrs. Warren near the Branch house about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, though the description of the clothing worn by that woman does not agree with any owned by Mrs. Warren, so far as the authorities have learned.

John Lawson, mate on "Captain" Wright's boat Commodore, will be asked to tell what time Wright reached his boat and when he left for home. Lawson says it was about 3 o'clock that "Captain" Wright started home, but Wright told the police it was after 4 o'clock, and that he did not reach home until nearly 6 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Duryea, neighbors of Miss Branch, also will appear at the inquest.

Mrs. Adelia Wright, wife of "Captain" Wright, at her home in East Rockaway said she was confident her husband was not implicated in any way in the murder. She admitted that she and her husband agreed to separate three years ago because Mrs. Branch, whom she said she had never seen, to her knowledge.

The loaded revolver which was found under the pillow on Mrs. Branch's bed was owned by Wright, the police said.

"Wright told us he had had his revolver about the house for some time, but that it had not been used in years," said Plant.

It was learned that Mrs. Branch carried about $2,000 in life insurance, but in none of the policies found was a beneficiary named.

Plant said late tonight that Mrs. Warren had made a new explanation for having asked Mrs. Branch for $5. She said yesterday she wanted the money to pay her carfare to Louisville, Ky., where she has relatives. Tonight she said she wanted the money to get out of pawn a diamond ring given to her by a New York man, who, she said, was demanding that she return it to him.

GRAND JURY REOPENS TODAY

New Witnesses and Committee's Report to be Heard.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury, which adjourned on Thursday to enable a committee of its members to examine letters and documents subpoenaed from various city officials and from files in several city departments, will resume today with several new witnesses. It is believed that the report of the committee will present additional information relating to both the transit inquiry and other matters in relation to what the jurymen termed in their letter to Governor Smith the "overshadowing crime."

It is rumored that the work of the jury is hampered by lack of special counsel and other assistants, including accountants and stenographers. Since the jury sought unsuccessfully to replace District Attorney Swann with special counsel, he has withdrawn from any personal initiative in their work, but he has assigned several of his assistants as legal advisers. One of these, Assistant District Attorney J. E. Smith, is said to be aiding in certain police matters.

Mr. Swann had originally asked the jury to investigate information from Mayor Hylan that it appeared that the subway strike was brought about by collusion between employes and officials to get favorable action on the request for increased fares. The jury afterward broadened the inquiry, and ultimately took the entire matter into their own hands, despite the protest of the District Attorney, and appealed to Governor Smith for aid. An attorney recalled yesterday that there had been precedent here and in Albany County for this action by the jury.

CHARGE BIG FRAUDS IN SWISS CONTRACTS

American Captains Sent to Investigate are Arrested—Strong Protest Made to Switzerland.

L. H. WETMORE ACCUSED

Copyright, 1919, by Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—American diplomatic relations are strained and the State Department and the War Department at Washington have opened investigations, through Minister Pleasant Stovall at Berne, following the arrest of two American Captains at Zurich on Nov. 10, and the confiscation of evidence they had dug up, incriminating Swiss business men in defrauding the United States Government out of 4,000,000 francs in bogus army contracts during the war.

Captains Arthur L. Dasher of Macon, Ga., and John H. Kiplinger of Rushville, Ind., were sent to Switzerland in August to investigate fraudulent contracts made between the United States Purchasing Commission, stationed at Berne, and a number of Swiss manufacturers.

Captain Donald McPherson, a Chicago lawyer, headed the purchasing commission, but left the contract letting to Sergeant Lewis H. Wetmore, formerly of New York.

It is alleged that Wetmore became friendly with a Russian Baron, Delen Kchevitch, at Berne, who worked through a decoy named Simon Weisman. Weisman went to Swiss manufacturers and told them that he only could swing the American contracts, and obtained 15 per cent. commission on all the business. Then he turned over the deals to Delen Kchevitch, who put them through by the aid of Wetmore, it is charged.

Wetmore is accused of awarding contracts at higher figures than the bids submitted and dividing the excess with the Baron.

Dr. Max Rudolph, now representing Montgomery Ward in Switzerland, it is alleged, gave Wetmore 75,000 francs to be awarded a contract for 75,000 aeroplane compasses at 5 francs apiece, but instead Wetmore is said to have made the contract price 7 francs a piece.

Another Swiss concern had contracts for 10,000,000 francs' worth of barbed wire cutters, field forges, anvils and electric glass lights which were never manufactured, but received 1,200,000 francs from the United States Government in settlement of their claims.

On Nov. 10 Captains Dasher and Kiplinger had completed their deposition taking when, at 8 o'clock in the morning detectives broke into their rooms at the National Hotel at Zurich, and, menacing them with revolvers, placed them under arrest and marched them through the streets to Police Headquarters.

The two Americans were held, without breakfast or luncheon until midafternoon. They asked that the American Consul at Zurich be notified, and the Swiss authorities refused. The Captains then showed their diplomatic passports, with diplomatic Swiss visas, and also their credentials as Judge Advocates of the United States General Courtmartial appointed by President Wilson himself, and letters from the American legation at Berne signed by Ambassador Pleasant Stovall, but the Zurich police refused even to look at them.

The Chief of the Zurich Police finally agreed to release the captains, but told them he intended to confiscate all their documents.

When released the Americans proceeded immediately to Berne with certain invaluable papers which they had hidden and which the police could not find, and put them in the American Legation safe. Minister Stovall then made a strong protest to the Swiss Foreign Office, demanding an apology and restitution of the papers, but up to last night the Swiss authorities had not even replied to the protest.

'DRY' ENFORCEMENT SATISFIES ROPER

He Expresses Confidence in the Popular Desire to Observe the Law.

ONE OFFICIAL'S TESTIMONY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Daniel C. Roper, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is satisfied with the first two weeks of the record of the enforcement of the Prohibition act. He said today that his confidence "in the desire of the American people to observe the law is being fully justified," and expressed the opinion that the "law-breaking element is small and growing less." Without disclosing the identity of the district, Mr. Roper gave out this extract from a report submitted by an internal revenue collector in one of the most important districts of the country:

"On Oct. 29 I issued a statement appealing to all moral agencies of this district to co-operate with us in the proper administration of the laws. The statement appeared in the press of Oct. 30. A number of saloon keepers of the district immediately surrendered their State licenses and discontinued entirely their retail liquor dealers' business. For a few days after the National Prohibition act became effective, there were, as usual, a number of arrests on account of public intoxication. The chief of police and myself were in agreement that these intoxications were not the result of public sales, but came from private supplies.

"For a great many years this city has maintained what has been commonly known as 'Sunrise Court,' and sometimes 'Morning Court.' The offenders principally tried in this court were persons charged with public intoxication. The business of this court has greatly dwindled since the Prohibition act became effective. Heretofore Sunday was the court's busiest day. Last Sunday there were but five persons arraigned before the court charged with intoxication. The number of such delinquents has become so small that the court has made announcement that this 'morning' or 'sunrise' session will be discontinued.

"The liquor dealers' organizations in the two largest cities of this district have passed resolutions pledging themselves to respect and obey the law. On Nov. 1 I received a telegraph message from a prominent citizen stating that two saloon keepers were selling whisky. We visited their places, but were unable to secure any evidence against them. We were informed that these saloon keepers had been selling whisky, but that the local liquor dealers' association had warned them that the association itself would prosecute if they continued to make sales, and that thereupon sales of spirits were discontinued.

"Rumors reached this office that several illicit stills are operating in this county. We located one, the owner of which was arrested, arraigned, and held to await the action of the Grand Jury.

"The situation in this district may be summarized as follows: The law generally is being obeyed and respected. The press, which has always supported me, is again rendering me every assistance."

DEMANDS OHIO RECOUNT.

Anti-Saloon League of America Disputes the Election Figures.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The Anti-Saloon League of America has asked for a recount of the vote in Ohio on the question of ratifying the prohibition Constitutional amendment "because of the many errors already reported." This announcement was made by Wayne B. Wheeler, attorney for the organization, tonight.

Mr. Wheeler said that on a clear-cut prohibition issue Ohio was dry by over 40,000, while the amendment was defeated by less than 500.

ANARCHISTS' RECORD GIVEN TO SENATE

EXPECTS DECISION SOON

Woman Claims Citizenship from Denaturalized Husband to Whom She Was Illegally Married.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Publication was made today of the reply of Attorney General Palmer to a Senate inquiry asking what steps the Department of Justice had taken toward the deportation of the anarchists, Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman. The reply not only cited the steps that had been taken toward that end, but gave the details of an investigation into their careers, just completed by the department.

It is stated that the cases of Berkman and Emma Goldman are now being reviewed by the Bureau of Immigration, and that a final decision with reference to their deportation is pending. It is believed they will appeal to the courts should the decision be against them.

The report shows that Emma Goldman was born in Russia forty-nine years ago, and arrived in New York from Hamburg in December, 1885. In 1887 she claimed to have married Jacob Kersner at Rochester, N. Y., who subsequently secured naturalization by fraudulent means and as a result of which he was afterwards denaturalized. This fraudulent citizenship now forms her chief argument against her deportation. The Government is prepared to prove that there is no record to be found in Monroe County of her marriage to Kersner, and that the alleged ceremony was performed by a "Shochet," a man who slaughters cattle for "kosher" meat and under the laws of New York is not authorized to perform the marriage ceremony.

Reference to the Goldman woman in the confession of Leon Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, is made as follows:

"Referring to the confession of Czolgosz, it will be noted that Czolgosz stated that he frequented a club in Cleveland at which place he had seen Emma Goldman. He further stated that she talked about government, and said 'she didn't believe in voting and didn't believe in government.' He further stated that she had also made the remark that 'government was tyranny,' and that 'she believed in anarchy.' He further stated that Emma Goldman wrote for a newspaper in Chicago which he frequently read, entitled 'Free Society.'

"Attention is called to the fact that Czolgosz's reason for assassinating President McKinley was that he didn't believe in this form of Government. He stated that the same doctrines opposing this form of Government were enunciated by Emma Goldman in her speeches and writings."

The report states that Matthew Schmidt and David Caplan, who are now serving sentences in the San Quentin Penitentiary, having been convicted of connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building, were both intimates of Emma Goldman and her group.

"The best exposition of the Caplan and Schmidt connection with Emma Goldman," says the report, "is expressed in her own words in the issue of Mother Earth, January, 1916, in which she gives expression to her views of Donald Vose, who obtained her confidence and met Matthew A. Schmidt in her own home. In the issue of Mother Earth, Schmidt and Caplan are pictured as martyrs to their cause.

"An examination of the copy of Mother Earth, July, 1914, gives an illuminating view of the connection of Caron, Berg and Hanson with the Emma Goldman group," says the report. These three men and one other were killed by the premature explosion of a dynamite bomb on July 4, 1914, in the apartment at 1,626 Lexington Avenue, New York. "On page 130 appears an article entitled 'The Lexington Explosion,' and in which the three men referred to are spoken of as 'comrades,'" the report says.

"On page 133 appears a statement in which Alexander Berkman is stated to have announced that he regarded Caron, Berg and Hanson as anarchist martyrs. On page 135 it is stated that the ashes of the three comrades would be delivered to the offices of Mother Earth. It is to be noted that Emma Goldman was the proprietor of The Mother Earth organization at this time, such statement being contained on page one of the issue of Mother Earth for July, 1914."

The report deals with other activities of the woman, describing her own and Berkman's conviction in New York in 1917 for conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the draft law. The latter's attempt to assassinate Henry C. Frick is cited, and there are voluminous references to his various anarchistic writings and utterances.

Both are fighting deportation. That Berkman, who makes no claim to citizenship, will be deported, is considered certain.

IRISH MASS MEETING BOOS ADMIRAL SIMS

SLAP AT AMERICAN LEGION

De Valera Declared to Have Evoked More Enthusiasm Than America's Chief Executive.

About three thousand persons crowded into the Lexington Opera House, while fully as many more filled the adjacent side streets in an effort to attend a mass meeting held last night under the auspices of the United Irish-American Societies of New York, which was called Societies to an announcement, "to protest against the military autocracy of the English Government in Ireland and to protest against any proposed division of Irish soil in two parts. Ex-Justice John W. Goff presided, and the speakers included the Rev. Christopher Dunleavy, Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, Justice Cornelius W. Collins, John Jerome Rooney, and the Rev. James Gratton Mythen.

Declaring that the anarchists and communists were not the worst enemies of the United States, Justice Goff, in accepting the Chairmanship, said that British propagandists, armed with unlimited wealth, constituted one of the most dangerous menaces to the Republic. He asserted that Great Britain was spending hundreds of millions of dollars here to foment and spread propaganda which would be of use to that Government.

Justice Goff said the Irish-Americans were back of the United States in the effort to suppress sedition, but believed that if citizenship was to be one of the tests it should be applied to all alike. An inquiry among business firms would disclose that thousands of Englishmen who were making their livelihood and homes in this country were not citizens, nor ever conemplated renouncing allegiance to England, he added.

Justice Collins devoted much of his address to a condemnation of what he termed "shameful, lying, contemptible English propaganda," a campaign which, he said, had reached its culmination in the effort to show that the Irish in Ireland had been disloyal in the war. He said the recent utterances of Admiral Sims was an example of how far some people in this country would go to show their love of England. He evoked considerable applause from the audience by his declaration that Admiral Sims had prostituted the high office he held in the navy, the personnel of which Justice Collins maintained was two-thirds Irish or of Irish descent.

Every time Admiral Sims's name was mentioned by the speaker it was greeted with boos and catcalls. Father Dunleavy, who said he had just returned from Ireland, told of his experience there. He said he had learned on reliable authority that 150,000 English soldiers were being maintained in Ireland. Protestants were just as strong for the Irish Republic as the Catholics, he said.

The Rev. Mr. Mythen took a fling at the American Legion by declaring that unless the organization did not protest against the action of a Western official in removing the Irish flag from the automobile of "President" De Valera of the "Irish Republic" recently, then it was not a legion that was American. The clergyman said that "President" De Valera in many cities had received a greater reception than was accorded "the Chief Magistrate of the Republic, who represents the country in his own way." He urged men and women of Irish descent to make a sacrifice to supply money for the cause of Ireland.

John Jerome Rooney, alluding to the League of Nations, rejoiced in the fact that "that Tory document is practically dead," despite the efforts of the President to save it by a tour of the country. A parenthetical remark that "we're all sorry he came back impaired in health," evoked laughter from part of the audience. Resolutions arraigning the Government of England as an enemy of humanity and civilization and protesting against "the reign of terror England is now carrying out in Ireland," were unanimously adopted.

A series of meetings were held outside at which some of those who spoke in the theatre made addresses.

CHARTING NEW STARS.

Harvard Observatory Making an Intensive Study of the Heavens.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 15.—The Harvard College Observatory is making a systematic search for new stars, according to Acting Director S. I. Bailey, who said tonight that every two weeks a photographic study of the Milky Way was made and the new stars charted. Since this work was undertaken several years ago, he added, eighteen new stars had been discovered.

"We are also engaged upon a detailed study of the magnitudes of stars," Professor Bailey said. "In certain special areas, in co-operation with Professor Kapteyn of Groningen, Holland, we are making an especially intensive study of both the magnitude and positions of all stars down to the fifteenth or sixteenth magnitude, or, in other words, down to stars about 10,000 times too faint to be seen with the naked eye. There are something like 100,000,000 such stars.

"Among other undertakings upon which the observatory is engaged is the completion of the life work of the late Professor E. C. Pickering. Under his direction Miss Annie J. Cannon made a survey and classification of some 200,000 stars. No such comprehensive study had ever been made before. The observations for this great survey are now practically complete and the catalogue is in its final stages."

SEES HAND OF GOD IN LIGHTS GOING OUT

CALLS "MIXTURE" ABSURD

Deplores "Marriage" of Church and Theatre, but Predicts an Early Divorce.

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, who recently declined to take part in a meeting of clergymen and actors at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, on the ground that the stage was immoral, preached a sermon yesterday again attacking the stage and the clergymen who countenanced it.

Dr. Straton suggested that there was something more than the operation of natural laws in the manner in which the lighting system of the church failed at critical times at the meeting of actors and ministers which was to aid the drive for the Actors' Fund.

"The most dramatic incident," he said, "occurred when one of the Jewish rabbis was speaking, seemingly making some veiled reference to my letter declining to attend. In addressing the mixture of actors, actresses, and preachers he dramatically lifted his hand and exclaimed, 'We are all the children of the God of light.' As soon as he had finished that exclamation, every light in the building went out, and they were left in pitchblack darkness.

"My friends, was this a mere coincidence, or was it a deliberate rebuke from God, and an indication of His displeasure at any such mixing up of the corrupt stage of today with His pure and holy church?

"I do not believe any good can come from that marriage of the Church and theatre. If there are any children from the union they will doubtless be blind and lame and miserable. But doubtless the result will be—and in this case let us hope so—a divorce, as usual. Another humorous touch to this situation was that the same papers which carried the news of this union of the stage and the Church, also contained the account of the divorce proceedings of a famous actor."

Calls Meeting "Ludicrous."

"Will the Devil Complete the Capture of the Modern Church?" was the title of the sermon. The preacher drew a parallel between the struggles of the Church under the Roman Empire and its trials today.

"Working through Nero, Diocletian, and other emperors, the devil," he said, "deliberately and carefully planned literally to wipe from the earth all the Christians." The same war, he said, was being waged against the Church today through new instruments. While the conflict was grim, he said, it also was so ludicrous that he felt it necessary to handle the situation with wit and humor.

'"The utter absurdity and incongruity of trying to join up the Church with its ideals of holiness and separation from the world," he said, "and the modern theatre, with its grossly immoral atmosphere and the spirit of worldiness for which it stands, was aptly illustrated by that meeting."

Dr. Straton said the stage was doing more than any other force to break down Church attendance.

"On the other hand," he continued, "here are these dear brethren of the ministry hobnobbing with the theatre Avenue from the south, walk right up to the camera, and as you get within ten feet of the machine remove your hat and bow slightly. Do not wear eyeglasses. Wear a flower in your buttonhole.'

"Think of the utter absurdity of having dignified churchmen mixed up with movie stars, actresses, and actors, going through such silly manoeuvres, and all of it deliberately staged so that the Church was the background, and so these pictures could be given in movie theatres throughout the country! If they had succeeded in making that picture I would have accepted an invitation to name it, and I would have called it 'How the Church swallowed the world.'

"They were providentially hindered from getting any such absurd picture. The reporter tells us the picture was not made because the fuses in the church building persisted in blowing out, so that electric current for the lights could not be had. He tells us that the camera men and the electricians were distributed about the church premises 'uttering language never heard in a church before except perhaps in old times in sermons about eternal punishment.' While some of the artists profanely tinkered at the fuse down below, others moved their machines into the church, hoping to get a few reels of the meeting." people and sprinkling holy water over them. If the Sunday theatres and the movies grow much more in New York and the people leave the Sunday schools and churches to attend them, as they have been doing, the Church will soon receive a long earthly rest.

Dr. Straton said newspaper accounts showed the actors had crowded the ministers off the centre of the stage and had kept them in the background.

Offers Name for a Picture.

"It was planned," he said, "to have the movie men stationed outside the entrance so that as the stage stars and the preachers marched into the church a moving picture could be made. In the letter sent to each of the guests there were careful directions as to just how they were to act in entering the church.

Neither Patrician Nor Plebe

FROM THE TIME that the patricians, during the early building of Rome, had to go out and induce the plebes to return to their labors, down through all the ages, Capital and Labor have been in constant controversy to see which should have the best of it.

But neither was he then, nor has the farmer since been, a party to this controversy, for he is neither patrician nor plebe, neither capitalist nor laborer—though perhaps he is both.

The farmer has always stuck to his job of keeping the world going. He has always been the one constant, known quantity. He has always been the great stabilizer—and is today. You are not anxious about his attitude toward anything, because you know it always has been sound.

Farm Life's conception of the farmer, and its interpretations of the farmer to the farmer, are caricatured in its covers. Six of them are reproduced on this page. They need no explanation. In them you will see a policy as sound as the farmer himself. In them you will see a doctrine that confirms in the farmer's mind his judgment as reflected by his conduct since David was shepherding his flock on the hills of Judea.

And as the face of a man escutcheons his character, so the covers of Farm Life reflect its purposes and character. Within the covers of Farm Life is found that indescribable something called "atmosphere." We know that it is some sort of a composite of all that is contained in the paper. And we know that the definite help given, surrounded by Farm Life atmosphere, is the reason why Farm Life is the fastest growing farm paper and one of the three leading national farm papers.

EXPECT CUT IN OUTPUT

Move Was Launched Without the Proper Investigation, Says Horton of Sheffield Farms Company.

Both the producers and the distributers have voiced their protest against the milk strike which has been called by the Community Councils of National Defense. The strike is to begin this morning, and will continue for three days each week until the price of milk to the consumer is lowered, according to the present plans. The Community Councils have recommended that all persons over 4 years of age refrain from purchasing or drinking milk on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays as long as the present high prices prevail.

Leaders in the movement for a strike have prepared the following sign to be placed at the apartment doors:

"Milk Strike—No milk wanted here until Thursday."

Officers of the Dairymen's League, which represents the producers, said that any movement tending to reduce milk consumption would result naturally in a reduction of the quantity of milk farmers would be called upon to produce, and that under present high cost of production the farmer could not afford to keep cows if he had no market for his milk.

Loton Horton, President of the Sheffield Farms Company, yesterday sent a letter to George Gordon Battle, Chairman of the Community Councils, criticising the milk boycott. Mr. Horton suggests that the action was taken by the councils without investigating the matter, and he invites the councils to take up the subject with him and other distributers.

"The only way in which we can meet today the increased expenses from which we, as well as the public, suffer is by increased consumption and by larger tonnage upon our wagons," Mr. Horton wrote.

"The notion," he continues, "that price reduction can be forced by increasing our expenses needs no answer from me or from any other sensible person. We have had quite enough false representations about milk. It has been made a political football. It is time that right-thinking men and women considered seriously what this propaganda business has done, and, if not checked, is likely to do, with the most necessary of our foods—may I add, with the food which has to be handled with the greatest care of all foods consumed."

Mr. Horton also criticised the statement of Dr. Albert E. Shields, director of the councils, that the strike "is an effort by those upon whom this increase in price is being saddled to find out if the increase is justified or if it is just another attempt at profiteering."

"It seems to me," Mr. Horton wrote, "that this is a most extraordinary way of accomplishing any such purpose. This is a time when we need sober sense. For an organization, patriotic in character, to apparently accept, without inquiry or investigation, newspaper propaganda which is circulated for political purposes recently, is, to me, incredible."

Dr. Shields in a statement yesterday in reply to Health Commissioner Copeland that the milk boycott might add to the burden of the consumer, rather than help the situation, said the organization did not profess to believe that it could forcibly bring about a reduction in the price of milk and that the boycott was merely to afford an opportunity to "the long suffering public to voice an energetic protest against the prohibitive cost of one of the first essentials of life."

"Our main object," he continued, "of course, is to organize the consumers and prepare them to take collective action to protect their own interests. The great middle class has up to the present been satisfied with paying the bills and suffering in silence, while capital and labor waged war against each other. The tide has now turned and the middleman's hat is also in the ring."

"My Throat Hurts"

YOUR physician will tell you that sore throats are due to germs which children catch from one another in school or at play—that the germs multiply quickly if the child happens to be a little run-down, causing swelling and inflammation, and frequently tonsillitis, measles, etc. Formerly we tried to subdue these germs by means of gargles, but the modern physician advises the use of

THE GERM-KILLING THROAT TABLET

Mothers will hail with joy these pleasant-tasting tablets which are ever so much more convenient than the painful gargle. Formamint is simply sucked like candy. As it melts, it sets free a powerful, harmless germicide which mixes with the saliva and thus continuously bathes the inflamed parts, destroying germs and arresting their spread, thereby often preventing serious infection.

Children like Formamint Tablets because of their delightful taste, and for grown-ups and children alike, they are a welcome protection against infections that enter the body through the mouth and throat—influenza, for example. During epidemics, Formamint should be in every household.

Medical authorities, both here and in Europe, strongly endorse Formamint. Over 5,000 American physicians have recommended it in writing. 50 tablets for 50 cents at all good druggists.

"It remained for the Aeolian Company to produce a Phonograph that is a true Musical Instrument"

The AEOLIAN-VOCALION

The GRADUOLA

"BY USING the Graduola, the interpretation, though remaining the same in tempo and phrasing, may be varied in tone color, thus giving it a freshness and spontaneity which the ordinary phonograph performance never possesses."

Vocalion Features

TONE—Due to its advanced and more scientific construction, the Vocalion produces richer, deeper, more beautiful and more natural tones than have hitherto been heard from the phonograph.

TONE CONTROL—The Graduola, the artistic and exclusive tone-controlling feature of the Vocalion, enables the performer to shade and color the music as he will. It enables anyone to participate in the playing of the record, to give voice to his own musical ideas and to prevent monotony by slight changes in the record's stereotyped expression.

APPEARANCE—In both outline and finish, the regular upright models of the Vocalion establish an entirely new standard of beauty for the phonograph. The beautiful Period Styles, though inexpensive, are the most unusual and artistic phonographs ever displayed.

MECHANICAL PERFECTION—The Automatic Stop on the Vocalion is an example of the perfection in mechanical detail characterizing this instrument. Simple, direct and absolutely dependable, this device is the most satisfactory of its kind yet invented.

AND THE NEW UNIVERSAL TONE ARM—This great feature of the Vocalion is a notable tribute to the skill and resource of the Aeolian staff. It provides the means by which every make of record can be played upon the Vocalion.

Playing the Phonograph

PEOPLE are so accustomed to hearing the phonograph simply play itself, that it is not always easy to picture someone playing it. And it is practically impossible to realize the fascination of doing so without actual experience.

Yet the immense advantage the Graduola gives to the Aeolian-Vocalion is obvious.

Artists never play or sing twice with exactly the same feeling. Without changing their individual conceptions of their songs and compositions, they vary their interpretations in detail.

This is exactly what anyone can do by using the Graduola. Without actually changing the interpretation (tempo and phrasing always remaining the same) it can be varied in tone color, thus giving it a freshness and spontaneity which the ordinary phonograph performance never possesses.

And it is the fact that even when the player knows nothing of music, these changes sound well and add to the musical result, the explanation being that the arbitrary elements of interpretation, namely:—tempo, phrasing, and basic expression are unaffected by the Graduola.

The Sum Total of Phonograph Satisfaction

Though the Aeolian-Vocalion has been upon the market only about three years, it is today recognized as the leading instrument of its type, not only in this country but also abroad.

This is because the Vocalion offers everything possessed by the best phonographs of ordinary type, and adds its own exclusive and important advantages as well.

For example:—You may search the market over and you will hear no phonograph with so rich, mellow and beautiful a tone; you will see no phonograph that reflects such genuine art in the simple elegance of its cases; and you will find no phonograph that allows you the great privilege of taking an active part in the playing of its records.

You are invited to Aeolian Hall

The Aeolian Company wants everyone interested in phonographs or music to come to Aeolian Hall. You may hear the Vocalion play, for like other phonographs, it plays itself when desired. And then, if you wish, you may take the Graduola in your hands and possibly for the first time in your life, experience the fascination and thrill of expressing your own music instincts in beautiful musical tones

TELL OF OPPRESSION IN DALMATIAN ISLES

PROTEST CABLED TO PARIS

Even Water Supply to Little Villages, Fugitives Say, Is Dependent on Acceptance of Italian Claims.

A cable dispatch was sent to the American delegates at the Peace Conferencein Paris yesterday by a group of 150 Jugoslavs in this city, protesting that the Italians were attempting to intimidate and coerce all Jugoslavs in the villages in the Dalmatian Islands, so that the impression would be given that the inhabitants themselves favored the sovereignty of Italy. Those who sent the telegram asserted that the coercion extended to all Slavic and other racial elements in the islands who might favor detachment from Italy and the success of the new Slavic State.

This action was taken at a meeting at 409 West Forty-seventh Street, after the 150 who protested had heard the stories of six Jugoslavs who slipped through the Italian lines and managed to board a tramp steamer at Trieste. The sailors deserted the ship when it reached this port and reported to the Jugoslav societies upon conditions in Fiume and the Dalmatian Islands.

Their story was, in effect, that every village and town in the islands is picketed with Italian soldiers, some not from d'Annunzio's forces, who exercise the most stern measures of repression over the population, that all the Croatian schools had been closed, but that every effort was being made to spread Italian propaganda even among the school children.

If more than two Judgoslavs were observed walking through the streets together, the fugitive sailors said, they were questioned closely by the Italian pickets and sometimes taken to headquarters for a rebuke by the commanding officer in the village. Meetings were prohibited, and even religious gatherings in churches were under the close observation of Italian soldiers. They said it was almost impossible for a Jugoslav to obtain a permit to visit any town or village on the coast, or where foreign steamers arrived, even if the business was urgent.

Another complaint was that the water supply in many of the villages was under the control of the Italians, who withheld or released it as they thought sentiment in favor of annexation to Italy grew or waned. The sailors said that most of the villagers had small pumps or hydrants in front of their houses, and that even these had been locked or chained at times so that the inhabitants would be without water for days.

All mail leaving or entering the villages, the soldiers said, was subjected to the most stringent military censorship by the Italians. Members of the St. Nicholas Benevolent Society, composed of former inhabitants of the village of Olib, said yesterday at the meeting that they had preserved several letters from relatives in Olib and other Dalmatian villages as proof of the stringency of the Italian censorship, which, they contend, is illegal and unjust. Frequently letters are received here, they said, with hardly twenty words legible in letters of several pages.

The cablegram sent to American delegates to the Peace Conference reads:

> We thank you for past protection of our interests in the controversy with Italy. We have learned from recent arrivals that the Italians closed the seaports of the islands in the Adriatic. They have prevented free movement and have withheld drinking water from those who voted against Italian dominance. Force and obstruction were the means by which our people were coerced to vote for Italy. The news reached us through the mouths of sailors who came directly from our country. Please uphold right and freedom.

The Jugoslavs at the meeting yesterday asserted that all plebiscites in the Dalmatian villages had been so managed by the Italians that the inhabitants could not have expressed their true minds without endangering their lives. They said they had firsthand stories of instances of intimidation of voters of the Slavic element. Conditions were similar in Fiume and throughout all the Dalmatian islands and the Istrian peninsula, they said.

The societies are finding jobs here for all sailors and other Jugoslavs who manage to reach this country.

ROBBERS SEIZE 3 MEN, GET $8,000 IN SAFE

Seven Men Concerned in Blow-up On the Lake Front in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Seven robbers early today bound and gagged three men, blew open a large safe in the offices of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, partly wrecked a smaller one and escaped with about $8,000. The smaller safe, containing $5,000 and Liberty bonds to the amount of $1,000, withstood the explosive charges and the cracksmen departed after expressing disappointment with the amount of the loot.

Detectives pronounced the safeblowing the work of expert cracksmen who, so far as learned, left no fingerprints or other clues. They had so muffled the explosions that a cashier's glass inclosure near by was not damaged.

The building is on Michigan Avenue, on the Lake Front.

Amberg

Why 75,000 Offices Use the Amberg Plan

How Complete Filing and Finding Can Be Individualized to Your Business

YOUR business is different from every other business. You have your own way of selling, advertising, billing, filing your correspondence. Take filing, for example. You probably say—"Oh, yes—my files work all right." That is what we generally hear. This is what we generally find:

- —letters lost
- —units of correspondence separated
- —letters mis-filed
- —hours wasted hunting for "theirs of the 14th"

Almost every office has the same experience, and yet executives hesitate to make changes for fear that a new method of filing and indexing will necessitate scrapping valuable equipment and cause a disorganizing upheaval in the office.

What the Amberg Plan Is

The Amberg Plan is Complete Filing and Finding individualized to your business. It is more than filing cabinets, more than guides, cards and folders. Yet it is simple, direct, practical.

The Amberg Plan is based upon a Law of Correspondence that has proved 99½% perfect. This Law so simplifies complex filing and indexing problems that it makes possible two advantages—

1. Your correspondence can be filed accurately by anyone who knows the alphabet.
2. Your correspondence can be found instantly by anyone who knows the alphabet.

Discovery of the "Law of Correspondence"

The great filing problem since filing began has been to get even, accurate distribution; for with proper distribution of file matter, the quick, certain finding of it is assured.

The Amberg Company—authorities on filing and finding since 1868—found the solution of this problem.

An analysis was made of the Nation's business names—205,920 of them. This task, consuming seven years, determined scientifically, the basis of accurate distribution of file matter—accurate to within ½ of 1%.

This is the Law of Correspondence that is the basis of the Amberg Plan now used in over 75,000 offices.

What the Amberg Plan Does

Remember again, the Amberg Plan is made to fit your business—your business is not fitted to a preconceived system.

An Amberg representative learns the peculiarities that exist in your correspondence—the names, the volume and the method of filing. Then when you have told him exactly what you want your filing to accomplish, he lays out a plan. This plan is submitted for your approval. Upon its adoption, Amberg equipment will be installed with scarcely a ripple in your office routine.

Why You Should Investigate

Your business has its filing troubles—every business has. But if you want to end these difficulties; if you want complete filing and finding, individualized to your business, then you want to know about the Amberg Plan and you want to know today. It costs you nothing to investigate.

THE RAILWAY BILLS.

The differences between the House and Senate bills for the adjustment of the status of the railways after their return to private operation are wide, but less wide than the differences between the House and the committee which reported the Esch bill. Presumably there will develop the same difference in points of view between the Senate and the Cummins committee. Out of this confusion there is no telling what may come. Those who like novelties fancy the Cummins bill, with its punitive anti-strike provisions and diversion of power and function from the Interstate Commerce Commission to a Transportation Commission. Senator CUMMINS is so enamored of preventing strikes by law that he proposes to extend the provisions from railways to all industries affected with a public interest.

Inasmuch as labor influence has succeeded in causing the rejection of the Esch proposal for so mild a form of strike regulation as punishing strikes or lockouts with liability to damages limited to the common property of unions or railways, the prospect of the House bill in the Senate is poor. The House committee's proposal was rejected in favor of an amendment amounting to a new bill added to the eighty-odd pages of the original bill. Under the amendment labor disputes are referred to three boards of adjustment, with appeal to three commissions, one for each of three classes of workers. There is no provision for representation of public interests. There is no compulsion that an award shall be found, or that if found an award shall be accepted. Any one is at liberty to regard such cobwebs as an improvement upon present methods of restraining strikes injurious to public interests. Labor is satisfied, and lies in wait for the Cummins plan.

It is amusing to contrast the creation of six new commissions with the report of the Esch committee condemning and rejecting the Cummins proposal to appoint one new commission. Says the report: "The policy "pursued by the committee in framing the pending bill was not to "adopt new and untried plans, but "rather to build on a structure already in existence, whose foundations were well laid." To create a commission merely to advise the Interstate Commerce Commission was useless, and to give the new commission real powers was sure to lead to division of authority and responsibility. Accordingly the Esch committee preferred rather to strengthen the Interstate Commerce Commission, and itself to give what advice on regulation it thought useful for the guidance of the commission. Those who think that new laws and methods are good because they are new, and nobody can be sure that they will work badly, will fancy the Cummins plan. Those who think that old and tried methods are not necessarily bad for that reason will judge the Esch plan according to their view as to whether the Interstate Commerce Commission has profited by experience and learned its business. It has passed through hard discipline, and latterly there has been increased recognition of the fact that it faced almost insoluble difficulties and has done its best without a stain on its character.

This point of the commission's education by events is illuminated by a letter from Commissioner MCCHORD appended to the Esch report. The Commissioner addresses himself to the question whether the deterioration of railway credit is due to the commission's severity of regulation or to the disparagement of the credit of the railways by their own officers. The Commissioner marshals pages of figures to show that, whatever may be thought of the commission's regulation, railway dividend rates have risen over a series of years, and that the standard return fixed for the use of the roads by the Government is based on the highest average earnings of any three years in railway history. He thinks he shows that the railroads neither were nor are in a state of bankruptcy, and declares himself their defender against their traducers.

No one would be so rash as to challenge the Commissioner on the facts. All he says may be cordially allowed, and yet there is something more on the record of which the Commissioner takes no notice. He says nothing on the point that, whatever the railways were earning, other investments were earning more, and that the railways were and are prejudiced in their bid for capital by the comparison. The Commissioner is alone in comparing the railways with their own record merely. No man considering the disposal of free capital would be induced to invest in railways by the Commissioner's argument. And on the last page the Commissioner undoes what he so elaborately proved on the preceding pages. The railway operating income has fallen, he says, from $1,081,556,496 in 1916 to $719,159,540 in 1918, and the first half of 1919 is like the first half of 1918. For July the shrinkage for 105 leading roads is from $136,243,472 in 1918 to $80,280,165 this year.

The Commissioner has learned. He says that, however he may have been misunderstood heretofore, he now recognizes that "railroad credit has nevertheless declined, and that there "is a problem as to railroad credit." Q. E. D. The railways are more nearly safe in the care of the commission than heretofore, and safer probably than with Senator CUMMINS's unnamed and unknown Transportation Commission harnessed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, to work out an untried plan.

COUNTESS TOLSTOY.

What one thinks of Count TOLSTOY now could not be said save in some cosmopolitan literary "republic of the well-bred," if such an institution or Utopia exists, even in Florence today. What his influence was, if he had any, may faintly be conjectured from the charming Russia of today. His Countess, SOPHIE BERS, is dead; the model, if one cares for models and superstitions, of Kitty in "Anna Karenina," of Natasha in "War and Peace." She tried to put a little common sense into him. She kept her own; likewise the copyrights of the ancient swell playing hermit and beggar and a little brother of the poor. It is said by the illustrious one's admirers that she kept him from "teaching," stopped his review and school, tried to wave away from him the religiosity and imitation-demonism that were among his curses and the bores of the world.

She is gone; and yet she may be not so dead as the illustrious one. She was herself a good novelist, a distinction some of the cynical may feel disposed to deny to her husband; and her immediate happiness should be certain. For weary years she walked through Purgatory. She copied "War and Peace" seven times.

UNDER CLOSURE.

Though neither the country nor the rest of the world has much to thank the Senate for in regard to its long higgling over the Peace Treaty, there will be a practically unanimous feeling of thankfulness that it has at last adopted closure and that the end of the fight over the Lodge plan is in sight. Vice President MARSHALL's announcement that if the Lodge resolution of ratification is defeated the way will be open for other resolutions makes it certain that the Treaty itself will not be endangered by such a defeat, unless, of course, the Vice President's ruling should be overridden by the Senate when made, which is not likely. While such an outcome would still further prolong a debate already far too long, it would be much better to take that course than to permit the emasculated Treaty constructed by Senator LODGE and his following to go to the President—better for us and better for the world.

Should the Lodge resolution be defeated, the way will be open for a compromise resolution which by that time might stand a chance of passage. It cannot be defeated by the votes of Democrats alone, but it is not beyond hope that enough Republicans might join with them to obtain that desirable result. It is plain from the hopefulness of the Democratic Senators that they count on this. Mr. MARSHALL, by announcing in advance the ruling he intends to make, has given full opportunity to the more reasonable Republicans to consider whether they shall obtain the workable Treaty for which they have all along contended or tie themselves up irrevocably to those who have devoted themselves to making a farce of it.

The Senate, it is reported, finds closure a novelty hard to accustom itself to. It is the first time the closure rule has ever been applied. A closure, however, which is not applied until the Senate has thrashed out the whole subject over and over again and there is nothing left to say cannot be regarded as very severe. In the House there is a practical closure which operates as a gag, and is so sternly applied that more than once it has prevented Congressmen from giving anything like a full discussion of the pending measure. In the Senate members can talk themselves out and repeat themselves before any one dares to mention closure, and then only to prevent the debate from becoming mere filibustering. Somewhere between these two extremes there presumably lies a sensible system of closure, which some time may come into being.

EDUCATION AGAINST RADICALISM

Mr. SHERMAN ROGERS has studied working men and women. He has lived among them. He knows their language, their habits, their desires, their strong and honest ways of thought, resting sometimes on erroneous theories. He says that a comparatively small number of agitators, 15,000 he estimates their numbers, "have finally convinced the great "bulk of labor that they have been "robbed right and left, that they are "only receiving one-tenth in worth "of what they actually produce net."

It is permitted to doubt if Mr. ROGERS is right in assuming that "the "great bulk of labor" is convinced that it is "robbed." The great bulk of labor is the great bulk of laboring men and women; members of labor associations are not that; as a matter of figures American laborers are mainly not members of associations. If it be true that, as Mr. ROGERS tells us, a large number, "the great bulk," of American laboring men and women are convinced that they have been "robbed," then the rest of us must be convinced that these people never look at their recent and present wage, never compare it with their wage in the past, never compare it with the earnings of the great salaried class that has had no substantial increase of income since the doubling of prices resulting from the war.

There is a lot of education to do. It is not merely the false theories of agitators that must be exposed for the benefit of "the laboring class." Why shouldn't they learn to compare their social and economic status with that of millions of other Americans laboring longer hours than they?

THE CONQUEROR OF LONDON.

Reverers of ancient medicos like Bob Sawyer and Benjamin Allen regard with a certain purely literary enthusiasm the revels of the medical students who amused themselves with "Pussyfoot" JOHNSON, the prohibitionist missionary in London. They enjoyed themselves with their treat to him, and he is eminently sensible in taking good-naturedly their efforts at "ragging" him. Indeed, he seems to be a thoroughly good fellow, with a sense of humor too often denied to the earnest, implacable advocates of prohibition. Those boys were out for a lark. They liked him. In insisting that "rum won the war" they showed their sense of humor. In bearing him about the town they were "manifesting," as the Boul' Miche might "manifest."

If Mr. JOHNSON has been injured, in a manner which these gay young thoughtless boys never intended, he has a wonderful satisfaction coming to him. He understands the thing thoroughly. He forgives and likes the boys whose objection to him is purely impersonal and temporary. So Mr. BRYAN, who was jeered, if we remember, at Yale, might go to New Haven and be now elected, rules permitting, an honorary member of Skull and Bones. The children have to make a row, but a citizen of merit can always visit their town later and be honored with decorations instead of bricks.

The so-called "Pussyfoot" JOHNSON has won England in a day. His dry theories are maddening to many Englishmen. Mr. GILBERT K. CHESTERTON will beat bitterly his ample chest when the sacred duty of absenting one's self from the "public" is dwelt upon by an alien missionary.

But "Pussyfoot" JOHNSON has conquered England. He grins delightedly at his "ragging." He is a "good sport"; and if anybody can make Great Britain "dry" he is the man.

HINDENBURG IN BERLIN.

The wooden statue of HINDENBURG may lie fallen flat as Dagon under the impact of red proletarian hands, but HINDENBURG himself is far from fallen. He has come to Berlin to testify before the Parliamentary Commission which is trying to find out who lost the war, and why. When he arrived at the Friedrichstrasse station he was met by a delegation of Generals, headed by LUDENDORFF, as well as by a large crowd of mixed sentiments. HINDENBURG and LUDENDORFF clasped hands for a moment and looked each other in the eye; then, according to a sympathetic observer, they exemplified a custom more Russian or French than German—though it was surely far from unknown in Germany—by falling upon each other's shoulders and kissing each other violently upon both cheeks.

At this majestic spectacle, more impressive than the legendary osculations of Righteousness and Peace, the crowd broke out into cries of "Down with the Parliamentary Commission!" or "Long live the Internationale!" according to its convictions, and there was an unpremeditated and general riot, the quelling of which gave some trouble to the police. A man is still of some importance when his mere appearance can start a riot.

But HINDENBURG started two riots. When he started by automobile to give his testimony his car was surrounded by cheering students, as enthusiastic as those who overthrew "Pussyfoot" JOHNSON, but less hostile. The students loved HINDENBURG so much that they would not let him testify before these unworthy parliamentaries even if he wanted to; they halted his car, they made speeches, they finally carried him away in triumph. Politically, it may mean very little; HINDENBURG was lucky enough to share LUDENDORFF's credit and escape his blame; but as an incident of the emotions of Berlin it is entertaining.

LADY ASTOR'S CAMPAIGN.

As a campaigner Lady ASTOR added to the gayety of two English-speaking nations. Beneath the sparkling surface there ran a strong tide of common sense and character. Stress was laid upon the keenness of her wit and the trenchant power of her repartee, but she was too sensible a woman to think that a sharp tongue could win her a seat in the House of Commons. If her neighbors in Plymouth did not know her personal worth, there was slight chance for her. They knew her as one of the most human and benevolent of women, first in good works and indefatigable. Her charity was not cold and formal; like her presence, it radiated sunshine. There was no mistaking its genuineness. If she could not convince the electors that she would be useful in Parliament, she talked in vain, for the post-war period has its irrepressible problems. English men and women may smile and be of good cheer, but at heart they are troubled about the future. "What I do hope to bring into the House of Commons," Lady ASTOR said in one of her serious moments, "are "sound views pertaining to the in"terests of women and children"; and at another time:

> There is a place in politics for women. They have the spiritual qualities needed in politics. Men may have them, but they haven't the courage to show them.

The spirit and mettle of the woman candidate must have made votes for her. There was no faltering in the face of persistent heckling. She always had a ready answer, and the interrupter usually got the worst of it. "If it had been in your power during the war," she told an Independent Socialist, "the whole British Army would be goosestepping in Berlin." And another retort rang like a clarion: "There is but one genuine So"cialist in history. He said, 'Love "thy neighbor as thyself.'" Neither the "wets" nor the "drys" could get any comfort out of her rejoinder that, while no one could make her say that "drink ever did any one any good," she believed in giving the people the opportunity to vote as they pleased upon prohibition. Veteran politicians might profit by the frankness and good sense of this titled woman who was so much of a democrat, so fearless and yet so practical.

Lady ASTOR did more for herself in her unconventional style of campaigning than the Prime Minister, Mr. BONAR LAW, and Mr. A. J. BALFOUR could do for her with their partisan tributes. The British dearly love a fighter who gives and takes blows smilingly, and no man could have shown a braver and cooler front than NANCY ASTOR. There was really nothing against her but her American birth, but she disarmed her critics with the delightful defense that it was quite appropriate that a daughter of Virginia, the first English settlement in the United States, peopled by West County folk, should become the representative of that section of England in Parliament. Lady ASTOR of the Old Dominion and Devon deserved to win by a handsome majority.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Speculators Again in Danger. At least a dozen times, in recent years, efforts more or less sincere have been made by the City Fathers and the theatre managers to cure or mitigate the acknowledged evil of speculation in theatre tickets. In spite of these endeavors, this method of exploiting the public's interest in the stage has gone on and on, with no real change, and the situation, or rather the extortion, is now worse, if anything, than it has ever been before.

So another and harsher ordinance restricting the activities of the speculators is to be considered, and probably enacted, this week. Its essential difference from its predecessors is that it facilitates the taking away of his license from the speculator who can be convicted of making more than his permitted profit, and it is confidently prophesied that this simple expedient will solve the problem. Doubt that it will do so is fully justified by experience and also by the sad truth that, as long as somebody has something to sell at a price somebody else is willing to pay, the transfer will take place, law or no law.

A representative of the Producing Managers' Association was quoted as saying last week, "Ticket speculators are an absolute necessity." He used one word when his meaning required another, but the manager would have been wrong, even if he had used the right word, for ticket speculators are no more necessary for the conduct of the theatrical business than for that of the railways. They are merely a convenience for people who are willing to pay for special advantages over other people in the matter of buying the theatre tickets they want, when they want them, and the clamor against them is or ought to be confined to the people who would be content to take their fair chance at the box office window if that didn't so often result either in failure to get any ticket at all or in the getting of one in an undesired and unenjoyed part of the house.

One Device Still to be Tested. It is more than a little remarkable that, of the many laborers over the question of speculation in theatre tickets, none has yet thought of, or at any rate none has seriously suggested for consideration, the possibility that the root of the evil, the causa causans, lies in the managers, not the speculators, and that against the former, not the latter, action should be taken.

Of course, it has been charged innumerable times that the managers share the illicit or extortionate profits of the speculators. It is safe to say that some of the managers have done so sometimes, but never have all of them done so, and it is not an exaggeration of kindness to hope, or even to believe, that most of them do not do so now. There is, however, a way in which the managers could free themselves wholly from this ancient suspicion, and that is by refusing to take for their tickets, from anybody whomsoever, a larger price than the one at which, nominally, the tickets are offered to all and sundry.

That might not stop ticket speculating altogether and immediately, but it would be entirely effectual in depriving the speculator of the one means by which he gets as many and what tickets he thinks he can sell, and it would make indubitably sincere the enmity of every manager to every speculator. From that state of affairs, whether brought about voluntarily or by law, the public inevitably would derive advantage, and it is more than probable that soon there would be as little speculating in theatre as in railway tickets. And that is none at all, for, there being less than no profit in such speculation for the railway managers, they see to it that they have the laws they need and that the laws are enforced.

Another Reason for Change. There is sufficient reason, and more, for removing parades from Fifth Avenue to Riverside Drive in the fact that on the avenue they impose upon the merchants doing business there financial losses which they should not be asked or expected to bear. There is another reason for the change, however, that deserves consideration, not because it involves the right of a single group to exemption from what amounts to a discriminatory tax for the benefit of the general public, but because the general public is adversely affected.

Fifth Avenue is a dividing line between the east and west sides of the city; it is not only traffic on the avenue itself that parades stop. They also interfere almost as much with crosstown travel, and do it often to a serious degree for many hours.

Any inhabitant of the city is likely to have a more or less urgent need to use one of the transverse streets while a parade is in progress, and many thousands do. They all suffer inconvenience, and not a few loss, as a result of these delays, and this is no class or group grievance, as it befalls alike people afoot, in the surface cars, or in automobiles or other private conveyances. There would be nothing of this—no trains lost, no engagements broken, no tempers wrecked, and no naughty words spoken—at least for this cause—if the marchers marched and the watchers watched over on the western edge of the city, where every prospect pleases and even man is almost sure to be on his company behavior out of respect for his beautiful environment.

A Distinction We Also Should Have. What a pity it is that our language, large as is its vocabulary, is unable to make among us the distinction to which Mr. DURANTY, in one of his recent dispatches, called attention as existing in Finland. In that country, he wrote, there are Finns and there are Finlanders, and so different are they that it is not judicious for the foreign visitor to call the Finn a Finlander or the Finlander a Finn.

The Finns are an autochthonous folk, or at any rate they invaded the land so long ago that they have no memories or legends of any other. The Finlanders, on the other hand, are just people who live in Finland. They or their fathers may have come from anywhere and they know whence they came. Usually they are Swedes by blood.

So we have Americans and—the sort for which we have no name. We do have the epithet "un-American," but that is clumsy.

Finland is more fortunate than the United States in that the Finns and the Finlanders are good friends, and as a rule agree as to national objects, though not always as to methods and means. Here the merely geographic Americans are the open enemies of the real Americans and of the American Government.

In the provinces across the water from Finland a like discrimination is made between inhabitants of native origin and those who came later. The latter, whatever their ancestry, are "Balts." They are not Esths or Letts or any of the other tribal variants.

McCumber Changes His Mind.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Back in the Stone Age of this endless treaty wrangle Senator McCumber offered a "mild" reservation as a compromise to the "knife-thrust," life-sapping reservation on Article X. The Administration Senators, not yet willing to compromise, looked unfavorably upon it, and it died for lack of support, McCumber joining the Lodge faction.

Yesterday, however, the minority, its back against the wall, reintroduced, through Senator Thomas, word for word, the erstwhile McCumber reservation, hoping for an eleventh-hour compromise. But Senator McCumber determined not to support it. Why? In reply to a query by Senator Thomas, he explained that the minority had had an early chance to support his reservation and had failed to do so, and that he now intended to vote against it!

A screaming lack of logic fairly radiates from that reply. If the Senator had once considered his reservation worthy of his august sponsorship, why was it now below the dignity of his support? Had anything better been produced meanwhile? Emphatically no. An interpretation written into the constitution of the great League of Nations by Senator McCumber, known the world over as the McCumber reservation, under the name of Thomas, was to McCumber a negligible quantity.

Bearing in mind that this is only one of a long and fatiguing series of similar instances, thoughtful citizens will realize that the Senate, no matter how it finally settles the already suffocated and lifeless treaty, has shown itself steeped in political prejudice which the country must henceforth take steps systematically to exclude from its Congress. P. E. S.

Our Dead in France.

This is a message to the brave mothers, fathers, sisters, and brothers of the beloved dead who rest on foreign soil, from one who has suffered and stood where so many thousands long to stand, at the spot over there where the beloved one rests.

It is because I have returned with such a complete change of feeling that I am speaking to you. I went over convinced that at some future time when our Government could I wanted my soldier brought home, but could you all see what I have seen I feel you too would change your point of view.

After traveling for hours through the wicked, wanton, devastated country, and on all sides seeing the picture of how and where our men fought and fell, suddenly you come upon the beautiful garden of peace, "The Argonne Cemetery" in Romagne, where they rest; 22,000 of our brave heroes, cross upon cross, row upon row, as far as the eye can reach. There is no distinction between them, except the different name on each cross, and all are so tenderly cared for by American hands.

As I left them there I felt so strongly that God willed they were not to come home, and we should not disturb their sleep.

ONE WHO HAS LOST.

MRS. STOKES AT YONKERS.

A Revolutionary Address Turned Into a Patriotic Demonstration.

Congratulatory letters from all over the country have been pouring in upon me this week because of the part credited to me by the press in connection with a communist meeting held in this city last Sunday night and addressed by Rose Pastor Stokes. With these I have received three others, one from a manifest sympathizer with the Russian revolution, one from a well-known Socialist of wealth, and one from a Barnard student; the two last deprecated the method it was reported to have employed at the meeting as infringing upon the right of free assemblage and free speech, and calculated to aid rather than to hinder the spread of Bolshevism.

Permit me to say that I have no apology to offer any one for anything said or done at this gathering by my colleagues or myself, as from beginning to end there was courtesy, free speech, and American fair play. To this Mrs. Stokes herself would be the first to agree. We did not break up the meeting. We did something far better. We saturated it with 100 per cent. Americanism, as it was our right and duty to do. I commend what I conceive a wholesome example to other communities, and in view of the wide publicity given an inaccurate report I ask, not only in justice to myself and others in Yonkers, but because of the bearing of this incident upon a national menace, that equal publicity be given the following correction.

In the first place, let me make clear that entirely undue credit for the patriotic demonstration in question has been given by some unknown scribe to me. The plan to have present a strong contingent of loyal citizens originated, I believe, with Commissioner of Public Safety O'Keefe and was carried out chiefly through Captain Collins of the Home Guard. I am proud to say that a large percentage of the Home Guard happen to come from my splendid parish. I drilled with them at the beginning of the war, and was glad to join them in another type of home defense last Sunday.

In the second place, as I have suggested, Mrs. Stokes was not interrupted by me nor by any one else, by either song or speech, throughout a long and perfectly orderly evening. She was given a quiet and attentive hearing. Whether she should be at large making these revolutionary addresses while out on bail under a ten years' sentence for utterances during the war is another question. But as she was in fact being permitted by the authorities to address a public meeting it would have been entirely unwarranted for me to presume to usurp their place and prevent her speaking. To have broken in upon her and ridden down her speech roughshod, singing her and her followers out of the hall they had been allowed to hire, even though we had sung "The Star-Spangled Banner," would have been a disorderly and quite Bolshevistic proceeding. We heard her through, and in a closing forum answered her in honest American fashion. At 10:30 she had talked herself out, and admitted that she had made no converts.

At the beginning, as we were crowded in the hall waiting, with no presiding officer or speaker in evidence, I suggested that we were wasting good time, and started "America," which was sung with a fervor I have never heard surpassed. Toward the close of Mrs. Stokes's address, which she began following the singing, many telling questions and criticisms came from all parts of the house. She met them earnestly and in good spirit, but for the most part with poor success, especially when challenged as to her authority for statements about Russia, by a young man who reads regularly the Soviet and other newspapers in the Russian language—a language of which she admitted to him her ignorance.

My own contribution to the closing forum was the following question: "Why do you, Mrs. Stokes, assume that your knowledge and judgment regarding Bolshevism are superior to John Spargo's, whose analysis of that revolution as a ruthless seizure of power by an armed minority—an inverted tyranny and utterly undemocratic—must appeal, it seems to me, to any unbiased mind as true and unanswerable?" She replied: "I have not mentioned Mr. Spargo this evening, but I do not agree with him."

"No," I said, "eminent socialist authority as he is, and sharing all your humanitarian sympathy and hope to the full as he does, he is absolutely against Bolshevism, as being the foe of democracy, and against you on this issue; and I haven't the shadow of a doubt that he is right and you are wrong. You have said some things tonight that were very true. Your criticism of business, in so far as it is selfish competition for profit rather than co-operative service of human need, is perfectly just. I have no doubt that we are to work out a far better social and industrial order with far greater socializing of privilege than at present. But your injection of this foreign nomenclature, your constant talk of the 'bourgeoisie,' the 'proletariat,' and the rest, your deliberate fostering of the class consciousness and class antagonism which these terms suggest, is an impertinence in this democracy! We are all Americans here, and please God we are going to work out these problems of a juster order progressively and together!"

I was interrupted here by cheers; some one called for three cheers for the Constitution of the United States, which were given with a will, and at the late hour above indicated the "communist" meeting ended with a heartfelt and prayerful singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

There are not a few within our hospitable borders who are planning a violent revolution and the overthrow of our Government. They should be summarily deported. Mrs. Stokes kept clear of any advocacy of violence in her remarks Sunday evening, but her doctrine is frankly revolutionary and where accepted cannot fail to encourage sedition; for example, she declared it her judgment that the verdict of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in electing Governor Coolidge—one of the most righteous and heartening things that has happened in America for many a year, as all genuine Americans, without regard to party, agree—was due to the misleading influence of the capitalistic press. Until the courts dispose of her case a vigilant public spirit must dispose of her arguments by constructive words and deeds. Everywhere let us burn home the truth that Bolshevism is the latest turn of tyranny, masking as freedom, the attempt of a minority to make might right, and wherever it raises its head, whether in the form of lawless overbearing capital or lawless overbearing labor, it is the enemy of democracy and must be given no quarter.

ELLIPTIC STARLIGHT.

Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
Give us answer from afar,
For our scientists explain
In a way that gives us pain.

Tell us why you have of late
Turned from pathways that are straight.
Does your light go on a strike
When too near the sun you hike?

Little star, don't make us guess!
Rather wouldn't you confess
Why you try with all your might
To deflect your starry light?

Little star, I wish you'd talk—
Wherefore that elliptic walk?
Did a drink affect you, say,
Maybe on the Milky Way?

FOUR MISSIONS COMING.

Plans to Entertain Industrial Delegates Who Arrive Thursday.

The industrial missions sent here by Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium to attend the International Trade Conference in Atlantic City last month will arrive here on Thursday for a six days' visit. The missions will be received here by the Merchants Association, a committee of which will entertain the foreign delegates during their stay here.

Several Cabinet Ministers are included among the members of the four missions, whose visit to this country has been described as "an event of the highest commercial and industrial importance." The missions will be met at the Grand Central Station on Thursday and taken to the Hotel Commodore. On Friday morning they will visit the Mayor at the City Hall.

A luncheon at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Friday will be addressed by President Homer L. Ferguson of Newport News, head of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and by spokesmen from each of the missions. Visits to the Horse Show, to West Point, to the Capitol Theatre, to THE NEW YORK TIMES plant, and to the Hippodrome are scheduled for the rest of the visit. A farewell luncheon will be given on Nov. 25 at the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, 65 Liberty Street.

William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants Association, is Chairman of the committee which will receive the visitors. Other members are Vincent Astor, George F. Baker, August Belmont, Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Bullard, Elbert H. Gary, Otto H. Kahn, George W. Perkins, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Charles M. Schwab, Frank A. Vanderlip, and Albert H. Wiggin.

HONOR WARBURG AT DINNER

Jewish Drive Workers Praise His Efforts in Campaign.

A dinner was given for Felix M. Warburg, President of the Federation for Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, by Chairmen of the Industrial Committees of the United Building Fund Campaign at the Hotel Biltmore last night.

Praise of Mr. Warburg for his activity in philanthropic work, particularly in connection with the $10,000,000 drive for the federated Jewish institutions, was voiced by Jacob H. Schiff, Colonel H. A. Guinzburg, Louis J. Robertson, William Goldman, and Arthur Lehman.

Announcement was made that the campaign will end officially Thanksgiving Day. The total raised so far, it was said, amounted to $7,221,814. An individual bequest of $500,000 was made last night. The name of the donor was not made public.

Mr. Warburg described conditions prevailing in hospitals and other institutions abroad. He recalled one Jewish hospital in Germany, which cannot raise enough to pay its help. There was no heat in the building, he said, and no chance of obtaining coal. The nurses and patients were underclothed and undernourished, and breakfast foods were unobtainable.

Colonel Guinzburg, discussing difficulties of the workers in the drive, said the public needed education in giving to charity. The high cost of living, he said, made it necessary that contributions to charity should be doubled hereafter.

PROTECTS OUR EXPORTERS.

Credit Men's Plan Saves Americans from Foreign Swindlers.

A plan put into operation a month ago by the National Association of Credit Men to safeguard its members against professional commercial swindlers abroad seeking goods for which they do not intend to pay has met with remarkable success, according to J. H. Tregoe, Secretary-Treasurer of the organization. Recently, the Foreign Credit Exchange Bureau exposed one man, rated as being worth $25,000,000, who is alleged to have amassed his fortune by defrauding American exporters.

Under the plan, exporter members of the association put at the disposal of other members the sum of their experiences in dealing with foreign firms or individuals. Forms, called inquiry tickets, are filled out, giving a history of the business dealings, and these are sent to the bureau. Twice a week, the bureau sends out an office inquiry sheet of foreign firms concerning which members have asked information.

"The advice given and the data furnished enable exporters to eliminate the undesirable buyers, and to keep their files up to date," Mr. Tregoe said. "The bureau does not attempt to pass on decisions for those seeking information, but simply puts at their disposal all available data."

Mr. Tregoe said members of the association are asked to treat all information as confidential, and to make full replies to inquiries. A small charge to defray the expenses was made, he added.

HOSPITAL DRIVE ON TODAY.

$3,000,000 Campaign Opens with Indorsement by Dr. Copeland.

The United Hospital Fund Committee today begins its annual campaign for subscriptions to help carry on the free work of forty-six hospitals in this city. In the last year the hospitals incurred a deficit of $3,000,000 in this work. More than 100 teams are to canvass the city to make up this sum and to carry on the work for the coming year.

This indorsement of the fund was given out yesterday by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, City Health Commissioner:

"In all the hospitals in this city there are 38,000 beds. Thirty thousand of these are in private hospitals. To put it in another way, the city takes care of about 8,000 patients, while the non-municipal hospitals take care of 30,000. Furthermore, the large majority of cases cared for by the city are chronic ones. In other words, the great majority of acute medical and surgical cases and accidents are treated in private hospitals.

"During the influenza epidemic last year thousands of persons now alive must have died except for the noble service of these institutions. No greater public calamity could happen than the closing of these private hospitals. The city itself is utterly unprepared to assume responsibility for the care of all its sick citizens in its own hospitals."

PERSHING AIDS SCOUTS.

General Adds Good Wishes to Contribution to Girls' Fund.

General Pershing was among the contributors to the Girl Scouts of America fund, announced yesterday by Mrs. V. Everit Macy, Chairman of the National and City Campaign Committees, in her report for the third week of the drive. Two checks for $1,000 each were received on Saturday, one from Percy A. Rockefeller and the other from Miss Llewellyn Parsons. In sending his contribution, General Pershing wrote:

"I am very glad to give encouragement to the organization of the Girl Scouts. The public are now familiar with the splendid work of the Boy Scouts of America, and a similar organization for the young women of the country will undoubtedly be of great benefit to them, as well as to the mothers of America, to the country at large. This is a movement that I heartily indorse. Please accept the inclosed check to further your campaign to raise the necessary funds."

Manhattan is $38,000 below its quota of $100,000, said Mrs. Macy. She believed the needed amount would be raised this week.

After-War Problems Slighted Throughout the Extra Session About to Close.

TREATY ABSORBED SENATE

Its Inaction Hampered the House, Which Made Progress with Tariff and Railway Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The special session of the Sixty-sixth Congress, called chiefly to consider the treaty and pass department appropriation bills defeated by the Republican filibuster in the closing days of the Sixty-fifth Congress, is about to close with nothing of a constructive nature accomplished, with none of the after-war problems definitely considered. In truth, the five months have been devoted largely to the consideration of the treaty in the Senate and the passage of the held-up supply measures. Nothing in the way of legislation to deal with the big problems of labor and Bolshevism has been enacted, and the country must wait for the regular session, which will open on Dec. 1, for the deliberate disposition of the questions pressing for solution.

While most of the House Republican program has been rushed through that body, the Senate, under nominal control of the Republicans, has throttled legislation started in the lower body. The half dozen tariff bills remain unacted upon by the Senate Finance Committee as the result of the decision of that committee that there shall be no piecemeal tariff tinkering during the present Administration, and that even the inequalities of the revenue bill shall not be corrected.

The first months of the special session were taken up largely in repassing and increasing supply measures passed by the House in the previous session that were killed in the Senate by filibuster in the closing days of the Sixty-fifth session. Then the House rushed through half a dozen tariff bills increasing the duties on tungsten, manganese, surgical instruments, and glass for optical instruments, and dyestuffs on the plea that these industries that grew up during the war needed protection from German competition after the war. These the Senate has not acted upon. Aroused by protest from dye manufacturers, Senator Penrose is now struggling to force through a resolution to continue the powers of the War Trade Board until Jan. 15 to prevent German dyes from coming into this country after peace. The Republicans of the Senate yesterday refused to permit adjournment until their joint resolution had been passed.

The woman suffrage resolution was passed in the early days of the session and submitted to the Legislatures for their adoption or rejection. There is a possibility, if special sessions of the Legislatures are called in several States, that the amendment may become part of the Constitution early next year, in time for the women of the country to participate in the national elections in November, 1920.

Other controversial subjects that were disposed of were the prohibition enforcement bills. These the President vetoed, and they became laws over his veto. Attorney General Palmer has announced that the President will lift the wartime prohibition ban as soon as the treaty is disposed of, and the "wets" are hoping that there will be a wet spell before the country goes on its uninterrupted dry career with the operation of national prohibition on Jan. 16.

While the country has waited for action on constructive measures, the House has devoted itself to investigation of the conduct of the war and the Senate almost exclusively to the treaty.

The biggest matters of public concern have not been finally disposed of in this session. While the House will have passed a railroad bill that is regarded by many as ill-digested, requiring the reframing in conference, the Senate has not yet considered this piece of legislation. The country faces the return of the railroads at the end of this year with no legislation for their regulation or financing after the President releases them.

Another after-the-war problem, the upbuilding of the merchant marine, is left for consideration in the coming session, which necessarily will be short, because of the national conventions and the subsequent elections. The military and naval policies have not been decided upon, and the army and navy are losing some of their best officers by reason of the failure to provide for higher pay and reorganization of the services. While bills to reorganize the army and navy have not been reported, the committees have about agreed that the peace army shall not exceed 300,000 officers and men, and the personnel of the navy will be reduced almost to what it was before the war. Aviation will be encouraged with a large appropriation, and there is a probability that there will be an independent air service, as in other countries.

With the increasing disorders, due to undesirable aliens, in the West, and present in all industrial sections of the country, nothing definite has been done to stamp out anarchy or Bolshevism. The State Department, however, was authorized by a joint resolution to continue the war regulations on passports, which it is believed will prevent undesirable immigration until Congress can consider a bill to prohibit general immigration for two years after the war.

Nothing definite has been done to lower the high cost of living, and the land settlement bill for soldiers has not even been reported from the committee which long considered it.

The problems that faced the country with the signing of the armistice, in November, 1918, instead of settling themselves, have increased. Labor troubles have multiplied. The steel and coal strikes have occurred, and, while one has been settled technically, the resumption of mining has not been widespread.

With the treaty probably disposed of some time this week and the probability that it will be defeated in the Senate, or be rejected by the President, the country faces, in the opinion of keen observers, a period of the greatest stress and uncertainty. The only comfort obtained by those holding a pessimistic view is that Congress, even if it adjourns for ten days or two weeks, will be in session again early in December, prepared to devote itself to the questions that have been obscured by the treaty fight.

This session has passed through the twilight zone of big national problems, and they are now clearly outlined, so that all that is needed to deal with them, Congress leaders say, is courage, wisdom, and industry and a broad national policy, separated from partisan politics.

GYMNASIUM AS MEMORIAL.

New York University's Tribute to Forty Who Died in War.

A gymnasium is to be erected at University Heights by New York University as a memorial to the forty students and graduates who made the supreme sacrifice and as a tribute to the 3,000 who were in the great world war, according to an announcement made yesterday. The new building, which will cost about $200,000, is also to be the permanent headquarters of the New York University Post of the American Legion.

Chancellor Elmer E. Brown yesterday announced the names of the students to whom the four fellowships in the School of Pedagogy have been awarded. The value of each fellowship is $3,000 a year and yields the recipient $325. They are Ernest M. Best of Springfield, Mass.; Gladys G. Harris, Central City, Iowa; William Van Wyck, Los Angeles, Cal., and Katsutern Maruyama, Fukushima, Japan.

'THE DUMB MESSIAH' A THRILLING PLAY

REICHER IN LEADING ROLE

By RALPH BLOCK.

The Jewish Art Theatre, of which Emanuel Reicher is the Director, has added to its repertoire in Madison Square a play called "The Dumb Messiah," by David Pinski. This play was revealed Saturday night and will be repeated later this week, but tonight the bill will be a double one, made up of Scholem-Ash's "With the Current" and Peretz's "After Burial."

The Jewish Art Theatre has a peculiar right to indulge in drama of heroic proportions. History has yielded up few heroic traditions so much alive and at the same time so measured and tested and chastened by time as the memories grouped around Jewish survival into the with atmospheres of today. Epic heroism, the heroism of a people, is always simple, follows a vision which looks toward the most simple even if the furthest of goals. Modern heroism—because it has yet no perspective—seems compounded of many aims, and fails in the confusion of its elements to attain that stark simplicity which makes "The Dumb Messiah" passionate, vivid, and thrilling. It is hard to imagine any sophisticated modern poet at this moment making anything so powerful and impersonal as this out of the still too well remembered suffering of France and Belgium.

David Pinski's play is not the usual story of a people's deliverance from bondage. It is based upon the Messianic hope of a people who have learned to appeal higher than to the face of reality; but modern skepticism and the mounting disbelief of Jewish intelligence has not left it unscarred by bitterness. In many ways it is the tragic avowal of a poet who, with his people, has begun to doubt the Divine inheritance and the Divine mission of his own kind. It is the ancient story of deliverance, blighted by a modern distrust of the final rewards of living everywhere, a coldness toward faith that human effort ever comes to a cumulative climax of real victory.

It achieves in its ending a kind of delayed and final irony, using the pure naturalism of a woman's insanity to confound a tribal belief in supernatural intervention.

What contributes greatly to the vitality of the play at the Jewish Art Theatre is its spare method of construction, in which a few elements that are highly dramatic are allowed to take their course unimpeded by the romanticism that is habitually offered as a sop to theatregoers by most modern playwrights. Indeed, one contribution of the Jewish Art Theatre is to create at one stroke an organization and an audience together that can do without the sweetmeats of drama in their hunger for the hardy, unadorned fare of sheer human aspiration.

The scene of the drama is a fanciful kingdom, Illyria, the gates outside of the city at the time of the expulsion of the Jews. The Jews are divided as to their destination; a blind man among them murmurs of a Messiah that will lead them aright, but no Messiah has appeared to them. Into this situation is projected the ex-Chancellor of the kingdom, a Jew, released to exile after his tongue had been torn out and his body maimed. He is a commanding figure among them, and by sheer force of silent will and with the aid of his devoted daughter, who is his mouthpiece, he leads the Jews on toward Jerusalem. While they are stopping on the wide shore of a sea that lies on the way the news of the King's death is brought to them. They are bidden to return to Illyria, to all their old comforts and privileges. The conflict between a desire for a present surcease from sorrow and an aspiration toward a greater goal—the Promised Land—grows among them and becomes furious. The situation seems to be resolved, when an insane woman suddenly points to the leader and calls him the Messiah. The Jews are overjoyed by this prospect of miraculous deliverance.

This is a thrilling moment in dramatic narrative that for its sense of universal human significance has not been surpassed in the American theatre. The moment passes and succeeds to catastrophe, when in turn several men and women, even a prostitute, are pointed out by the crazed woman as the Messiah. The leader leaps from a high rock into the sea in his despair, and the curtain falls upon a people plunged anew into spiritual darkness.

Imaginative and far-reaching as this play is, it would fail of the abundance found in its performance at the Garden Theatre if the genius of Emanuel Reicher were absent from it. It is a commentary upon the blindness of American producers that an art of the theatre so robust, so sensitive, so veteran and mellowed, and withal cosmopolitan and knowing, should have to find its expression in what is, after all, off the beaten path of New York. As a production alone, "The Dumb Messiah," in its almost uncanny power of obtaining impressive and convincing crowd effects without losing composition and design, again puts Reicher in the forefront of producers in America. It may be wondered why motion picture producers have not picked him up long ago.

Observation of this play and "Lonely Lives," produced at this theatre a few weeks ago, shows that Reicher is at his best when he is dealing with great subjects—in the intimate drama of interior emotion he loses scope and thrust. But his excellence in "The Dumb Messiah" does not stop with the production. By the simplest of methods, without being able to resort to speech, he is, as the leader, the most commanding actor on the stage, achieving a nobility and even a grandeur that makes many actors of recognized classic reputation seem pallid and stilted by comparison. On this plane he could give us an unforgettable Shylock.

W. R. THORN, ILL, WED COUSIN

Rich Manufacturer Married Miss Susan Knapp, 25 Years His Junior.

William R. Thorn, twice Mayor of Cohoes, N. Y., and millionaire owner of a chain of knitting mills, showed marked improvement in his illness last night after his marriage with his first cousin, Miss Susan Thorn Knapp, which took place early Friday morning. The bride is twenty-five years younger than her husband.

Shortly after Election Day Mr. Thorn was taken suddenly ill with an attack of double pneumonia, and on Thursday night he became delirious. In spite of the fact that Miss Knapp was constantly at his bedside, he kept calling for her. The attending physician suggested that Miss Knapp marry the sick man, believing that it would have some effect in improving his condition. Miss Knapp consented to the marriage, and the ceremony was performed Friday morning by Dr. Gustave Arnold Canstenson of the Church of the Holy Rood.

MISS HELEN FLAKE TO WED.

Engaged to Thomas Emery, a Son of the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Anson.

Mrs. Albert Flake of 1 East Forty-ninth Street announces the engagement of her younger daughter, Miss Helen M. Flake, to Thomas Emery, a son of the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Anson of 6 East Sixty-eighth Street, by her first husband, the late J. J. Emery. Miss Flake, who is a member of the Junior League, was a Y. M. C. A. worker during the war, and is a sister of Mrs. Flake Manning.

Mr. Emery is a grandson of Brig. Gen. Charles T. Alexander, and his stepfather, the Hon. Alfred Anson, is a brother ofthe Earl of Lichfield. Mr. Emery was a student at the Garnies School in Norfolk, England, but returned to New York in February, 1918, and enlisted in the Marine Corps at the recruiting office in Twenty-third Street. He soon went over and among other engagements was at Château Thierry. He was severely wounded, but did not return here until several months ago. Miss Alexandra Emery is his sister and John J. Emery is a younger brother.

W. B. Haughwout Married in China

The announcement has just reached here of the marriage in Shanghai, China, on Sept. 20, in Holy Trinity Cathedral, that city, of Warrin Beach Haughwout, a son of Mrs. J. H. Haughwout of 122 West 121st Street, New York, to Miss Marian L. Brodie of Portland, Ore. They met six months ago in Shanghai, where Miss Brodie was visiting friends in the Amercian colony. Mr. Haughwout, who is the son of the late Dr. J. H. Haughwout, represents the business interests in China of a New York importing and exporting firm.

Frank Moss Has a Comfortable Day.

Frank Moss, former Assistant District Attorney, who was recently operated on in Roosevelt Hospital, spent a comfortable day yesterday. His physician, Dr. Charles H. Peck of 30 West Fiftieth Street, said, however, that while Mr. Moss was not in a dangerous condition, he would not be able to leave the hospital for about three weeks.

Miss Anne Cruger to Wed Today.

The wedding of Miss Anne Cruger, daughter of the late Mrs. James Pendleton Cruger, and Alex Paternotte, Second Secretary of the Belgian Embassy in Washington, will take place this afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker, 37 West Fifty-sixth Street. Mgr. Joseph F. Stillman of the Church of St. Albert, whom the King of the Belgians made a Knight of the Crown while here, will officiate.

Judge Lorenz Zeller Much Better.

Judge Lorenz Zeller of the City Court, who has been confined to his bed for three months with neuritis, was said last night at his home, 2,013 Madison Avenue, to be greatly improved. He is expected to be up and about in a few days. Dr. Otto M. Schwerdtferger of 54 East Fifty-eighth Street is the physician in charge of the case.

SAMUEL STERN APPEARS.

Baritone Sings Songs of Sentiment, Pathos, and Humor with Zest.

Samuel Stern, who was with the British air forces, it is said, and before enlisting had sung in Italy, England and South Africa, made his appearance at the Princess yesterday in a program of baritone songs of sentiment, pathos, humor, all sung with hearty zest as among men in the open, and by a man keenly alive to his texts, which he gave with a diction as clear as it was musical. There was wide range of airs, some exaggeration of manner and facial expression, but the deep voice sounded no mere matinée passion in Fielitz's translated ("Eiliand") cycle, or a Hebrew lament, Mana Zucca's "Rachem," or the new setting by C. G. Spross of Colonel MacRae's "In Flanders Fields."

Mr. Spross's war piece has a fine outburst midway in its recital of the dead, who lived, felt, "loved and were loved," and the singer threw genuine feeling into the fervent line. Already Mr. Sousa's version of the same poem has been heard here, and a third setting, by Josef Hofmann, is on George Harris's program in the current week.

BRITISH NAVAL MEN AT PLAY.

Officers of the Renown and Constance See "The Magic Melody."

Officers and men of the two British battleships, Renown and Constance, last night filled the Shubert Theatre to overflowing at a performance of the musical comedy, "The Magic Melody," given in their honor. The performance was given through the courtesy of the Shuberts and Wilner and Romberg, producers of "The Magic Melody," and was arranged by the Stage Women's War Relief.

In addition to the British naval men, officers and men on the American ships escorting them also were present. Boxes were occupied by Admiral Hughes, Frederick Watson, the British Consul; Admiral Glennon, commandant of the Third Naval District; Captain R. R. Belnap of the U. S. S. Delaware, and others.

Many well-known actresses acted as ushers, and an address of welcome was made by Rachel Crothers, President of the Stage Women's War Relief.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Nov. 16.—Duke Kung, seventy-fourth lineal descendant of Confucius, has died. Posthumous honors will be conferred. The President has also awarded $1,000 for the funeral expense. This dukedom is the only hereditary dukedom in China.

C. F. Kung, Chinese delegate to the Paris Conference, is the seventy-fifth descendant and succeeds to the title.

Barrett-Stevens Wedding Wednesday

The marriage of Miss Edna Stevens, who arrived on Friday from her San Francisco home, to Charles Barrett of Bellevue, Pa., Captain of the Cornell football team when Ithaca defeated Harvard at football in 1915, will take place at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Treat, 800 West Eighty-sixth Street, on Wednesday. The engagement was announced on the arrival of Miss Stevens, who is the daughter of Mrs. Maryanne Stevens and sister of Mrs. C. R. E. Ackerman of San Francisco. Mr. Barrett is the son of the late Charles Barrett. He was graduated from Cornell in 1915.

Forbes-Robertson to Read in Church

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the English actor, is expected to officiate as Scriptural reader soon at one of the short Sunday afternoon services at St. George's Episcopal Church. George Gaul, who appeared last season in the stage version of the "Book of Job," read the lesson at yesterday's vesper service. The services are from 4 to 5 o'clock, and beside the reading, consist of music and a discussion of some current topic by the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland.

Only a Story.

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

He wrote short stories.
Stories about The Funeral Church.
And about Frank E. Campbell.
"He cannot do it," some said. "Nobody yet attempted anything like it."
"There is no precedent to judge by," said the others. "How do we know whether or not they are good?"
The people began to read them, study them.
Some examined his pen: it was the same pen they used.
Then they examined the ink; just ordinary writing ink.
Others carefully examined the penholder and the pencil.
When they could not thus solve the mystery they scrutinized the paper.
This, too, did not reveal the secret of the success.
"Is it possible that he is merely telling the truth?" one asked.
"Do you think he puts his heart in his writing?" inquired another.
"Can The Funeral Church truly be an inspiration?" still another said.
Then they decided to go and investigate.

Raise the Price? Well!
What's the Present Cost?

IN these days of sudden jumps in the cost of labor and materials, it is a wise executive who knows his cost records. They are his insurance against heavy sales-losses due to rapidly changing conditions.

To keep fully primed on costs is not difficult, as many executives think, but exceedingly simple, through such an easily worked system of visible card-records as the RAND. Using Rand, costs are more quickly compiled and you have all the recorded costs at your fingers' ends—where you can refer to them in the twinkling of an eye.

No fumbling through old record cards in a blind file; no hesitancy and costly delay about "where to look." The eye finds the facts in a second—and the decision can be made just so much more easily and quickly. Your profits depend on controlling costs, and what you can't see you can't control.

The Rand Visible Card-Records can help YOU in your work,—whether it be in Cost Records, Sales Promotion, Labor Control, Inventories or Production Records.

DECISION MAY FREE 5,000 CONVICTS HERE

Justice Cropsey's Ruling, if Sustained, Would Release Many Prisoners at Once.

HOLDS LAW RETROACTIVE

Conflicts With Justice Tompkins's Decision and Case May Go to Higher Court.

A decision by Supreme Court Justice Cropsey in Brooklyn on Saturday concerning the amended provision of the penal law, enacted May 5, 1919, entitled "Calculating Term of Imprisonment," may be submitted to the Court of Appeals because of its conflict with the decision by Justice Tompkins at Mount Vernon on Nov. 5. Should the highest court sustain the ruling of Justice Cropsey the result would be the immediate legal discharge thereafter of some 5,000 convicts in the prisons of the State.

The case before Justice Cropsey was a habeas corpus proceeding, brought in behalf of Frank Gabriel, sentenced to one year in the penitentiary by Judge Lewis J. Smith of Nassau County, L. I. The writ reached Justice Cropsey after Gabriel had sought for a mandamus from another court to compel Governor Smith to show upon what information he based his refusal to grant clemency. The prisoner had been sentenced on March 1, two months before the new amendment became legally effective, and he contended in his appeal that the law was retroactive, and that he was entitled to his freedom now because of the time he had served in jail before his sentence.

The law reads: "Any time spent by a person convicted of a crime in a prison or jail prior to his conviction and before sentence has been pronounced upon him shall become and be calculated as part of the term of the sentence imposed upon him, whether such sentence is an indeterminate one or for a definite period of time; and such time shall, in addition to the time allowed for good conduct and earned as compensation, be deducted from the term of the sentence so imposed."

Justice Cropsey ruled that the law was retroactive and applied to all prisoners now in the institutions of the State. The court said:

"There is no reason why the statute should not be given full effect, and why it should not apply to all convicts. Its language permits such a holding. Humanity dictates it. It is a beneficent statute and should not receive a strained, restricted or unnatural construction. The interests of justice require that its plain language be given its full and fair meaning."

Justice Cropsey did not order the release of the prisoners, but directed that he make application to the Parole Board. In a similar action before Justice Tompkins, brought by F. J. Hand, an inmate of Sing Sing Prison, serving a sentence of seven to thirteen years for homicide, the writ was dismissed. Hand claimed commutation of he sentence to the extent of thirteen months, which, he said represented the time he was held in the Tombs Prison her before trial and sentence.

NEGROES TO START A BANK.

Harlem Meeting Subscribes $10,000 Toward Institution.

Plans for the establishment of a bank for negroes in New York were discussed at a meeting of business men of the race in Lafayette Hall, Harlem, last evening. Augustus Duncan, the originator of the idea, presided, and preliminary funds to the amount of $10,000 were subscribed.

The bank as proposed is to be capitalized for $1,000,000, and to be situated in Harlem. A committee of twenty-five, headed by Junius M. Green, was chosen to proceed with the campaign for subscribers. It was also decided to form a business corporation to stimulate trade by negroes between the United States and the West Indies and South America. Those in charge of the two projects stated that they are acting independently of any existing negro organization.

Man Drops Dead in Street.

A well-dressed unidentified man, about 60 years old, dropped dead last night at the corner of Church and Fulton Streets. He was taken to the Old Slip Police Station by Dr. Curtis of Volunteer Hospital, who said death was due to heart failure. It was found that he had $20 in his pocket, together with a watch and some keys.

Experience Counts!

Have you named an expert to manage your estate?

"WILL the money I leave be properly handled?" Through a lifetime's labor most men have this problem in mind. But their efforts are often heavily discounted by failing to provide in advance for the wise handling of the money they leave.

The instances given below illustrate what often happens when money is left in inexperienced hands.

1. In a recent daily paper we read, An inventory of the estate of Mrs. "C-C" filed today discloses that at the time of her death she held $210,250 in stocks and $62,286 in bonds, all of which are now considered worthless. Most of these are mining securities.

2. Some years ago, Mr. "R"—a New England mechanical engineer died. To his wife he left a large block of stock in a traction company which was then paying handsome dividends. Some years later economic conditions forced the traction company into the hands of a receiver, and threw Mrs. "R's" support upon her two sons.

3. In 1910, a Connecticut lawyer left his widow some $50,000 in securities which at that time combined ready negotiability with good interest rate. But security values do fluctuate. And no expert eye was watching the intrinsic value of these issues. Result? Today a decreased income coupled with increased costs are forcing this woman to unaccustomed and niggardly economies.

No man, we assume, wishes to fail deliberately in properly safeguarding his family's future welfare. With the serious consequences of such failure constantly coming before us, we feel that we may take the friendly liberty of suggesting an early discussion of—

A COLUMBIA TRUST FUND
for safeguarding the money you leave

The plan is this:

1. A Columbia Trust Fund is simply money set aside under the protection of the Columbia Trust Company and invested to provide periodical income for definite objects. All such investments are passed on by our Board of Directors' permanent Committee on Investments.

2. Life insurance or any other money may be used to form the Trust Fund. We are bound by written agreement to carry out your wishes definitely and absolutely.

3. We will make investments of the Trust Fund for you in such securities as are lawful for Trustees, or, if you perfer, you can give us definite instructions to follow.

4. Income from the Trust Fund will be paid in installments to whom you wish and when you wish and in the amount you wish.

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

A Young Hunter

This bright young Cree boy has just shot his first bear, and though hardly grown up he feels himself every inch a man. "Carrying coals to Newcastle"

¶ From a superficial viewpoint it may seem like "carrying coals to Newcastle" for a Philadelphia clothier to sell clothing to residents of New York City, itself an important clothing center, but our experience demonstrates two practical reasons why we are justified in inviting your business.

¶ First—Many shrewd New Yorkers realize that Philadelphia, with its lower overhead charges, can assure a decided saving in price to the consumer.

¶ Second—Our close and intimate relations with several of the largest and best clothing makers enable us to provide a bountiful assortment of high-class garments even in these days of scarcity.

¶ These are decided and positive advantages in dealing with Reed's of Philadelphia—the advantage of plentiful selection from a choice assortment of clothing, and the advantage of saving in the purchase price.

SEE MANY DANGERS IN CITY OWNERSHIP

Wilcox Committee Cites Politics and Inefficiency as Likely to Grow Up.

DEBT LIMIT AN OBSTACLE

CONSIDERS THE ZONE PLAN

Declares Rapid Transit to be a Necessity That Must Be Constantly Provided.

A report dealing with the difficulties confronting private ownership of traction lines and the obstacles in the way of public ownership and operation has just been completed by a committee of thirty-four citizens headed by Delos F. Wilcox. The majority of the committee, if not all of them, are champions of the municipal ownership idea, but manifold obstructions in the path of carrying the idea into effect so far as it relates to traction lines are outlined.

The present dfificulty in the continuation of private operations of the lines is purely financial, which the companies unite in saying can be overcome by higher fares. But the obstacles that must be surmounted or removed before municipal ownership can become effective cover practically every question that public officials have to face, and others which never arise except at rare intervals. No attempt is made in the report to minimize these obstacles. They are presented in bald statements, separated into chapters, and each chapter is introduced by a summary of its subject.

Among these obstacles are the lack of power on the part of the city to acquire the lines, which situation would need legislation to overcome; the impracticability of any voluntary agreement with the companies on a purchase price which would be of advantage to the city; the city's constitutional debt limit; lack of authority on the part of the city to operate transit lines; the danger of increasing the present civil list to such a number that might lead to an organization which under the control of political leadership would threaten the public welfare; the danger that public operation would become unduly burdensome upon the taxpayers from an overextension of the lines and from other causes.

In analyzing the situation the report goes back to the threatened strike on the steam railroads in 1916 and the rapid upward march of the costs of living, and materials, followed by the increase in wages. This condition, reaching the traction lines, tied to an inflexible fare, made it clear, according to the report, that the companies could not live unless some way could be found by which they might transfer the increased financial burdens to the fare-paying or the tax-paying public. It is stated that the prevention of strikes must be considered as part of a general program covering the whole subject of street railway service.

Auto a Large Competitor.

It is pointed out that, besides the burdens of increased costs with a fixed fare, the companies have also had to stand a loss of traffic through the widespread use of the automobile. In this city, it is stated, the transit service represents a book cost of a billion dollars, the lines carry two billion passengers a year, and the people pay annually in local car fares $100,000,000. In smaller cities, the report says, street car service is less important, and a temporary cessation of the service can be cared for in other ways.

"In New York," the report reads, "with its great distances and its enormous volume of traffic, the results of a complete suspension of street car and rapid transit service for a single working day would be disastrous."

Speaking of the competition of motor vehicles with the car service, the report referred to a statement made by an investigating committee of the Massachusetts Legislature a year ago, which estimated that private automobiles, exclusive of jitneys, reduced the income of the traction lines in that State 12 per cent., and that, "applied to the entire country in proportion to the total urban population, this Massachusetts estimate would indicate that about $70,000,000 a year was taken away from the street cars by private automobiles."

In this city alone, it is stated, the item would be ten to twelve millions of dollars every year figured on this basis. Then the report reads:

"If to the competition of private automobiles is to be added the competition of jitneys and public autobuses, the effect upon the financial condition of the street railways will be very serious indeed. In some communities it has already become clear that the street railways and the jitneys cannot live together and pay their way."

The report refers to the $250,000,000 which this city is to spend for rapid transit lines. The existing lines, it says, are owned by nearly sixty companies and were operated by about thirty-five companies prior to the partial disintegration of the surface line systems of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the New York Railways companies. Because of this separation of interests, it is pointed out, the service-at-cost plan adopted in Cleveland, Montreal, Boston, and Cincinnati could not be adopted here. It is said that to be successful the plan must be applied to a unified system. The report adds that it is very doubtful whether an increase in the fare would serve to furnish the requisite relief. A zoning system, it says, might better serve the needs of the companies.

Accepting the figures of the Interborough Rapid Transit and the New York Railways companies as accurate, the wage increase in March, 1919, represented an increased cost of 81-100 of a cent per revenue passenger on the subway and surface lines, and the later rise of 25 per cent. in the wage scale brought the cost up to about a cent and a half per revenue passenger. It is suggested that one-man cars would bring the operating cost down and that other costs might be decreased by the establishment of super-power stations at the coal mines, a matter which it is said is now receiving the attention of the British Government.

Must Earn $24,000,000 a Year.

"To make the entire transit system of the city self-sustaining," the report says, "with the dual sytem in full operation, it will be necessary for the street railway traffic to earn about $24,000,000 a year in additional fixed charges besides the increased cost of operating and maintaining the additional facilities."

The report says that the tax burdens of the local transit lines are upwards of $8,000,000 a year, and with paving and other franchise obligations added the amount is at least $10,000,000. Increases in fare do not mean a comparative increase in income, it is said, and there appears to be a limit to the price which can be charged for a ride on a public car.

Under the assumption that the continuation and further development of transit service in the city is essential to the public welfare, and if the difficulties in the way of future success of private ownership and operation are seen to be inseparable, "we are driven," the report says, "to the conclusion that public ownership and operation furnish the only solution of the problem." Then the report leaves the present and dips into the future in order to point out the path necessary to follow to the end that public ownership may become a fact.

Concerning the obstacle presented by the legal debt limit, the report points out that so closely has the city been hugging the limit that there have been doubts whether the city has not actually assumed obligations in violation of the Constitution. It refers to the policy of pushing up real estate valuations a few hundred millions occasionally, and says it would be impracticable to repeat this process on a large scale in the present condition of the real estate market. Reference is made to the Boston plan of operating the elevated railway in that city by a Board of Trustees, while private ownership is continued, and the statement appears that this plan has not proved popular. It is suggested that some modification of this plan might be feasible here. But even such a plan as this, it is pointed out, would require legislative sanction.

The report says one of the strongest objections to municipal ownership in the minds of many has been the fear that it would be impossible to keep the administration of public-owned lines out of politics, with the result that extravagance and inefficiency would ensue. "Certainly," the report continues, "the appointment of political hangers-on to lucrative jobs in connection with the operation of municipal utilities is an evil to be feared and avoided."

Doubt is expressed as to the efficiency of the civil service to provide competent employes because of the fact that such employes are so sure of always keeping their jobs that they are apt to become lazy and inefficient.

"The city," says the report, "has already about 85,000 people on its regular payrolls. The transit lines of New York have approximately 40,000 regular employes. If all these employes were taken into the public service they would constitute a more or less compact block, with considerable political possibilities. It is conceivable that in a close election, where issues in which the municipal traction employes had a special interest, even in a minor way, this block of votes might hold the balance of power and be cast in such a way as to determine the policies of the city, not merely with respect to street railway matters, but with respect to other matters of grave importance.

Danger in Public Employes.

"It is well known that certain groups of public employes are now banded together for the purpose of influencing elections and legislation for the advancement of their particular interests. Organizations of firemen, policemen, and school teachers are well known in the legislative halls at the State capitol and candidates for Congress do not always ignore the existence of the letter-carrier vote. It is likely that the recent doubling of the electorate in New York, through the extension of the suffrage to women, will tend to neutralize the power of any particular group of voters so that New York might be able in the future safely to absorb into the body of the electorate twice as many municipal employes as it has had to absorb in the past."

In conclusion, the report says that all of the obstacles in the path of municipal ownership of the city's railway lines could be overcome with comparative ease, providing the legislators united in a proper effort for the purpose.

The members of the committee, besides Mr. Wilcox, were:

It is explained that the report was first prepared by Mr. Wilcox and submitted to the other members of the committee for criticism and suggestion, that the first draft had been revised so that in its present form it meets with the approval of the entire committee.

Mark Drops Fifty Points; Lowest Value Since Armistice

COBLENZ, Nov. 15, (Associated Press.)—The German mark dropped 50 points today, and reached its lowest value since the decline after the armistice. Several banks today paid 430 marks for 100 French francs. The quotation on Friday was 380 marks for 100 francs.

The bankers of Coblenz expressed today their discouragement over the financial prospects of the Government, but declined to make any predictions as to the future. The American army official rate for marks during November is 333 marks for 100 francs.

NEW ZONE PLAN HAS TEST.

Jersey City Lines Reported Undisturbed by Changed System.

The installation of the new zone fare in Jersey City, which went into effect after midnight Saturday, caused no disorder or disturbance yesterday except at Kearny.

Twenty passengers leaving a Jersey City line car refused to pay for the first zone after transferring. The passengers declared that the 1 cent paid for the transfer entitled them to ride for the first zone, but the conductor told them they would have to pay for the first zone, under the new system, and that the penny they paid was for the privilege of transferring. The passengers refused to pay the additional fare and left the car.

John O'Toole, assistant to Thomas McCarter, President of the Public Service Railway Company, said that they had received no reports of any trouble resulting from the new zone fare system, and only minor cases had been reported to them over the transfer system. He said that the volume of traffic yesterday was about the same as last Sunday.

EX-FIGHTERS SEEKING JOBS.

Hundreds Apply in Week at Office of Employment Bureau.

The Re-Employment Bureau for Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines of 500 Pearl Street yesterday made public this list of men who applied for jobs last week:

One hundred and eighty-three office clerks, fifteen electricians, sixteen pipe fitters and plumbers, fifty bookkeepers, twenty-four accountants, eleven private secretaries, ninty-eight chauffeurs, thirty-three teamsters, eleven trainmen, one chemist, fourteen advertising men, eighty-one experienced salesmen, twenty-three inexperienced salesmen, 103 sales clerks, ninety-seven shipping stock clerks and packers, fifty-nine helpers and handy men, seventy-one apprentices, fifteen college graduates eager to learn some business, 158 laborers, eleven cooks and chefs, seven garment workers, ten shipyard laborers, twenty-three machinists, six elevator operators, one vocal teacher, two photographers, seventeen firemen and oilers, three shoemakers, nine printers and pressmen, five sales managers, one linguist, one motion picture operator, two real estate men, seventeen typists, five civil engineers, one investment manager, four iron workers, eight painters, one surveyor, three traffic men, two mechanical engineers, and one auditor.

There are also registered many men who, because of the nature of their injuries, are unable to return to their former work, or who require specialized jobs suitable to their capacities.

PAN GERMANS RALLY AROUND HINDENBURG

CALLS IT TURN OF TIDE

Socialists Call Great Mass Meetings—Junker Success in East Prussian Election.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—Hindenburg arrived in Berlin a few days ago to attend before the commission in due course. He was received at the station by a special guard of honor and applauding crowd—the one all unknown to Noske and the other in defiance of his orders. The Pan Germans naturally are rampant and are making the best of such a great opportunity. They go in crowds to Hindenburg's house, and he makes nice little speeches from a balcony. He visits his old regiment and inspects the cadets. There is a Pan German chorus in attendance to sing "Deutschland Ueber Alles" and "Watch on the Rhine." Thereafter Hindenburg declares he is duly thankful.

It was presumed today that being in a motor car he was going to the sitting of the parliamentary commission of inquiry into causes of America's entry into the war. So the Pan German crowd stopped his car and declared and shouted that he must not degrade himself by appearing before the commision. There were shouts, "Down with the commission," "Down with this government of Jews," "Down with the revolution," and long live the Kaiser and Hindenburg and, incidentally, Ludendorff as well, for no other reason than that he happened to be passing with Count Westarp, the fiery old Junker leader.

Hindenburg thanked the crowd "for their ovation," and ordered his chauffeur to drive home.

True, the demonstrators were mainly students and school children, but still the Pan German press is representing these farcical outbursts as the evidence of a turn of the political tide in their favor. Schoolmasters, hungering for revenge for the removal of portraits of the Kaiser, Hindenburg, and others from the schoolrooms, have allowed the children to leave their books to go to cheer Hindenburg. Noske hurls a ukase against these youngsters, while he says nothing to the military personages who order the guards of honor and get up receptions for beaten war lords.

The Pan Germans last night broke up a meeting at which Erzberger was to have spoken and at numerous demonstrations of very provocative character supporters of the Government have been badly mishandled. Naturally, the conservative press is jubilant over such exhibitions, which, to quote the Deutsche Zeitung, show "the national spirit is still alive" and the revolutionary spirit is ebbing.

Hindenburg is staying at Helfferich's house, and the military authorities are doing the Field Marshal the honor of keeping sentries before the doors of the residence.

The Majority Socialist Party has called three great meetings for tomorrow "to show that the great massess of workers are determined to defend the republic and democratic freedom by all possible means."

"The school and police authorities appear to be asleep," says the manifesto. "We will waken them up."

In this evening's Vorwärts Scheidemann is both alarmed and anxious. "The enemy stands on the right," he heads his article in which he asks where the soldiers are. Tomorrow, he adds, the Social Democrats will speak and tomorrow the Government must act. He regards the situation as having developed into a life and death struggle for democracy.

The Pan Germans are rejoicing, too, over the results in the Landtag elections in East Prussia by which forty-eight representatives of the reactionary parties have been returned and thirty-four members of the Government parties.

In the Prussian Assembly the Pan Germans today created considerable disturbance. Where was this boasted new freedom, they asked, if they could not honor the great Hindenburg and demonstrate against the Government? Prime Minister Hirsch and Herr Heine, Minister of the Interior, read the Pan Germans a severe lesson, and promised them that if they asked for employment of force they would have it in full measure.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—Barbed wire barricades thrown across the Wilhelmstrasse and other important thoroughfares tonight prevented further demonstrations aroused by Field Marshal von Hindenburg's presence in Berlin. This is the first time this step, which frequently has been taken against Spartacides, has been taken against monarchists.

Following three student demonstrations over Hindenburg, the Government has announced vigorous measures in the future to prevent a repetition.

SEES HOPE FOR LORD ASTOR

Daily Chronicle Writer Thinks House Will Pass Renunciation Bill.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, Nov. 17.—The Parliamentary correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says he understands that the bill which is to be brought into the House of Commons for the purpose of enabling Lord Astor to avoid succession to the House of Lords will not be a private one, although it will be introduced by a private member.

It is intended to give general powers of renunciation of succession to the House of Lords by conferring the right of option of sitting in the other House, if one is elected to it.

There is little doubt, the correspondent adds, that if facilities are given it will pass the House of Commons. Whether the Peers will be inclined to consider the project in the same light as the Commons is another matter.

THREATEN STRIKE IN TURIN.

Workers Demand Employers Drop Fines—Ultimatum by Editors.

TURIN, Nov. 15.—Workmen of this city are threatening a general strike, to be made effective after the general election unless employers recede from the position they took in attempting to fine the workers for ceasing work on Nov. 7 to celebrate the anniversary of the Russian revolution.

The workmen, denied a holiday on Nov. 4 to celebrate the Italian victory, refused to work on Nov. 7. The employers thereupon decided to levy a fine of 25 per cent. on the wages of the workers, acting under regulations which had been mutually agreed upon.

NAPLES, Nov. 15.—The editors of the newspapers here have issued an ultimatum to the printers who are on strike, saying that unless they resume work within twenty-four hours nonunion men will be employed.

The opinion is that the printers will continue their strike.

Germany to Help Support Soldiers and Sailors After They Quit Service

BERLIN, Nov. 15 (Associated Press).—The Volks-Zeitung, the Tageblatt's Social Democratic partner, prints a comprehensive report of what will be done to assure the economic future of the army and navy as determined by a conference between President Ebert, the German Chancellor, the Finance and Defense Ministers, and the chiefs of the army and navy.

Army and navy volunteers will not take up the service as a life calling, but when discharged will still be supported by the Government as they resume civilian life. This support will compare favorably with the wages of skilled workers in civilian callings. The men's wages during the period of service will consist of money and food, the money wage approximating the average wage of labor and being graded according to age and length of service, so that a young recruit will receive the pay of a young laborer, and the old soldier the pay of an experienced worker.

Further, the men will be supplied with service and civilian clothes, sufficient nourishing food and medical treatment, assurance against accident and graded instruction, and finally with equipment and paraphernalia for athletics.

When transferring from the service to civilian life the men will have the option of advanced training, or money and supplies until a position can be secured.

On the other hand, officers will serve virtually for life. As they volunteer to serve for twenty-five years, they may not leave the service before the expiration of that time with claims for support, but must by their service earn the right to assistance, such as a pension or other financial arrangement. In case they are obliged to leave the service an allowance will be made for clothing, weapons and housing.

The Government is convinced that a national defense organization of 100,000 men and a naval personnel of 15,000 must be retained, with the best equipment, as a protection against external aggression and for internal order and safety.

For the betterment of the present economic position of the troops the following measures have been decided upon. Their evening meal will be improved, so far as available food can be obtained; the daily rations will be increased, the necessary money for 80,000 uniforms will be raised; the wages of married soldiers and sailors will be increased by a bonus of 200 marks, and 200 additional for each child. Married couples, living separately, will receive additional bonuses.

GERMAN ROYALISTS THRIVE IN THE HAGUE

NEW DIPLOMATS ARRIVING

French Minister Would Be the One to Enter the Allies' Demand for Kaiser's Extradition.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 15.—The strenuous Hague diplomacy of wartime is fast undergoing a conversion into peacetime, dinner-table, golf-club diplomacy, and representatives of almost every country are being replaced by diplomats who have been in close touch with home political circles and the new post-war policy of their respective countries.

Thus the recent arrival of the new French Minister, Charles Benoist, who, it was incorrectly rumored, would carry a demand for the extradition of the ex-Kaiser in his pocket, has inaugurated the peace-time metamorphosis. Should, however, the demand for delivery be made, M. Benoist will undoubtedly be the man to present it.

Sir Walter Townly, who was announced in the Spring of 1917 as "the strong man," and who was to handle little Holland with high hand, has been replaced by Sir Ronald Graham, who has been in the British Foreign Office the last few years in an advisory capacity.

The United States is at present represented by a Chargé d'Affaires in Mott Gunther and former Minister John Garrett will not return to The Hague.

New Ministers are also arriving for Belgium, Japan, and other countries, and it is stated on good authority that Germany's strong war diplomat, Dr. Rosen, who replaced the then so-called conciliatory von Kühlmann, will now in turn be replaced by Count Oberndorff. Oberndorff belongs to the conservative wing of the German Catholic Party and considerable importance is attached to the fact that he married an influential Dutch diplomat's daughter. Thus Germany will be in a better position to carry on the constant spreading of her economic tentacles over all her neighbor. Probably the nomination recalls Bismarck's saying, "We must have Holland, but we can only get it by intermarriage and friendship."

The German Socialist press has issued many attacks on the German legation in The Hague for its monarchical tendency and lack of democratic spirit. During the year following the revolution and armistice no changes have been made in this so-called republican legation which is known to be in constant touch with exiled ex-royalties. These republicans are not, however, able to live in the same style as formerly owing to the financial stress of the times. The great ovations and scenes which took place when von Hindenburg arrived in Berlin and afterward at his house are only fresh signs of the lack of deep-rooted republican feelings in Germany which will sooner or later find expression.

I learn from an indisputable source that Clemenceau, so hated in the Netherlands for what they call his unconciliatory spirit, is expected to visit Holland in January.

SAYS FIREMEN QUIT UNION.

Jersey City Commissioner Reports Rapid Decline of Organization.

Commissioner of Public Safety Charles F. X. O'Brien of Jersey City said last night that since he began a drastic shakeup in the Fire Department, charging that it had become demoralized since the firemen became unionized, the men had started to "run from under" and that there was now manifest in the ranks a desire to get out of the organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

He declared that a number of men had tendered their resignations and had expressed themselves as sorry they had joined the union. He added that there had been a misapprehension as to the attitude of the City Commissioners, and that while it was true that they did consent some time ago to the firemen joining an independent national organization sympathetic with the union idea in general, they did not approve the recent forming of a chartered organization affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Inasmuch as none of the firemen is talking publicly since the Commissioner began his attacks upon their alleged demoralization and insubordination, no reply could be got to his statement that the men were deserting the union.

CARGO RATES GO UP.

Scarcity of Ships in South America Due to Coal Strike.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A sudden rise in freight rates from Buenos Aires, due to a temporary scarcity of steamers, is reported in advices to the Department of Commerce. Grain shippers are offering greatly advanced rates for steamers loading in January and February.

Scarcity of steamers in South American ports is a natural result of the congested condition of American harbors brought on by the coal strike and the order borbidding the bunkering of foreign ships, according to Shipping Board officials. But with the adjustment of the coal situation in prospect and the resulting increased flow of vessels to South America freight rates will shortly become normal, officials of the board assert.

HELFFERICH STILL DEFIANT AT INQUIRY

Ex-Vice Chancellor Pays Fine, but Refuses to Answer Deputy Cohen.

ACCUSES HIM OF TREASON

Says He Took Money from Bolsheviki and Brought About Army's Collapse with It.

BERLIN, Nov. 15, (Associated Press.)—Dr. Karl Helfferich, former German Vice Chancellor, who was fined today 300 marks for refusing to answer a question at the inquiry of the subcommittee of the Assembly in war responsibility, counted out the money and placed it on the table.

Deputy Gothein replaced Herr Wermuth as Chairman, the latter having declared his disagreement with the committee's decision. The new Chairman became enraged at the ensuing demonstration by the spectators, and threatened to exclude the newspaper men and others if there was a repetition.

Deputy Cohen, who was the cause of the imposition of the fine, asked Dr. Helfferich his reasons for the snub. The former Vice Chancellor charged the leader of the Independent Socialists with having accepted funds from Joffe, the Russian Bolshevist propagandist, with which the radicals had carried on their propaganda, resulting in the "melting" of the front and general internal collapse. He declared he could not recognize Cohen, out of patriotic motives.

"You can prosecute me to the limit," he added, "but no power one earth can force me to answer Cohen."

Deputy Cohen denied the charges and bitterly attacked Helfferich's Pan German agitation. He accused him of being responsible for the German breakdown.

After further accusations the session adjourned, the Chairman explaining that the sitting was for investigation, not recriminations.

The sub-committee will devote the next forty-eight hours to devising some means of forcing Dr. Helfferich into answering Deputy Cohen or persuading Cohen to desist in his cross-examination of the refractory witness.

Even if the latter concession is made, Helfferich, in the light of today's proceedings, will continue to boycott Cohen. He will, he says, persist in his hostile attitude toward the sitting, which he has designated as "a strange admixture of prosecuting court and parliamentary commission," adding, "While I am an equally strange combination of witness and accused, from the very first moment I was made to feel myself accused."

Deputy Cohen placed the sub-committee in a predicament when he shouted, "For me, Helfferich is an accused person, not a witness!"

May Adjourn Investigation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 15 (via Copenhagen).—It is more than doubtful whether the National Convention Committee prying into peace responsibilities will resume its investigation Monday, and its failure to do so will mean a tactical victory of the reactionary element brought on by Dr. Karl Helfferich's refusal to continue his testimony yesterday afternoon.

It is clear Helfferich acted on a preconcerted plan when yesterday he provoked Minister David to use language casting doubt on German diplomacy's loyalty toward President Wilson, to which Bethmann Hollweg and Zimmermann replied in most exaggerated terms. Even then Helfferich threatened to leave the witness stand. His reactionary friends dissuaded him during the intermission, because they considered the occasion inopportune after both Bethmann Hollweg and Zimmermann had tactlessly referred to former Ambassador Gerard for a good character as to their honesty and loyalty.

However, the reactionary elements decided in any circumstances to prevent Hindenburg and Ludendorff from being subjected to what they considered an undignified examination and Helfferich used the first opportunity today for another provocation which led to a sudden termination of the session.

Yesterday's demonstrators in front of the Reichstag building were compelled to return home. It is known that the reactionaries will continue their obstruction on Monday if the committee insists upon hearing Hindenburg, which may cause a most dangerous situation. The authorities will decide between now and Monday whether it will not be wiser to adjourn the investigation for a week or two.

Some Talk of Duke of Teck or Duke d'Abruzzi for Throne.

VIENNA, Nov. 15, (Associated Press.)—A Budapest dispatch to the Abend lists seven nominees for the Hungarian throne.

The Legitimists, according to the dispatch, have divided into two groups, one of which favors the return of Charles Hapsburg and the other favors Prince Otto.

Other groups, recognizing the allied mandate against the House of Hapsburg, advance Crown Prince Charles of Rumania, the Duke d'Abruzzi, and the Duke of Teck.

French Authorities on Border Restore Service to Them.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—The German customs service on the western border began at noon today, according to a dispatch to the Vossische Zeitung from Coblenz, the French customs authorities having given up the service.

The French, according to the newspaper, have collected customs totalling 6,113,000 marks.

Mrs. Smith's Condition Unchanged.

The condition of Mrs. Catherine Smith, mother of Governor Smith, who is ill with pneumonia at her home, 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn, was reported last night as unchanged. Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, State Health Commissioner, was in consultation yesterday with the family physician, Dr. John M. Reb. Governor Smith is remaining at his mother's home.

YUDENITCH RESIGNS; ESTHONIAN IS CHIEF

HIS FORCES HARD PRESSED

Occupation of Omsk by Bolsheviki Is Denied by Russian General in Stockholm.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—General Yudenitch has resigned the command of the Russian Northwestern Army, according to a special dispatch to The Daily Mail from Helsingfors. General Laidoner, Commander in Chief of the Esthonian Army, has succeeded him.

It is said that the change is not connected with the failure of his offensive, the object being to avoid internment of Yudenitch's army on entering Esthonia.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 16, (Associated Press,) (Russian.)—General Yudenitch, commander of the Russian Northwestern Army, is retreating hurriedly from Yamburg in the direction of Narva, on the Gulf of Finland.

According to latest advices, some of his troops have already entered the Esthonian lines.

The Esthonian authorities announce their intention of disarming the Yudenitch forces. There is a rumor that Yudenitch has resigned his command, but that is not confirmed.

45,000 Reds in Attack.

By ARTHUR E. COPPING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NARVA, Nov. 14.—A few miles to the east of this base of the Northwest Russian army Yudenitch's forces are now withstanding an onslaught of 45,000 Reds.

Partly, perhaps, because of faulty generalship, but mainly because of growing enemy pressure in the northwest, the Russians have long been giving ground until now they are back of Yamburg, the starting point for the late campaign against Petrograd.

For three days the stubborn contest for Yamburg continued. While this desperate battle was going on Yudenitch issued an order informing his army that they had no alternative but to fight to the death, for the possibility of retreat further westward into Esthonia was denied them. It is the unfortunate fact that the only bond between the Esthonians and Northwest Russians is common antagonism to the lawless and desolating operation of Bolshevism. For the rest the Esthonians fear that if they were victorious the Northwest Russians would deny Esthonia the independence she covets, while on their side the Russians are apt to be contemptuous of the Esthonians and their self-centred localism.

This situation and these sentiments account for the fact that the Esthonians are not being prepared to allow Yudenitch's forces in armed fighting trim to cross the Narova River westward from Russia proper into their new State of Esthonia.

With Yamberg lost there remains little in swamp or lake and other water defenses of Narva-Narova-Lake Peipus line, for frost has set in and the troops find no difficulty in crossing the frozen pools.

A few hours ago a Russian armored train ran across the recently mended bridge and brilliantly raided the Red lines. Some of the steel spans of the bridge had been imperfectly fixed and sagged several feet out of the horizontal, but the train came safely back.

Esthonia's denial of asylum to the heroic but heavily outnumbered Northwest Russian Army follows upon her none too hospitable attitude toward thousands of destitute Russian refugees who recently escaped from Bolshevism and have been pathetically petitioning for food and shelter and safety.

And still the Northwest Russians hope Esthonia may yet rise to the height of the great and tragic occasion and may justify her claim to independence by a display of magnanimity, which would not be unwisdom.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 16.—The evacuation of Omsk by Admiral Kolchak is denied by General Wasilkoff, according to the Tidningen's Helsingfors correspondent. On the contrary, Admiral Kolchak, it is added, has just established connections with the Cossacks advancing from Turkestan.

A Moscow official communication Saturday stated that Omsk, capital of the All-Russian Government, had been occupied by the Bolsheviki and that the Kolchak forces were retreating in an easterly direction.

PRUSSIAN PREMIER THREATENS RADICALS

Says Government Will Throttle Any Attempt to Provoke Political General Strike.

BERLIN, Nov. 15, (Associated Press.)—A bitter six-hour verbal duel was waged in the Prussian Diet today between Government members and representatives of the Conservatives at the same hour when Dr. Karl Helfferich, the former German Vice Chancellor, was staging his reactionary rebellion against the sub-committee of the National Assembly investigating war responsibilities.

Paul Hirsch, the Prussian Premier, and Dr. K. W. W. Heine, Minister of the Interior, led the attack for the Government, while Herr von Graefe, Under Secretary of National Welfare, defended the Conservatives, and Ernst Heilmann answered for the Majority Socialists.

Herr Hirsch charged the reactionaries were using school youths in their propaganda, were inciting mobs to anti-Semitic outbreaks, and employing the presence of General von Hindenburg to provoke chauvinistic outbreaks. He warned the Conservatives that their activities might easily cause a counterdemonstration by the Extreme Left.

Herr Hirsch was equally severe in his denunciation of the Independents and their "Communist appendage." He declared the Prussian Government was united in its determination to throttle any attempt to provoke a political general strike.

REDS SEIZE CORRESPONDENT.

Imprison Britisher for Crossing Frontier Without Permission.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—A Moscow wireless message says the People's Court has sentenced H. V. Keeling, an English newspaper correspondent, to prison "until the war with imperialist England is ended." Keeling was charged with crossing the frontier without Soviet permission, and attempting to bribe the guards.

The correspondent in Berlin of The Daily Herald says he learns that the Russian Soviet Government, in view of the victorious advance of its army in Siberia, is trying to get in touch with Japan in order to regulate outstanding questions.

The correspondent says it is believed the Soviet Government also is anxious for the United States to join in such negotiations for a settlement of the future of Siberia.

GERMANS STILL ON RUN.

Bermondt's Forces Now Prepare to Evacuate Mitau.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—The Lokal-Anzeiger's Koenigsberg, East Prussia, correspondent admits that the troops of Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt are retiring on Mitau.

He adds that the so-called West Russian Central Council and Bermondt's headquarters staff are preparing to evacuate Mitau and retire to Shavle.

Sinn Feiners Board Ship; Search in Vain for Weapons

BELFAST, Nov. 16.—Fifty armed Sinn Feiners boarded the steamship Minnie Horn lying in Cork Harbor late on Saturday night and held up the crew with revolvers.

They searched for arms, firing shots to intimidate the ship's crew and badly damaged the wireless room.

The raid was fruitless because the police had previously removed all the arms.

BRITISH RAIL PLAN URGED ON WORKERS

Union Secretary Explains Joint Board Management as Proposed by the Government.

GIVES MEN EQUAL POWERS

Another Joint Board Would Arrange All Matters Concerning Conditions of Service.

LONDON, Nov. 16 (Associated Press).—James Henry Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railway Men, in a speech at Bristol today, outlined the plan of the Government to give the men representation on a joint board of management and expressed the hope that the arrangement would be accepted.

The Government proposes, Mr. Thomas said, that the railways be managed by a joint committee of executives, on which the workers would have three representatives, with powers equal to those of the general managers.

The plan also would create a joint board, composed of five general managers of railways and five delegates of the locomotive men and the National Union of Railway Men to negotiate all matters concerning conditions of service. Any dispute arising would be referred to another body of twelve, comprising four representatives of the railways, four appointed by the men, and four delegated to look after the interests of the general public. Of the representatives of the public, one would be a trade unionist, not connected with the railways, and one other would represent the co-operative movement.

Neither body, said Secretary Thomas, could withhold from the men the right to strike, but it was obvious they would not strike while a matter was under discussion. He would be mad, he added, to suggest that there would be no more strikes, but was convinced the machinery propcsed would ensure smooth working and improve the men's conditions.

NO PEACE WITH REDS TO BE MADE BY POLAND

Premier Paderewski Says War Will Go On to Make the Country Safe.

WARSAW, Nov. 13.—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the Polish Premier, in a long statement in the Diet today on the external and internal situation of Poland, described conditions in the Ukraine as chaotic. He declared that murder and pillage raged there and asserted that 10,000 Jews had been massacred pitilessly. The Ukrainian authorities had kept silence about the massacres, he charged.

Dealing with the war against the Bolsheviki, Premier Paderewski said Poland's sacrifices had been heavy, but that the effort was indispensible for the security of the present and future generations. It was impossible, he added, to make peace with the Bolsheviki.

M. Paderewski was loudly acclaimed when he thanked the countries which had assured the independence of Poland—France, England, Italy, the United States and Japan—and when he paid tribute to the Poles in America for their aid.

RED ENVOYS AT DORPAT

Will Be Sequestered in Secluded House During Conference.

DORPAT, Esthonia, Nov. 16, (Associated Press.)—There is the keenest interest here over the arrival this afternoon of the four Bolshevist representatives, headed by M. Litvinoff, former Ambassador to Great Britain. Commodious and comfortable quarters have been prepared for them in a modern steam-heated building in a street in the suburbs. The building, which was formerly used as a children's clinic and is half hidden by trees, will be guarded by Esthonian troops.

M. Pilp, the Esthonian Foreign Minister, announced today that the Bolshevist delegates will be sequestered and not permitted to see anyone in private, without special authorization. The length of M. Litvinoff's sojourn here is not known. He may proceed in a day or two to Copenhagen to discuss with Entente representatives an exchange of prisoners and other questions. The question of an armistice, it is believed, will be held in abeyance pending the outcome of the Copenhagen Conference.

It is difficult to ascertain whether the conferees of the Baltic States are making any headway. Since Thursday night it has been observed that the unofficial delegates have been nervous and extremely reticent, and indications multiply that there is basis for their fears and pessimism.

SEIZE REDS IN COPENHAGEN.

Kramer, Hungarian Bolshevik, Is Among Many Arrested.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 15.—The Copenhagen Secret Service has discovered that in Copenhagen exists a Bolshevist Central Bureau to which the German Spartacides sent great sums of money. Just before the recent arrest of the German and Danish Bolsheviki here the bureau received 100,000 marks for agitation purposes.

One of the arrested Hungarians, Kramer, was a Communist commissionary under Bela Kun. He is accused of having personally hanged fifteen aristocrats, among them Count Szegilin. After the fall of the Bolsheviki, he fled first to Germany, then to Denmark. When arrested he was on his way to Soviet Russia on a secret mission for Hungarian and German Bolsheviki.

In his possession the police found a white waistcoat belonging to the Hungarian Count Batthyani, whom he is accused of having murdered. Kramer says that he bought the waistcoat in an auction the Communists held of all the property belonging to the arrested aristocrats.

Another of the arrested men, Daneho, is said to have killed the German Danish police officer Buch, whose body a month ago was found in the River Spree.

Steel Ship Tenafly Is Launched.

The 7,000-ton steel cargo ship Tenafly was launched yesterday afternoon at the Shooters Island yard, Staten Island. She is the twenty-second vessel built by the Standard Ship Building Corporation for the Shipping Board. Miss Nancy M. Sisson, a high school pupil of Tenafly, N. J., was sponsor of the vessel.

D'ANNUNZIO BACK; FIUME JUBILANT

Poet Left Troops and Carabinieri in Possession of Dalmatian Port of Zara.

PLANS MORE EXPEDITIONS

Says He Will Seize Territory in Istria and Form an Independent State.

U. S. CRUISER AT VENICE

Admiral Andrews May Cancel Visit to Rome in View of New Development.

ROME, Nov. 16.—Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio has returned to Fiume after an expedition to Zara, on the Dalmatian coast, whither he was escorted by nine battleships, according to reports received in this city.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Advices to the State Department today said that d'Annunzio, after declaring his occupation of Zara, on the Dalmatian coast, has returned to Fiume.

According to the department's information, d'Annunzio reached Fiume yesterday afternoon, and was accorded a great demonstration by the populace. He is said to have declared his purpose to occupy other territory, including part of Istria, which he argued should form an independent State, to relieve Italy of responsibility to the Allies.

After taking possession of Zara, d'Annunzio left there an officer of his staff, with shock troops and carabinieri.

FIUME, Nov. 15, (Associated Press.)—At Trieste enthusiasm over d'Annunzio's new exploit was not pronounced, it being thought necessary to forego Dalmatia and centre activities at Fiume.

Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator, has returned from South America to urge Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio to lead the projected Rome-to-Tokio flight, in which Locatelli will participate. Captain d'Annunzio, however, reiterated his earlier refusal to take part in the flight.

VENICE, Nov. 15.—Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commanding the American warships in the Adriatic, arrived here today on board the cruiser Pittsburgh. He intends to spend a few days in Venice. It was the purpose of the commander to go to Rome, where he had been invited by the American Chargé d'Affairs, Peter A. Jay, but owing to the latest developments in the Adriatic situation he may change his plans.

FEAR COLLAPSE IN AUSTRIA.

Gloomy Forebodings as to the Future Expressed in Vienna.

VIENNA, Nov. 15, (Associated Press.)—Speeches delivered yesterday at celebrations of the anniversary of the founding of the Austrian Republic, which were published tonight after a twenty-four-hour period in which no newspapers were issued, were decidedly gloomy and filled with forebodings as to the present and future economic conditions of the country. Here and there in the addresses a note favoring fusion with Germany was sounded.

"German-Austrian workmen will never abate their demand for union with Germany," declared the Burgomaster of Gratz in his address.

In Vienna Leo Deutsch, a brother of the War Minister, in an address delivered before the Volkswehr, warned of the danger of a counterrevolution, asserting that decisive action was not many weeks distant.

BERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 15, (Associated Press.)—A serious crisis appears imminent in Austria, according to advices received here. Political discontent and the economic distress are arousing the people. The Vienna Government, it is reported, is unable to maintain its power, and the Republic is likely to fall to pieces, several groups declaring for a union with Germany.

It is asserted that the Austrian Army will not attempt to prevent a new revolution, as its officers have for some time been gradually replaced with Socialists.

MEDALS FOR 100 VETERANS.

Jewish Society Honors Members of Temple Israel.

About 100 ex-service men, members of the congregation of the Temple Israel at 120th Street and Lexington Avenue, last night received medals presented by the Independent Order of Free Sons of Israel, at a general service and reception in the temple. Two thousand persons attended the services and more than 1,000 more were unable to get in the building.

The services began with an organ recital, after which the veterans, headed by Major Gen. Alexander, took their places in front of the audience. The Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris, director of the temple, delivered an invocation and prayer in which he paid a tribute to the soldiers of every race and nationality who took part in the war. An orchestra of seventy-five pieces then played, while flags of the allied nations were unfurled.

Solon J. Liebeskind, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of the Sons of Israel, made an address. He was followed by the Police Glee Club, which sang several numbers. Major Gen. David C. Shanks, ex-commander of the port of embarkation, then made an address, after which Miss Elsie West Quaise sang an original song called "The Khaki Bunch."

After an address by Francis M. Hugo the medals were presented by General Alexander, General Shanks, and Major Lorillard Spencer. The service closed with the singing of "America."

PARIS CUTS DOWN LIGHTS.

Theatres and Stores Are Asked to Reduce Use of Coal.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Because of the gravity of the coal crisis, the municipal government has issued a request to theatres and department stores that they reduce illumination for the purpose of conserving fuel. Free distribution of fuel to persons maimed during the war has been begun.

A fall of snow has greatly delayed trains entering the city, and it is feared shipments of coal will be seriously impeded.

GAMES OF SATURDAY LEAVE EASTERN FOOTBALL SITUATION IN STATE OF CHAOS

FOOTBALL DOPE IS BADLY SCRAMBLED

Harvard Only Remaining Team of First Flight Which Has Not Been Beaten.

LAURELS FOR TIGER ELEVEN

Princeton's Gloom Turned to Sunshine by Two Great Games at Close—Green Finishes Poorly.

The football season of 1919, marked by an unusual number of upsets and continual scrambling of the dope, is passing out under the same conditions. Two hitherto unbeaten teams joined the ranks of the conquered majority on Saturday, and for each it was the closing game of the season. There now remains only Harvard still unbeaten in the first flight, while Stevens holds a similar position among the smaller elevens. New Hampshire State's status is in doubt, due to the inability of the officials in Saturday's game against Maine to determine whether or not a touchdown had been scored. Owing to circumtances involved in an odd play, the question of victory is to be decided by the Rules Committee.

The most striking upset of Saturday was the defeat of Dartmouth by Brown. The setback of Colgate by Syracuse was a surprise to some, but less so than the triumph of the Brunonians, a team which had suffered four defeats before meeting the unconquered Hanoverians. The triumph of Princeton over Yale was something of a shock, yet there was a lurking suspicion that the Elis might not be as strong as some of their admirers had pictured them, and the Tigers had shown an ability against Harvard that stamped Roper's team as dangerous.

The Yale-Princeton game was a disappointment to followers of the Elis. The showing of the team in the three games played since the defeat by Boston College had served to restore the confidence in the Blue, and as a result the Elis were generally favored to take this game. Yale had the advantage in having had scouts on hand to see the Tigers against Harvard, and there was no reason to believe that Princeton had not showed all her tricks in that game. Yale had rested her stars and had pointed for this particular game, while the Tigers had to point for the Harvard game as well as that of Saturday, and, furthermore, there were physical advantages on the side of Yale.

Prophets Badly Astray.

Everything combined to point to a Yale victory. Rumors that some of the Tigers had staled from the more severe preliminary schedule and the battle with the Crimson seemed not improbable. Yet when the teams faced each other Princeton showed no staleness and Yale showed little of the strength which the Elis had been supposed to possess. Mediocre football was the rule practically all the way, and the work of the Elis strengthened that earlier impression that this Yale team was several degrees below the standard generally associated with football at the New Haven university.

The game was the last of the season for Princeton, and Captain McGraw's team will be remembered long at Princeton. It closed in a blaze of glory a season that had promised to be a dismal failure. An unsatisfactory showing against Lafayette, a defeat by Colgate and a rout by West Virginia to the extent of 25 to 0 were followed by a tie game with Harvard and a victory over Yale. Coach Roper deserves a world of credit for the transformation wrought in the eleven after its early failures.

Dartmouth apparently suffered an anti-climax after a strenuous month of campaigning, which called for games with Penn State, Cornell, Colgate and Pennsylvania on successive Saturdays. At no time during the season had Brown shown ability to class with the Green eleven, hence the surprise that Dartmouth was able to get only one touchdown. Four other teams had done as well, or better. Dartmouth suffered somewhat from the absence of Robertson, but even this would not explain the inability to defeat Brown.

While Colgate on past performances had been favored over Syracuse by those far from the scene of the struggle, it is significant that the Orange was a favorite in the section where the game was played. This condition was the result of the fact that Gillo was known to have been injured in the Rochester game a week ago. It is said that he was suffering from fractures of two ribs. He started the game against Syracuse, but was not the line smasher that he had been earlier in the season. The victory of the Orange brought O'Neill's team back to the position which it had occupied up to the time of the defeat by Washington and Jefferson. The game was the last of the year in the East for Syracuse. Games in the West with Indiana and Nebraska will bring to a close one of the most severe schedules ever attempted by an Eastern eleven.

Hard to Tell About Harvard.

The victory of the Harvard second-string players over Tufts carries little significance. Yale had not needed her stars to take the measure of the Medford collegians to the tune of 37 to 0, and it was a certainty that the Crimson could get along handily with second-string men.

Harvard will take the field against the Elis at the Stadium next Saturday without having shown any unusual strength up to that time. The Crimson defeated Boston College, which eleven triumphed over the Elis, but, on the other hand, Yale beat Brown by a larger score than did Harvard. Then again, Harvard tied Princeton and was able to push the ball over the Tigers' line, something which Yale could not do. Past performances fail to show any strong reason for making either team a pronounced favorite next Saturday.

The Pitt-Penn game was more surprising in its lack of scoring than in the tie finish. It was not figured that a defense which yielded 20 points to Dartmouth could hold Pitt without a touchdown. That is what happened, this being the second time in five years that Pitt had failed to cross the goal line of an opposing eleven. Syracuse held the Panthers to a field goal earlier in the season. This game closed the activities of Penn until Thanksgiving Day, when the Red and Blue meets Cornell. It is not likely that this opposition will prove too much for the Folwell machine. Pitt faces Carnegie Tech Saturday and should win handily. The Penn State game on Thanksgiving Day will furnish the Panthers with plenty of exercise.

The Army and the Navy elevens did nothing that throws any light on the outlook for the big game at the Polo Grounds a week from Saturday. Navy's total of 121 points against Colby lacks impressiveness, for the simple reason that the opposition must be woefully weak before half that figure is threatened. An odd feature of this game is that the midshipmen, with the ball in enemy territory about all the time, enough, in fact, to score eighteen touchdowns, did not score a goal from the field. Either the Navy kicking is poor, or a fine opportunity at drop kicking was neglected. Field goals have decided many Army-Navy games in the past, and it would seem that some exercise in this specialty might have been had to advantage.

The Army's victory of 62 to 0 over Villa Nova was large enough to indicate that the West Point attack may be improving, since the total was more than double any previous Army score. But, as in the case of the Navy, the opposition was so weak that figures mean little.

Student of Scores Goes Frantic.

The Amherst rout by Williams was another of the day's surprises, and added to the case against the comparative score. On successive Saturdays Wesleyan had beaten Williams, 16 to 0, and had lost to Amherst, 9 to 7. These scores created the impression that Amherst might have an edge on her old rival in the annual classic, but Boynton's team upset the dope, ran wild against the Amherst eleven, and won, 30 to 0.

Stevens registered its sixth straight victory of the year in the triumph over New York University and clinched the title of champions of the metropolitan group. This game added to the uncertainty in regard to the game between Columbia and New York University next Saturday. Against Union N. Y. U. won, 17 to 6, while the Schenectady team held Columbia to a scoreless tie. Against Stevens the Blue and White made a more impressive showing than did the Violet. Stevens beat Columbia, 13 to 0, and followed with a 24-3 victory over N. Y. U.

Columbia was defeated by Wesleyan, as had been expected, but Coach Dawson's charges performed in a way that gives promise of a better finish than had been looked for after the defeat by Stevens. The Blue and White at times played the Middletown team off its feet, and scored two touchdowns, something that no other team had been able to do. Up to Saturday the Wesleyan goal line had not been crossed, field goals accounting for all the scoring against the Connecticut collegians.

Georgetown, conquerors of the Navy a week before, invaded Georgia and ran a poor second to Georgia Tech. This result was surprising in the size of the score, as the Yellow Jackets had not been rated so highly. The defeats of Cornell by Penn State, Holy Cross by Boston College, and Rutgers by West Virginia had been expected.

LATER DATES FOR RELAYS.

Penn Carnival Will Be Held on April 30 and May 1.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Announcement was made tonight that the annual relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania next Spring would be held on Friday and Saturday, April 30 and May 1. This is one week later than these events have heretofore been run off. For twenty-five years they have always been held on the last Saturday in April. The change was made because some of the colleges, particularly in the northern part of the country, have found the weather too cold to get their teams in condition.

The announcement was made at this time in order that the colleges and schools usually participating in the relays might arrange their track schedules to fit in with the carnival dates.

Rodgers of W. Va. Leads in Scoring

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Due to the Mountaineers' 30 points against Rutgers at New Brunswick Saturday, they take the leading place from Pennsylvania in scoring, with 264 points to 259 for Penn. Rodgers, West Virginia Captain and full back, passed the century mark in individual scoring, and, with 103 points, is far ahead of any other player in the country.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

The Forward Pass.

Probably in no preceding football season has the forward pass been so much utilized or with results so frequently decisive as in the season now nearing its close. After the first two or three years of forward passing, during which it was more or less of a haphazard play, with luck an important element in its successful employment, the restrictions with which the rule makers hedged it about and the fear of it by the team playing on the defense served to curtail its use. But, with succeeding years, the coaches became more familiar with its value as a dependable weapon and discovered just what sort of passes could be made effective and what could not. As the game is played today, no team can afford to neglect its development or fail to prepare a defense against it.

A glance at some of the more important games of recent Saturdays shows just what a vital factor the forward pass has been. Such headlines as "Wins by Aerial Attack" and "Forward Passes Decide Issue" have been increasingly conspicuous over the reports of games between the leading college elevens. Last Saturday, for instance, the forward pass was responsible for both of Syracuse's touchdowns against Colgate, while West Virginia defeated Rutgers and Penn State beat Cornell by the same play.

Princeton and Harvard both scored their touchdowns in the 10 to 10 game at Princeton by the air route, and Princeton's long march for a touchdown in that contest was made possible by continuous recourse to the pass. Pennsylvania has developed this department of its attack more perfectly, perhaps, than any other Eastern team, and it was the pass that gave Penn two of its three touchdowns against Dartmouth. Colgate made its touchdowns against Dartmouth and Princeton on the same play, which likewise played a principal part in both of Yale's scores against Brown and paved the way for all of West Virginia's touchdowns against Princeton. Notre Dame defeated the Army by the air route, and the count might go on through many others of the leading games of the season.

One of the principal uses of the forward pass has been to keep the opposing team in constant fear of it, so that it will play its secondary defense well back and thus weaken its power of opposing running plays through the line. This year, however, many of the teams have shown a tendency to play their secondary defense closer to the line, and perhaps it is this fact that has made the use of the forward pass so successful in many games. A team that knows how to use the play effectively on the attack and that, at the same time, can diagnose and spill it when used by the opposition without weakening its defense against a running attack is still a good deal of a rarity. Yet that is the goal toward which every coach must point at this stage in the progress of the gridiron game.

Wilde's New York Debut.

The most important boxing match held here in years will be decided at the International Sporting Club on Feb. 23. On that date Jimmy Wilde, England's most popular boxer, will display his ability against one of America's three leading bantamweight boxers—Pete Herman, champion; Joe Lynch, or Pal Moore, both clamorous contenders for the title.

The match, in addition to promising the greatest international bout in many years, will serve another and more important purpose. It will mark a new era in boxing in this country, launching the International Sporting Club on a career whose activities and progress, perhaps, will be difficult, but whose possibilities, of necessity, will be tremendous. Directors of the new club, which will be distinctly a club in every sense that the word implies, are confident that their plans will attract success. These club officials, stepping in to resurrect a sport more sinned against than sinning, will strive for a universal code and system in the conduct of boxing matches, and in their efforts they will have the wholehearted support of everybody who appreciates the advantages of boxing when properly conducted. The directors of this important project have their work cut out for them, but they are tackling their labors with confidence of success.

Just where the officials are planning to conduct the bout in which Wilde will make his first Eastern boxing appearance is a matter for conjecture. Certain it is that the match will be conducted in a temporary arena. The work of adopting a plan for the new club, enlisting memberships, and arranging many other details of less import, all require time which will carry well into the new year and beyond the date set for the opening show. This show, by the way, was originally announced for Feb. 3, but has been definitely deferred until Feb. 23.

Sufficient patronage is guaranteed to make a success of the coming carnival, and any others that are to follow. Wilde, in himself, would be a remarkable attraction for any boxing club, but to insure further attractive competition the club officials will arrange for a series of army and navy championship bouts between the best men in the service.

Wilde's arrival here and his activities since crossing Uncle Sam's threshhold give an indication of the tremendous interest which will be aroused by a bout in which he will be a participant. The advent of the remarkable little Briton has, too, stimulated interest in a boxing division heretofore comparatively unnoticed—the bantamweight class. Boxers of stature slight enough to qualify in this class are, figuratively, trampling each other in their efforts to attract attention with the possibility of a match with Wilde as their objective. This activity promises plenty of action for the little Britisher if he seeks frequent matches.

Shamrock IV.'s Harbor Trip.

The first definite move toward active preparation for the America's Cup races in 1920 was made last week, when the Shamrock IV., the yacht with which Sir Thomas Lipton hopes to lift the coveted trophy, was moved from James Shewan & Son's shipyard in Brooklyn to Jacob's shipyard in City Island. The boat was transferred to Winter quarters, and early next Spring it will be made ready for the big international classic.

The move was attended with little ceremony. Sir Thomas and not more than 200 persons saw the yacht launched for the first time in nearly five years. But it was significant. In yachting circles it meant something. It meant that the great British sportsman is going ahead with preliminary arrangements. While it cannot be accepted as indicating that the New York Yacht Club will favorably consider the challenge of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club received some weeks ago, still it can be regarded as a foundation on which to build the hope that the races will be one of the outstanding features in sport of the coming year.

Although Sir Thomas made no statement after the launching, it was apparent he was satisfied with the condition of the boat. Just what must be done to fit her for the races is not definitely known at this time, but the cursory examination permitted while she was resting on the platform preparatory to being launched gave the casual observer the impression there is comparatively little.

The boat is in excellent condition and, unless Sir Thomas decides to make some changes in her style of rigging, it appears she will take the water next Spring much the same boat that came here in 1914, but had to be housed because of the war. She is a smart looking craft and bespeaks a world of speed, but nothing more will be known about her ability until her time trials next year.

Just when the New York Yacht Club intends formally to act upon the challenge is problematical at this time. No official statement has been made, but the impression is general that the action will be favorable.

If the races are sailed next year, seventeen years will have passed since the cup was last competed for. It was in 1903 that Sir Thomas last raced for the prize. It was on Aug. 22 and 25, and Sept. 3 of that year that his Shamrock III. was beaten in three straight races by the Reliance. Since that time yachting has been without its biggest event.

Although the Royal Ulster Yacht Club requested that June be selected as the month in which the races take place next year, the impression prevails that dates later in the season will finally be agreed upon. It is contended that if the races are held in June interest in yachting will wane afterward; whereas, if the races should be held late in August or early in September they will virtually be the climax of the season and will furnish a big stimulus to the sport throughout the Summer months.

Minor Leagues Learn Wisdom.

The minor league representatives are to be congratulated for the action taken at Springfield during the last week on the draft question. It was something in the nature of a backdown by the little fellows of baseball who had demanded one year ago that the major leaguers grant what were regarded by them as "concessions." The majors obliged and remained aloof while the minors proceeded to work out their own salvation independently. Now the smaller leagues admit their mistake and seek to return to the conditions which prevailed up to a year ago.

The following of the advice of short-sighted leaders plunged the smaller of the minor leagues into a condition which spelled ruin in a short time, but happily the danger is now past. The Class B, C, and D organizations drew themselves free of the so-called leadership at the Springfield meeting and did their own leading, compelling their larger brothers to follow. The larger leagues of the minor group were the leaders in the plan to remove the draft, and now the smaller members have forced its return.

The idea that the major leagues can get along without the minors is absurd, as is the counterproposition that the minors are able to go along independently of the majors. Each needs the other to survive. The big leagues need the minors as developing fields, while the minors cannot live unless they get financial aid from the majors in the commerce of baseball talent. Gate receipts support the majors, and the sale of players supports the minors.

The removal of the draft and the breaking away on other points of relationship with the big leagues was a sad mistake a year ago, but the minors, at least a great part of them, could not see it that way. They had visions of untold wealth by forcing the big leagues to buy players instead of drafting them, the buying entailing the payment of much more money. The majors declined to enter into any spirited bidding against one another for talent, as the visionaries of the smaller leagues had led so many others to believe. As a result the minors lost thousands of dollars which annually flowed into their coffers for drafted players, and there was less buying than usual, this taking away more thousands. Many a club which lost money under the prevailing system would have been saved the loss if major league club owners were drafting.

It was a mistake on the part of the minors from the start, now happily rectified, and the lesson learned by the small leagues may be worth to baseball what it cost the minors. Furthermore, if the minors again decide to break from the majors, they should first learn to be fair with one another. One part of the big break was that the minors would refuse to take players from the majors under option, and it was violated far and wide. The majors were wise enough to give the minors all the rope they demanded, and the result has been no surprise.

Steeplechasing's Popularity.

One of the most pleasing features of the racing season which is just coming to a close is the renewed interest in steeplechasing, the most picturesque branch of the sport. Though it took some time to re-establish it, the cross-country game is now on a firm footing again, and it promises to be immensely and deservedly popular next season.

It was a regrettable feature of the racing on the metropolitan tracks that the steeplechase events were far below the average of other years both in the number and quality of the horses. This was unavoidable, as many of the owners of jumpers were in the service during the war and gave up racing for the time. The result was that when they returned it was necessary to establish the sport anew.

How well this has been accomplished was shown recently in Maryland when some of the new fencers were brought out. These were horses developed for cross-country running since last Spring, and consequently not yet at their best, but they showed enough to make it certain that there will be much better competition and larger fields next year at Belmont Park, Aqueduct, and Saratoga.

More than forty horses were trained for the jumps this year. A number of these have not yet had a public trial, though they have schooled well. But among those which have been tried are Mrs. Payne Whitney's Roi Craig, one of the very cleverest of the new crop; Esquiman, from the stable of Captain Ral Parr; War Paint and Twiford, owned by W. T. Elkinson, and Houdini, from the string of jumpers owned by J. E. Widener.

Most of those named are three-year-olds which had shown speed over the flat but had the natural qualifications for jumping. As a rule, horses are not turned over to the steeplechase game until they have served their usefulness on the flat, and that accounts for the aged fencers and the lack of class in many of the contests. There should be better racing with younger horses.

Women have played a strong hand in developing steeplechasing this season, and it is due in no small measure to their efforts that better racing is in sight. Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords, and others have provided some of the best of the jumpers. Mrs. Clark has had one of the best strings of 'chasers in the country. She has not won as many victories as her fine stable deserved, but she is constantly making additions and will be a big factor in another season. Mrs. Whitney has in Roi Craig one of the most promising jumpers seen this season, and will bring out others when the sport is resumed next year.

Altogether, the outlook for steeplechasing is brighter than had been hoped for by those who were interested in its development this season.

FLUSHING GETS ULTIMATUM

Football Team Must Oust Its Star Back or Quit School League.

Flushing High School's athletic activities in the Public Schools Athletic League will be peremptorily ended unless the Long Island school authorities agree to the elimination of Halleck, the team's star backfield player from the remainder of the games on the Flushing football schedule. This decision, replacing a more drastic recommendation, was reached at the last meeting of the High Schools' Games Committee of the P. S. A. L. The original recommendation, presented by the P. S. A. L. Football Committee, provided for the immediate suspension of Flushing from all interschool athletics until the end of the present school term, and contained the proviso that the Long Island school would be restored to good favor again only upon giving assurances that it was ready to abide by the rules of the High Schools' Games Committee.

The controversy surrounding the activities of Halleck on the Flushing eleven began with the start of the present gridiron season. Following a career of more than a year and a half in Uncle Sam's naval service, Halleck returned to the Long Island school to continue his studies. When the football season arrived, it is understood, Halleck was two months beyond the P. S. A. L. age limit for its athletic students, which is 21 years. Regardless of his age, Halleck filled his position in the Flushing backfield until the matter was called to the attention of the High Schools Games Committee. An investigation followed, and the decision reached at the last meeting of the P. S. A. L. Committee resulted.

In line with its policy to enforce its eligibility rules strictly, the P. S. A. L. committee had under consideration a recommendation that notification be sent to out-of-town schools that no boys over 21 years of age would be permitted to compete in football games against local high school teams holding membership in the P. S. A. L. This motion, advanced by H. J. Silverman of Jamaica High School, and seconded by H. J. Shearer, Commercial High School, was laid on the table after a lengthy discussion.

A subsequent motion reflected a plan on the part of the scholastic football officials to delve carefully into the eligibility of the players on the various teams in Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn. Mr. Silverman, following the defeat of his motion to restrict the activities of out-of-town teams, submitted a motion, which Mr. Shearer seconded, that the football committee of the P. S. A. L. be instructed to take up the problem of eligibility of football players. The motion was referred to the football committee.

Wins Fifth Basket Ball Victory.

The Holy Name Big Five won its fifth straight victory at basket ball yesterday afternoon at the Manhattan Casino, defeating the strong Cathedral Club team by a score of 25 to 18. Good teamwork was the principal factor in the victory. The Holy Name quintet will play the Hunts Point Big Five on the same court next Sunday afternoon.

FLEISCHER SHOWS WAY.

Kings County Runner Wins Brooklyn A. A. Invitation Race.

A. Fleischer of the Kings County A. A. outran Harry Rosen, a clubmate, in a sprint to the tape and carried off the premier prize in the Brooklyn A. A.'s invitation handicap road race, conducted yesterday over a course of about four miles in Brooklyn. Fleischer's margin of victory was about fifteen yards. He started with an allowance of 1:45 and raced home in the actual time of 30:42.

A. Fleischer, Kings County A. A. (1:45), 30:42; H. Rosen, Kings County A. A. (0:45), 29:31; E. Rubin, Brooklyn A. A. (3:00), 32:04; H. Foster, Loughlin Lyceum, (3:00), 32:37; A. Mueller, Brooklyn A. A. (1:45), 31:25; W. Murray, Brooklyn A. A. (0:30), 30:25; J. Wiberg, unattached, (1:00), 30:07; J. P. Singer, Brooklyn A. A. (3:30), 34:25; E. Hendricksen, Swedish-American A. C. (1:00), 31:37; A. Lewis, unattached (3:30), 35:18; A. Robinson, St. Christopher Club (3:00), 33:03; H. Gross, Brooklyn A. A. (3:20), 35:33; R. Christ, Brooklyn A. A. (2:45), 35:03; A. Dayden, unattached (3:00), 34:47; R. Jokel, Brooklyn A. A. (1:45), 34:16.

Jersey City Bout for Herman.

Pete Herman, bantamweight boxing champion, will appear in an eight-round bout at the City A. C. of Jersey City Thanksgiving Day afternoon. Herman will be one of the contestants in the principal bout at a special matinee arranged by Promoter A. G. Fitzgerald. The title holder's opponent will be Mickey Russell, a Jersey City bantamweight.

FOX WINS PAULIST A. C. RUN.

Takes First Honors in Four-Mile Road Race by 15-Yard Margin.

Raymond Fox of the Paulist A. C. captured first prize yesterday in the initial handicap road race of the Lower Manhattan Athletic League, conducted over a course of about four miles, under the auspices of the Paulist A. C. Fox started with a handicap of 2 minutes, 30 seconds, and covered the course in the actual time of 22:45. He took the lead at the second mile and set the pace thereafter, winning by a margin of fifteen yards on I. Berger, Clark House A. A. The Paulist team defeated the Clark House A. A. quintet in the team struggle by a score of 20 to 35.

The order of finish follows:

R. Fox, Paulist A. C. (2:30), 22:45; I. Berger, Clark House A. A. (1:45), 22:20; M. O'Meara, Paulist A. C. (3:00), 23:00; J. McGarvey, unattached (2:15), 23:20; P. O'Conner, Paulist A. C. (2:30), 23:45; F. Lavery, Paulist A. C. (1:30), 22:20; R. Lewis, Clark House A. A. (3:15), 24:21; T. Ruffine, Paulist A. C. (2:00), 24:22; C. Richards, unattached (2:30), 24:00; I. Levingrub, Boys' Club (1:30), 23:12; A. Butler, Paulist A. C. (3:00), 25:15; H. Stark, Clark House A. A. (3:00), 25:17; J. Gottlieb, Clark House A. A. (3:00), 24:35; C. Goldstein, Clark House A. A. (3:00), 25:42; Walter Schippel, Paulist A. C. (scratch), 22:40; F. Cass, unattached (3:00), 24:50; C. Fenisher, Clark House A. A. (3:00), 25:44; W. Hauser, Clark House A. A. (3:00), 25:49.

SAME YALE ELEVEN WILL FACE HARVARD

Bulldog Feels It Threw Game Away by Wild Passes—Coaches Are Silent.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16.—Instead of spending today at Briarcliff-on-the-Hudson, as the Yale football eleven planned when it left here last night, it returned to town this evening. The players who were in yesterday's game took automobiles last night to Waterbury and spent the night at the Hotel Elton in that city. They were given a long walk this afternoon for conditioning exercise, returning to New Haven after dinner.

Every member of the squad of twenty-two who played in yesterday's game appeared in perfect condition, except Half Back Bob Lay, whose right ear was slightly torn. He will get into the scrimmaging this week and into next Saturday's game at Harvard.

The coaches tonight refused to discuss yesterday's game from any angle. They authorized a statement, however, that it is planned at present to send upon the gridiron against the Crimson exactly the same eleven which opened yesterday's bout against the Tigers. The coaches feel that this is the strongest playing combination which could be gridironed. They still have faith in the team, and hope that it worked considerable foolishness out of its system during the Princeton contest.

Yale Feels Game Was Thrown Away.

It is felt at Yale that the eleven really had the game won 6 to 3, in the middle of the final period, but resorting to wild forward passes and still wilder lateral tosses heaved it away.

The program for the week includes signal rehearsal for everybody tomorrow, with a brisk scrimmage for all the elevens except the 'Varsity, and a brief but hard scrimmage drill Tuesday and Wednesday for the regulars as well as the substitutes.

The squad will leave here at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon for Boston and will be taken in automobiles from that city to the Belmont Country Club, which it has chartered until after the game. It will practice in the stadium Friday afternoon.

The mysterious disappearance from the streets of New Haven of the 62,000 people who witnessed yesterday's game has never before been equaled in the same space of time. The streets were deserted, the restaurants scantily filled and many seats in the local theaters were vacant, although all the play houses had been bought up far in advance in anticipation of a Yale victory.

Whether the Yale contingent was wiser after yesterday's game is uncertain, but it was palpably sadder. Yale's failure to respond to the complimentary cheer which was given by the Princeton contingent after it had formed for a snake dance and marched across the field to the Yale cheering section, was commented upon unfavorably.

Yale undergraduates said tonight that the exodus of cheer leaders and students has progressed so far that few were left in the stands when the Princeton victory celebrators arrived. On former occasions the Yale crowd has remained in the stands and cheered back defiantly.

OHIO STATE WITHIN ONE GAME OF TITLE

Victory Over Illinois Eleven Will Give Buckeyes Championship of "Big Ten."

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—With the Western conference football championship race drawing to a close, the undefeated Ohio State eleven tonight is within one game of the title, Illinois, victorious in five of its six games, being the only team left for the Ohioans to vanquish.

These championship rivals, perhaps the most evenly matched teams in the "big ten," will clash at Columbus next Saturday in what promises to be the most bitterly fought contest of the season.

| | Won. | Lost. | P.C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Ohio State | 3 | 0 | 1.000 |
| Illinois | 5 | 1 | .833 |
| Chicago | 4 | 1 | .800 |
| Wisconsin | 2 | 2 | .500 |
| Iowa | 2 | 2 | .500 |
| Minnesota | 2 | 2 | .500 |
| Michigan | 1 | 3 | .250 |
| Northwestern | 1 | 4 | .200 |
| Indiana | 0 | 2 | .000 |
| Purdue | 0 | 3 | .000 |

Ohio kept its slate clean yesterday by defeating Wisconsin 3 to 0, while Illinois bagged a 29 to 7 victory over Michigan. The defeat was the most crushing Michigan has sustained this season, and the form displayed by Illinois has convinced its followers that the team will be the most dangerous foe Ohio will have faced this season.

Wisconsin fought Ohio State to a standstill and conceded nothing to the Buckeyes, except perhaps, in the kicking departmnet. The toe of Chick Harley, who booted a field goal from the 20-yard line, was all that saved the game for Ohio, as the Badgers had the championship contenders on the defensive for fully three-quarters of the game.

Chicago realizes that it barely escaped defeat at the hands of the powerful Iowa eleven. The Hawkeyes proved the toughest opponents the Maroons have face. The whistle ending the game with a 9 to 6 score apparently saved Chicago from defeat, as the Iowans had the ball within eight inches of the Maroon goal and were all set for the final charge.

Northwestern displayed better fighting spirit than in any previous game in downing Indiana, 3 to 2. It was Northwestern's first victory in the conference race. With less than two minutes left to play, the Purple eleven obtained the ball in midfield, crashed through Indiana defenses to the 20-yard line, and Dale booted a goal from placement, giving Northwestern the three points necessary to win.

Women and men who ride and drive have gathered from many points in the United States and Canada to exhibit or merely look on at the thirty-fourth National Horse Show, which opens this morning in Madison Square Garden. The doors will be open to the public at 9 o'clock.

Every dollar received from any source through the show by the National Horse Show Association is to be donated to the Salvation Army without any deduction for expenses, as the directors will foot all bills from their own pockets. Salvation Army members will serve as volunteer ushers and program sellers.

At 10 o'clock this morning, an hour after the portals are thrown open, the first of the 174 classes to be judged before the close of the exhibition, on Friday night, will be called to the tanbark. This class is for Shetland stallions, and there are eight of the sturdy little fellows entered. Among them are Miss Katherine Hauck's Senator Jackson, winner of the class last year, and three from Hamilton Farm. One is King Larigo, veteran of the Garden shows and many times a champion in such competitions in different parts of the country, before being purchased by James Cox Brady, for Hamilton Farm, at a record price for the breed. Something new among the Hamilton Farm Shetlands in the opening class will be a two-year-old black stallion, said to be a perfect miniature of an ideal horse, and named Hamilton Jolly Boy.

Trotters to Follow Shetlands.

Trotters will divide the morning with the Shetlands, but after luncheon all sorts of fine horses will be rivals under saddle or on the reins in a well-balanced card. The closing class of the morning will be an innovation designed to quicken the judging in the hunter classes, in which conformation must be considered as well as the fencing qualities.

This class is for the hunters entered in a dozen or so of such competitions, and they will in this first competition be judged on conformation alone. The judges, on the theory that a horse does not change in looks during the week, will make the notes on the conformation of each horse that they will follow in allotting points in the jumping classes thereafter. These officials will be Frank A. Bonsal of Monkton, Md., and M. Roy Jackson of Media, Pa., both masters of hunts. Another M. F. A., A. Henry Higginson of the Middlesex Hunt, South Lincoln, Mass., who was to have served with them, has withdrawn in consequence of the death of his father, Major Henry L. Higginson, at Boston on Friday.

England, Canada and the United States will be represented among the riders in the afternoon class today for jumpers owned and ridden by officers in uniform. There are twenty-four entries and the United States Army officers rode in the ring yesterday to exercise their mounts, but there was no hurdling permitted. Captain John K. Brown's big bay gelding, Leonard Wood, attracted much attention from the Garden horsemen as he went through his paces in the ring. This horse, his owner said, was brought to West Point, where Captain Brown is stationed, in a bunch of Western remount horses over a year ago. The gelding has been jumping so cleverly in the West Point Riding School that Captain Brown is hopeful of winning Judge Moore's cup this afternoon.

In fact, there was what amounted to an informal show of horses in progress yesterday at the Garden that gave pleasure to lovers of fine equines, for from morning until night saddle horses, hunters and harness horses, with dozens of ponies, were being exercised in the ring, in many cases with the owners up or doing the driving.

The city's great show place has undergone a remarkable transformation for the National Horse Show. It is as if a placid, picturesque English village had been transported to New York and set into the huge arena at the Garden. The urban setting is complete, cottages, hedges, trees, flowers, dove cotes and thatched roofs, and the horses seemed to fit quite naturally into the picture.

The Horse Show breakfast that John McE. Bowman tendered yesterday to the officers, judges and many of the exhibitors at the Biltmore was a pleasant social affair and ushered in a series of luncheons and dinners to be given by different hosts in the Horse Show Club at the Garden during the five days of the show's duration. Many who were at Mr. Bowman's breakfast dropped in at the Garden afterward to look over the decorations or watch the horses at exercise or munching oats in the stalls below stairs.

Advocates Army Horse Shows.

There were no toasts or formal speeches. The short talk that made the greatest hit was by Major Pierre Lorillard, Jr., of Tuxedo Park. He advocated the establishing, with the coöperation of the War Department, of a series of army horse shows and trials of horsemanship in different parts of the United States, and a national championship tournament, for which the winners at the minor tournaments should be eligible, at some central place. Major Lorillard said that Chicago, on account of its central location, seemed to him the place for this final tournament.

Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, U. S. A., one of the officers who will ride jumpers in the ring this week, indorsed Major Lorillard's suggestion, and said he thought the Government should take up the idea, as it would encourage the breeding of military remounts.

ROBINS ELEVEN IS VICTOR AT SOCCER

Keeps Lead in National Football League by Beating Federals in Close Game.

Indebted to a large extent to the prowess of their goalkeeper, Renzelli, who saved a penalty kick besides many other difficult shots, the Robins Dry Dock soccer eleven defeated the Federal Shipyards team of Newark by 3 goals to 2 in a hotly contested game at Todd Field in Brooklyn yesterday, and thereby retained the lead in the National Football League with a record of six victories in succession.

Harry Shanholt, former Columbia University soccer Captain, was the first to score for the Robins off a pass by Ratican four minutes after the start. Richardson, the Jerseymen's centre, equalized ten minutes later from a mixup. Next the Robins profited by a penalty given against the visitors for handling, Ratican taking the shot for goal. At half time the Robins led by 2 to 1.

Richardson again came to the fore five minutes after change of ends, and, taking the ball from a mixup, evened up the score. Soon after the Federals were pressing hard and in turn were given a penalty. Muir essayed the shot, but Renzelli, by a grand effort, succeeded in heading it off. Ten minutes from the end Ratican passed to Miller, who drove in the winning goal from twenty yards out. Two thousand spectators witnessed the play.

The lineup:

| ROBINS D. D. (3). | | FEDERAL SHIP (2). |
|---|---|---|
| Renzelli | G. | Douglass |
| Robertson | R. B. | Houston |
| Lance | L. B. | Forsyth |
| Van den Eynden | R. H. | MacDonald |
| Clarke | C. H. | Muir |
| Peat | L. H. | Neil |
| Garside | O. R. | Ellis |
| McGuire | I. R. | Logan |
| Ratican | C. | Richardson |
| Miller | I. L. | Ward |
| Shanholt | O. L. | Cullerton |

Referee—C. Ward, Passaic. Linesmen—Mackie and Brown.

Goals—Shanholt, Ratican, Miller, Richardson (2). Time—Halves of forty-five minutes.

Philadelphia's crack soccer team, representing the Disston Athletic Association, met its master in the Paterson Football Club in the National League game at Olympic Park, Paterson, yesterday, when the home side scored a well-earned victory by 1 goal to 0. The only tally came in the last ten minutes of play, Wilson of Paterson shooting the goal off a pass by Brown.

The Longfellows of Brooklyn took the measure of the soccer team representing the Viking Football Club in a New York State League championship fixture by 3 goals to 1 at Macomb's Dam Park yesterday.

Sherman of the Vikings was first to score after fifteen minutes of play, but McChesnie equalized just before half time. In the second half, Walsh centred to Whalen, who scored. Mills shot the third goal.

Well matched in the first half, the issue between the Rangers and the Visitation F. C. in the Metropolitan League game yesterday at Marquette Oval in Brooklyn was not settled until the second period, in which the Rangers won out by a score of 3 goals to 1.

Adamson played brilliant in goal for the victors, saving a penalty. Coutts, Cavanaugh, and Purdy scored for the Rangers, and Maroney for the Visitations.

Although the Prospects were the first to score, from a penalty converted by Rodemes, the Woodside Football Club won the Metropolitan League match at Woodside, L. I., by the score of 3 goals to 1, yesterday. Higgins shot all three of the winners' goals. There was no scoring in the first half.

Encountering the soccer eleven of the Erie Athletic Association in a National League championship game at Clark's Field, Newark, yesterday, the New York Football Club met with a reverse to the tune of 2 goals to 0. T. Stark scored for the home team after forty minutes of play, and Koelsch clinched the victory in the second period.

SEGRETTO LEADER IN RECORD FIELD

Morningside A. C. Runner Takes Harlem Heights Run—Fifty-one Harriers Start.

B. Segretto, a young New York University law student who carries the colors of the Morningside A. C., registered his third road running success of the season yesterday when he captured first prize in the handicap chase of the Harlem Heights Athletic League, held under the auspices of the Glencoe A. C., over a course of about five miles. In addition to scoring his third victory Segretto added further to his prestige, for his victory gave him the distinction of having led home the record field of harriers of the season.

A total of fifty-one athletes started in the chase, the largest field that has been attracted to a handicap road race in the metropolitan district since the start of the season. Of the original starters thirty-eight finished the full course, the remainder retiring, some because of the stiff pace and others because of the hopelessness of finishing among the prize winners.

Segretto scored his third triumph in convincing fashion and was cheered to the echo by an unusually large crowd at the finish. For four miles, Segretto, following a rapid pace, gave chase to the limit handicap runners in the lead. Advancing to even terms with the trailbreakers, the Morningside runner raced along with the leaders for about one-quarter of a mile, when he went away in a burst of speed which carried him to an impressive victory over R. Moorehead, Alpha P. C. C., who finished second. Segretto, starting with a handicap of three minutes, covered the course in the actual time of 30:47, the third fastest time registered for the chase. Moorehead, who got away with the 4:15 group, returned the actual time of 32:34.

| Pos. Name and Club. | Hand'p. | Actual Time. |
|---|---|---|
| 1—B. Segretto, Morningside A. C. | 3:00 | 30:47 |

NOVICE WINS ROAD RUN.

Gowdie Leads Thirty-three Harriers in Bronx A. L. Race.

Richard Gowdie, a novice runner of the Bronx Church House, led home the largest field of the season for the Bronx Athletic League road running activities, yesterday, in the weekly handicap chase held over a course of about five miles, starting and finishing at the Bronx Y. M. H. A. Gowdie, allowed the limit start of five minutes, showed his flying heels to a total of thirty-three rival harriers who started from varying handicap marks. The young Bronx Church House novice was extended to his limit to win by a margin of about five yards from W. Furlong, who started off the 4:30 mark. The victor's time was 27:54, and Furlong covered the course in the actual time of 27:25.

Zbyszko to Wrestle Stecher Here.

Wladek Zbyszko, the Polish wrestler, has signed for a match with Joe Stecher, the scissors expert, to be staged at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, on Monday evening, Dec. 8. According to the agreement, either man must obtain a fall to achieve victory. The rule that, in case of no fall, money will be refunded to patrons, will govern.

BARRINGTON TAKES 2 SPEEDWAY RACES

Drives Little Kate and Leo A. to Straight-Heat Victories—Longwood Scores.

J. A. L. Barrington had a successful day yesterday in the sixth matinée of the Road Drivers' Association on the Harlem Speedway, driving two horses to victory, and carrying off a second ribbon. Barrington scored his opening success in the 1:15 trotting event, when he guided T. De Martino's brown mare, Little Kate, formerly of the Barrington stable, to a straight heat victory over W. J. O'Neil's Country Boy. In this event Little Kate equaled the class time in the first heat, and finished two seconds behind the mark in the deciding heat.

Following this brush, Barrington picked up the reins on his bay gelding, Leo A., in the 1:12 trot, and registered another straight heat victory in a dual test. A. Bruno's Squirrel Brook provided the opposition to Leo A., but Barrington took both heats in a manner that left no room for doubt. In the following event, the 1:10 trot, Barrington carried off second ribbon with his brown mare, Libby Medium. This race went to W. J. O'Neil's Longwood in straight heats. Longwood trotted the half mile in 1:10 for the first heat, and clipped a second off class time in the second heat.

M'CUTCHEON VICTOR AT N. Y. A. C. TRAPS

Breaks 95 Out of 100, Although Handicapped by a Strong Wind.

The largest field of gunners that has so far this season reported at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club for a Sunday shoot was on the firing line yesterday. Unfortunately, a high wind kept down the scores. The day was otherwise ideal and the nimrods voted the shoot the best held so far this season.

G. S. McCutcheon proved to be the high scratch gunner. He took the event with a card of 95 out of a possible 100 targets. His total was beaten by Dr. D. L. Culver, who had a grand total of 97, but having resigned from the club, Dr. Culver was not eligible for the prize.

After a shootoff, the high handicap prize went to R. B. Sloan. As usual, legs on the tournament, the Byronel, the President's, and the Lyon Cups were registered by all gunners with full scores of twenty-five targets. The number was not as large as usual. Only one gunner registered a leg on the Buermeyer Cup. He was Harry Sullivan, who had a card of 48 out of 50 targets, shooting from scratch.

The scores:

COLUMBIA IN BASKET BALL.

Schedule Includes Five Games Besides Intercollegiate Series.

Five games will constitute the preliminary schedule for the Columbia basket ball five before the Intercollegiate League round robin begins in January. The complete schedule was announced last night, and in the five early opponents Columbia will meet four colleges and play one game with the alumni. Although the college basket ball teams in the league are by far the strongest in the East, Columbia has booked a quartet of the next best aggregations for the warming-up series.

The opening will be played Dec. 13 with New York University at the Columbia gymnasium. Lafayette, also on the local court, will follow, and two days after Christmas Columbia will play C. C. N. Y. at the latter's cage. The alumni contest will be held Jan. 3, and the final of the preliminary games will come Jan. 7 against Stevens Institute of Technology.

Especial interest is shown each year in the contest with the alumni, for with each graduation another star player or two joins the ranks of the "old boys." Columbia has always performed brilliantly in basket ball, and the sport, under the coaching guidance of Harry A. Fisher, was especially prominent during the nine years from 1905 to 1915, when there was no football at Morningside. Of the recent grads who will get together on the alumni team Walter W. Dwyer, Ed Burghardt, the Benson brothers, the Lee brothers, Jack Wegener, and Leonard are most prominent. Going back a little further into Columbia's basket ball history, Ted Kiendl, Frank O'Connell, and Fisher would form a powerful trio.

The Columbia basket ball squad was scheduled to begin practice for the season this afternoon, but announcement was made last night that the drills have been postponed indefinitely on account of the football work. Captain Tom Farrell, among others, is a member of the gridiron squad. It is likely, however, that work will begin next week, following the N. Y. U. football game on Saturday.

The complete schedule of the Columbia five follows:

PRELIMINARY GAMES.

INTERCOLLEGIATE LEAGUE GAMES.

PEERLESS

The New Peerless Four-Door, Four-Seater. Very Smart, Very Comfortable

For the Peerless Two-Power Range, Eight Cylinder chassis this new roadster body has been created. It has four doors, and seating space for four passengers.

Its roominess permits a comfortable touring position for occupants of driving compartment and tonneau. It may be quickly and snugly enclosed with the side curtains.

There is a luggage compartment at the rear. Our allotment in cars of this type is limited but at present we can promise reasonably prompt delivery.

Do you know the thrill of driving the Two-Power Ranger? It is a thrill that can not be explained. To be understood it must have been experienced. May we not place a demonstrating car at your disposal.

THE SCREEN

After "The Lottery Man," Wallace Reid and his director, James Cruze, might easily be forgiven if they slackened their pace a bit and turned out something rather slow and dull. Such rapid-fire farces as they have been producing usually exhaust their magazines after a short succession of hits and then there must be time for the accumulation of fresh ammunition. This rule, however, has not yet started to work with Messrs. Reid and Cruze. They come to the Rialto this week with a scream version of James B. Fagan's "Hawthorne of the U. S. A.," and it does not have to hide behind "The Lottery Man" nor any of its predecessors. It is a bright and merry farce and will undoubtedly be enjoyed by any one who likes farces bright and merry.

It is not, as its name might suggest, a jingoistic flag-waving parade of provincialism. It might have been, and once in a while is in danger of trying to be, but trust Wallace Reid and James Cruze to turn any attempt at strutting into a joke. And trust Tully Marshall, Charles Ogle, Theodore Roberts, Robert Brower, and Harrison Ford to help them do it. These are some of the exceptional cast, and without them Reid and Cruze would have been unable to make "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." what it is. Marshall and Ogle are revolutionists in the mythical kingdom of Bovinia. Roberts is a United States Senator suffering from a mythical attack of rheumatism, and Brower is His Royal Highness, the mythical King. They are a merry company, and mixing agreeably with them are Harrison Ford, Guy Oliver, Edwin Stevens, and Lila Lee. Miss Lee is somewhat too slow for the rest of the company, but, although she is the Princess and heroine, the main business of the farce has to do with revolutionists, rheumatism, 2,000,000 francs from a "busted" bank at Monte Carlo, a hungry army, and the King's passion for nuts—vegetable, not animal—and these things are taken care of by the male members of the cast.

Robert C. Bruce has returned from the land of ice and snow and brought with him a number of film records, the first of which, "Frozen Thrills," is on the Rialto bill. It includes interesting views of the Mt. Rainier glaciers.

Also at the Rialto, as part of the Magazine, and at other Broadway houses, are pictures showing the sinking of merchant vessels by German submarines. Several ships are seen slowly settling and then plunging, head or stern first, into the water. It is said that these pictures were made by officers on German submarines and were obtained from the present German Government by J. H. Mackzum, a Knights of Columbus secretary, who brought them to America.

"A Virtuous Vamp," a John Emerson and Anita Loos production, directed by David Kirkland, with Constance Talmadge in the leading rôle, is at the Strand this week. It was derived from Clyde Fitch's "The Bachelor," but has advanced to Gilda Gray, the shimmy, and several other things with which Mr. Fitch was unfamiliar. Its purpose is to give Miss Talmadge an opportunity to be as attractive and coquettish as possible, and in this it is successful. It would be more successful if it were shorter, for it hasn't enough substance to fill more than two or three reels. It starts well and ends well, however, and as a whole gives more pleasure than it takes away.

The story is of a born little flirt who getting work in an office almost wrecks it because men cannot resist her innocent smile. Her proclivity for upsetting the men makes many difficulties for her until she succeeds in capturing the only one who offers her any resistance.

Among those in the cast who help it most are Jack Kane, Conway Tearle, Wallace McCutcheon, Ned Sparkin, William Eville, and William Gaunt.

"Training Eve" is another entertaining Japanese picture made by C. L. Chester, and the Strand Topical Review includes pleasing Pathé color views of Châteaudun, France.

"A Star Overnight," the first of the two-reel films produced by the Stage Women's War Relief, is at the Capitol this week, and is extremely interesting because it shows David Belasco at work. Other well-known stage people, including Bruce McRae, Hilda Spong, Elizabeth Risdon, Gladys Morris, and Hamilton Revelle, donated their services to the picture, and play parts in its unpretentious story, which is important because it gives illuminating glimpses of Mr. Belasco rehearsing a play and guiding its performance on the opening night.

The longer photoplay at the Capitol is "The Undercurrent," with Guy Empey. There are also news pictures, amusing sketches and bits of life prepared by Hy Mayer, and a Prizma color picture.

6,000 HEAR NOTED PLAYERS.

Violinists Ysaye and Elman's Joint Recital Fills Hippodrome.

Six thousand persons sat in the Hippodrome last evening to hear Eugene Ysaye and Mischa Elman resume their recitals of music composed or adapted for two violins, after one previous event of the kind had been announced as a "last joint appearance for all time." Such self-denial was well reconsidered, in view of the present house; indeed, the 1,200 listeners on the stage alone constituted a remarkable sight, and there was craning of necks to see the boyish figure of Elman bowing low beside the giant Ysaye to all quarters after each number.

The opening Concertante in A by Mozart was said by Elman's father to be arranged from a concert piece for two pianos, instead of that which Mozart wrote for violin and viola. There were also Handel's E major sonata, written for two violins; a concertante in F by Molique, agreeable music, unfamiliar and inconsequential, and a series of six duets by Godard, including the muted berceuse, all sweet enough to have broken a sugar embargo. So silent was the house that the pair of instruments was apparently heard by all, and the famous players were much applauded.

TALKS ON ALSACE-LORRAINE

E. M. Newman Shows Pictures of Devastation and Victory Celebrations

A large audience was present at Carnegie Hall last night for the opening of the eleventh season of E. M. Newman's Traveltalks. The subject was "Alsace-Lorraine," and Mr. Newman exhibited many still and motion pictures made in the provinces since the signing of the armistice, showing the devastation caused by the fighting, victory celebrations, and the people returning to their pre-war life. There were some interesting views of picturesque towns of Alsace and Lorraine, with their ancient houses, winding streets and magnificent cathedrals. The costumes and customs of the natives were also shown. The demolition of German statues by the released French was illustrated for the special enjoyment of the audience. The animals in Lorraine and the storks in Strasbourg delighted every one.

Mr. Newman's still pictures are his best. They have been colored by Dorothy Taylor Ray and Louise Scribner Perkins so that their natural effects are heightened and they are free from both the harsh and sickly hues sometimes noticeable in colored motion pictures. To see them is to realize that the art of coloring pictures that move is far from perfection. Mr. Newman has made no effort to color his moving pictures. Many of them, perhaps because of disadvantageous conditions of photography, do not compare favorably with those seen in the news and magazine sections of regular programs. They serve to give variety to the really beautiful still pictures, however, and also bring general impressions of their subjects to the screen.

The "Alsace-Lorraine" Traveltalk will be repeated at Carnegie Hall this afternoon, and next Sunday evening and afternoon Mr. Newman's subject will be "Occupied Germany."

WOMEN LEAD ACTORS' DRIVE

Committee of Hostesses for the Benefit Matinees for Fund Dec. 5.

The women of America will occupy the centre of the stage this week in the campaign being waged by the managers of the Actors' Fund to make the benefit matinees to be held all over the country on Dec. 5 such financial successes as to insure the future of the fund and take the worry out of the lives of such actors as may see old age approaching with nothing but the fund between them and actual want.

It was announced at the headquarters of the drive in the Hotel Commodore yesterday that the Five-Thousand-Dollar Club, organized last week, already included as members Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer, Jules Bache, Charles A. Sabin, Daniel Guggenheim, Stuyvesant Fish and John H. Flagler.

The benefit matinées in the fifty-three theatres in New York, and the thousands of others through the country, will consist of the regular performances, and at each playhouse will be stationed a committee of hostesses to express the appreciation of the actors to the public. Among the women who will serve on these committees here are: Mrs. James Speyer, Colonel Helen Bastedo, Mrs. Cornelius Bliss, Jr., Miss Alice Carpenter, Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. John Bowman, Mrs. Bourke Cockran, Mrs. Chester B. Duryea, Mrs. Abram I. Elkus, Mrs. Grace Strachan Forsythe, Mrs. Robert de Forest, Miss Grace Livingston Furniss, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Benjamin Guggenheim, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. Oliver H. Harriman, Mrs. John Iselin, Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel, Mrs. William Fellowes Morgan, Mrs. John T. Pratt, Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, and Mrs. Henry W. Taft.

Even the actors who have found refuge in the home maintained by the fund on Staten Island have taken up a little collection to help the drive. In their letter telling of their effort the veterans of the stage said:

"Others will some day come to take our places here. We want to do our feeble, but sincere, bit to assure to them the blessings bestowed upon us by the Actors' Home."

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The New York Symphony Orchestra.

The New York Symphony Orchestra repeated d'Indy's Symphony on the Gallic Wars yesterday afternoon, in its Aeolian Hall concert; also the "Berceuse Héroique" of Debussy and the "Aux Etoiles" of Duparc. In other respects changes had been made in last week's program. There was a "Poem" for flute and orchestra by Charles T. Griffes, played by Georges Barrère, the principal flautist of the orchestra, and Lalo's concerto for violoncello was played by Willem Willeke, the first 'cellist.

Mr. Griffes's name has appeared several times of late on programs of local concerts, signed to music that has shown originality, a true creative impulse, technical skill. He is an American, said to be a teacher of music in a school near New York, but he bids fair to take a more important place as an American composer. This "Poem" is a composition of real charm and individuality, written, in a truly idiomatic utterance, for the flute, which thus is felt as an inevitable interpreter of the musical thought. The mood is gray at the outset, and the orchestration corresponds in color; there is then a dance-like movement of an unusual tonality, with the suggestion of Oriental rhythm and Oriental coloring in the orchestra, delicately scored. The piece attracted great attention; Mr. Barrère played it beautifully and was repeatedly recalled.

Mr. Willeke's performance of Lalo's concerto was that of a highly accomplished artist; it was most finished and brilliant, delivered with the ease of complete mastery, as well as with sympathy with the music. The concerto is perhaps one of the most successful of its kind, which is not saying very much; 'cellists are hard put to it to find material for performance. The intermezzo with its suggestion of a Spanish dance rhythm and the piquant rhythms of the finale are among the most attractive features of the concerto. Mr. Willeke's playing aroused much enthusiasm.

Jascha Heifetz's Recital.

Jascha Heifetz returned from a tour long enough to give his second recital in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon, which was besieged by would-be listeners, many of whom had to be turned away, after every available space in the hall had been filled. And yet Mr. Heifetz's program was one that must be called poor, offering little to interest admirers of his extraordinary art, who would like to hear him play something worthy of his attention.

It is bad enough to see him follow Mr. Kreisler's bad example of filling up the latter half of his programs with insignificant morsels and various odds and ends arranged from piano pieces and other outside sources. It is not in the least necessary for an artist of Mr. Heifetz's standing thus to play down to an imagined poverty of taste and knowledge in his listeners. But if he does follow this deplorable course, he should at least put something at the beginning of his program as a makeweight more worth while than Vieuxtemps's fifth concerto in A, a violinist's concerto true to the type, intended for technical display and of great value for advanced students, but in these days not the material for great artists. Of course Mr. Heifetz played it magnificently, with a gorgeousness of tone that was unceasing and with all the technical brilliancy that it calls for, hardly dimmed by the exertions of a strenuous tour. And of course he was excitedly applauded.

He followed this concerto with a movement by Wilhelm Friedemann Bach and two groups of small pieces.

Scientific—and Economical, too

Mennen Cream Dentifrice is made to accomplish results. It is based on the latest discoveries of dental science. It really protects teeth by improving the flow of saliva—Nature's guardian of teeth. It is scientific and very expensive to make.

But Mennen's is so concentrated that a tiny bit is enough. One half inch cleans teeth perfectly, breaks down tartar formations and removes tobacco stains.

In a broader sense it is highly economical for it saves teeth. Teeth are worth more than money.

Don't let skin trouble spoil your good time

Resinol heals sick skins

"I can't have any fun! I am such a sight with this skin sickness that people avoid me wherever I go. And the irritation torments me so that I don't get any peace, anyhow."

Don't be discouraged! Even in severe, well-established cases of skin-troubles, Resinol Ointment, aided by Resinol Soap, usually relieves the itching at once and quickly clears the eruption away.

BEEN a long time since my College days. Tried many a cigar, too.

Once thought cigars were more important than Greek. Now know they are. For a fragrant, mild smoke you've got to hand the loving cup to 84. That's the cigar, brother—84 EVERMORE.

Yours for smokejoy
Bob Trevor '84

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—There is a moderate depression over Wisconsin and pressure is quite low over the Canadian Northwest; elsewhere it is high, with principal crests off the Middle Atlantic Coast and on the northern plateau, and in consequence of the prevailing high pressure there was no precipitation of consequence throughout the country. Temperatures are generally higher and above the seasonal average, except in the South Atlantic States.

With the exception of light local rains Monday in the lake region and Monday night or Tuesday in the northern portions of Eastern New York and New England, the weather will be fair during the next forty-eight hours east of the Mississippi, with temperatures above the average for the season.

FORECAST TODAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair in east, increasing cloudiness in west Monday; warmer, probably local rains at night or Tuesday, except fair extreme south.

Southern New England—Fair, somewhat warmer Monday. Tuesday cloudy.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and warmer Monday. Tuesday fair.

Western New York—Cloudy Monday, probably light local rains in west and central portions and by night in east; warmer in southeast portion. Tuesday probably fair.

Winds off Atlantic Coast—North of Sandy Hook, moderate south and southwest, with fair weather; Sandy Hook to Hatteras, moderate south and southwest.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

| | 1918. | 1919. | | 1918. | 1919. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 3 A. M. | 48 | 36 | 4 P. M. | 50 | 48 |

| 12 M. | 55 | 44 | 11 P. M. | 54 | 43 |

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 42; for the corresponding date last year it was 53; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 44.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 38, at 8 P. M. it was 45. Maximum temperature 50 degrees at 3 P. M.; minimum, 36 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity 52 per cent. at 8 A. M., 74 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.43 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.31 inches.

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

EXPERTS are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much whether you should buy now, as it is that you use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a list of diversified investments, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to type and geographical location as closely as possible.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Improved Credit Position Comes Through Drastic Decline of Stock Market Prices.

Out of the wreck of speculative hopes in the stock market last week there arose a factor of greater importance than could have been contained in the full realization of traders' profits. This was the awakening of the bank and brokerage community to the necessity of correcting a strained credit position which, if continued much further, would have entailed disaster more far-reaching than the security markets. There may be room for the argument that the Federal Reserve officials and bank managers should have started long ago to curb speculation through means other than verbal warnings. There may be a basis for the complaint heard here and there that, while speculation has been running out of bounds in commodities, real estate, dry goods, &c., the major effort to stem the tide was aimed at the stock market with too sudden and drastic results on this single centre of a broad field. But offsetting these pleas stands the fact that the Federal Reserve Board on several occasions since mid-Summer did call attention to the trend of speculation in several directions, and that for a number of weeks prior to the slump of quotations the dwindling margin of reserve ratio to liabilities told a graphic story of the application of increasing amounts of credit to unessential purposes. More than that—and this was something which traders willing to listen and read could not escape—the partners of scores of brokerage firms in New York and elsewhere urged their clients to lighten their commitments, take their profits and stand aside until the banking position had been strengthened. The story of the collapse of inflated industrial stocks supplied little new information to men who have long been interested in the financial markets. The losses will be borne, something may have been learned and the fallacy of the idea will be revealed that because big speculators hate to pay income taxes the market can be kept going in one direction for an indefinite period. The matter of greatest moment lies in the question whether or not last week's initial effort to conserve bank credit will be carried far enough. It will be recalled that last July 20 per cent. call money, coupled with Federal Reserve warnings, brought about a substantial reaction of stocks, only to be succeeded very soon by an even more insistent plunge of traders, large and small, into the vortex of speculation. The July setback was not enough to carry conviction that the banking authorities were really concerned over the outlook. They are more concerned now, and the setback of last week was sufficiently severe to shock even the hardiest traders and those best supplied with capital of their own.

The local Federal Reserve Bank got some real action out of the admonition to member banks to cut down their loans, even though the result was belated. The member banks paid off a substantial amount of their borrowings which had been secured by pledges of Government bonds. The bank gained a round amount of gold and at the end of the week was able to report an increase of nearly 4 per cent. as compared with the week before in the ratio of reserve to liabilities. So far so good, but a reserve under 44 per cent. against all liabilities is hardly enough to make much ado about. Member banks were able to reduce their loans to clients, but an outstanding loan account of $5,260,297,000 is still great enough to permit of further discrimination against borrowing to enhance speculative visions. This total, reported by the Clearing House banks on Saturday, is greater than any ever attained during the period of wartime financing; in fact, no such aggregate of loans was known prior to last September. Presumably stock market loans were brought down to a level last week which removed the likelihood of another tremendous cleaning out of unstable margined accounts. Stocks which had been the most inflated fell from 10 to 50 points net. The test will now come, both in respect to bankers' intentions and speculators' desires, in the progress of stock prices, up or down or in irregular fluctuations. It is to be expected that the cost of call money will be both the barometer and the guiding force in business in the next few weeks. Judging from what has recently happened, the prediction that renewal rates will be high seems to be safe enough.

"As long as the system of daily settlements prevails in the stock market," said a monetary expert last week, "there will always be a marked differentiation between rates for market credit and for commercial purposes. And as long as speculators are able to get funds by outbidding other borrowers there will continue to be occasional sharp disturbances in the stock market."

Exports of cotton from American ports last week reached a total in excess of 200,000 bales, the largest week's outflow of the calendar year to date. Wheat and flour shipments were also heavy, running in excess of any other week for several months. These movements supply one explanation why sterling, franc and lire exchange quotations persisted in establishing new low records almost daily.

Neither the fall of stocks nor the decline of exchange rates forecast unfavorable events in the country's industrial activities, although the latter contain the elements of decreased exports. Mercantile reviews noted last week that domestic demand for all sorts of goods continues unabated and production cannot keep up with it. The yielding of the coal miners' union to the behest of Government promised less headstrong action by organized labor in the future than in the immediate past and may be looked back upon later as marking a milestone in the nation's return to sane and normal processes of action in the industrial field.

Van Raalte Company Stock Offered.

Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers, as syndicate managers, announce an offering of $3,250,000 Van Raalte Company, Inc., 7 per cent. cumulative first preferred stock at 98 and accrued dividend. Subscribers may buy common at $45 a share to the extent of 25 per cent. of the first preferred purchased. The company has recently been organized to take over the business and assets of E. & Z. Van Raalte, Inc., silk manufacturers. The purpose of the above issue is to finance the purchase by the new company of the Clark Textile Company of Saratoga Springs.

G. STUART PATTERSON QUITS

General Solicitor for Pennsylvania Road to Enter Business.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Announcement was made today by Elisha Lee, Federal Manager, of the resignation of George Stuart Patterson, General Solicitor of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Eastern Lines, to become effective Dec. 1.

Mr. Patterson has been connected with the legal department of the company since 1900. He will enter the cotton business.

INHERITANCE RETURNS RISE.

State Has Collected $11,142,000 This Year—Expects $18,000,000.

Inheritance tax receipts in New York State for the first four and a half months of the year are more than double those of the corresponding period last year, State Controller Travis announced yesterday. The year's total is expected to exceed $18,000,000.

More than $11,142,000 has been collected this year, as compared with $4,470,024 for the same period last year. The Controller bases his estimate for the year on the assumption that the monthly average of last year will be equaled in the remaining months of this year. More than $2,500,000 has been paid in since Nov. 1.

Delegates to Waterways Convention.

The Merchants' Association has appointed to represent it at the tenth annual convention of the New York State Waterways Association at Albany, starting next Thursday, these members of its Committee on Inland Waterways and Water Storage: Herman A. Metz, Professor Olin J. Landredth, Captain Alfred Brooks Frey, Charles N. Chadwick.

Eastern Manufacturing Company

of Massachusetts

First Preferred Stock 7% Cumulative

CAPITALIZATION
(After giving effect to this financing)

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| First Preferred Stock, 7% Cumulative | $3,250,000 | $3,250,000 |
| Second Preferred Stock, 7% Cumulative | 1,000,000 | 1,000,000 |
| Common Stock* | 160,000 sh. | 140,000 sh. |

*The nominal or par value of the Common Stock is $5 a share, as under the laws of Massachusetts a nominal or par value of at least $5 is required.

The Eastern Manufacturing Company, to be incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts, will acquire all the assets and business of the Eastern Manufacturing Company of Maine, founded 1889. The Company is one of the largest manufacturers of bleached sulphite pulp and writing papers, and is the only extensive manufacturer of high-grade writing paper in the United States which produces its own raw material. The timber holdings of the Company and its subsidiaries aggregate 224,000 acres. Its plants in Bangor and Lincoln, Maine, have a present annual output of about 40,000 tons of sulphite pulp and about 25,000 tons of writing paper per annum. The gross sales for the latest fiscal year amounted to about $8,000,000.

The First Preferred Stock, 7% Cumulative, is protected by conservative restrictions, and has preference as to both assets and earnings. A cumulative sinking fund, accruing from January 1, 1920, is estimated to redeem the entire issue within twenty years by call or by purchase at not exceeding 110 and accrued dividends.

The net quick assets of the Company, after giving effect to this financing, according to a balance sheet prepared by Messrs. Boyden & Steacie, Inc., are in excess of $3,666,000, or over $112 for each share of First Preferred Stock.

The land, buildings, machinery, equipment and other fixed assets owned by the Company in fee, as appraised by the National Appraisal Company, with allowance for subsequent additions and deductions, are valued at $3,662,000. The net value of the Company's equity in the subsidiary companies is estimated at over $1,000,000. The net assets of the Company are thus over $8,300,000 or over $250 for each share of First Preferred Stock.

The net earnings of the Company for the past four years (1919 partly estimated), after adequate maintenance charges, but before deducting Federal taxes, and interest charges to be eliminated by this financing, have averaged $1,050,000, or over four and one-half times the annual dividend requirements on the First Preferred Stock.

Proof of Stability

During the serious market decline of last week, a list of fourteen standard Industrial Preferred Stocks showed an average loss of only three-eighths of one percent.

More reassuring proof of the essential soundness of any class of securities has rarely been given to investors.

There are two basic reasons for the stone-wall stability of Industrial Preferred Stocks:

First, such stocks are so fully and scientifically safeguarded by large assets, liberal earnings and strong protective provisions as to practically eliminate speculative influences.

Second, the yield of Industrial Preferred Stocks is so large that such securities almost immediately disappear into strong boxes as permanent investments and are not subject to market fluctuations.

Dominick & Dominick offer to clients a selected list of standard Industrial Preferred Stocks which in most cases constitute first claims on quick assets several times greater than the stock issues, which are exempt from normal Federal Income Tax and which produce a yield commensurate with living costs.

Details can be presented by mail or interview.

Oil Field Brines

The oil field brines are unique in composition, for they contain practically no sulphate. The ratio of the sodium and magnesium to the chlorine in them is less than in sea water, and the ratio of calcium to chlorine is great. The brines are distinguishable from fresh surface waters by their much lower content of carbonates. The value of establishing the character of oil field waters becomes apparent when it is recognized that the analysis of a brine obtained in wildcat, or prospect, drilling may indicate whether oil is present near a drill hole in the stratum from which the brine is obtained, even if the drill strikes no oil.

EXCHANGE INJURES SWISS.

Technically in Their Favor, It Operates Against Their Export Trade.

GENEVA, Nov. 15 (Associated Press.)—Switzerland is suffering from her increasing gold reserves and the high rate of exchange in her favor, according to financial writers. Swiss exchange now stands at 100 marks (German) for 14 francs and 100 kronen (Austrian) for 4 francs, which is the highest in Europe. This is considered too high, resulting in the crippling of Swiss industries and export trade. Neighboring nations, because of the loss in exchange, are refusing to buy Swiss goods, but are trying to sell at prices with which the Swiss are unable to compete. Germany is said to be profiting by the opportunity.

The Swiss Government, desiring to aid home industries, is perplexed by the situation, as are other nations. For example, France and Italy, because of exchange rates, can buy from Germany at about one-third the price asked by the United States and England.

Recently the Swiss Government asked bids for the construction of a bridge across the River Aar, near Bern. German contractors offered the complete bridge at a lower price than Swiss firms said would be required to buy the raw materials for the structure. The financial condition is considered by experts to be a new economic danger for Europe, especially as wages and the cost of living are continuing to increase.

To Discuss Railroad Legislation.

Railroad legislation will be the topic for discussion at the thirty-ninth annual dinner of the Academy of Political Science, to be held in the Hotel Astor next Friday evening. Timothy Shea, chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, will be one of the speakers, with Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, and Congressman Schuyler Merritt of the House committee. Howard Elliott and Alfred B. Thom of the Association of Railway Executives also have been invited to speak.

FRONT STREET & MAIDEN LANE 1803

Dated, New York, Nov. 3rd, 1919.

GREAT FALLS POWER COMPANY.

First Mortgage, dated May 1, 1911.

Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee under the above Mortgage, gives notice that it will receive at its Trust Department, No. 16 Wall Street, New York City, up to 3 o'clock P. M., on December 15, 1919, sealed proposals for the sale to it, at a price not exceeding 107½% and accrued interest, of sufficient bonds secured by said Mortgage to exhaust as nearly as practicable the sum of $143,469.90. Such proposals should be made in sealed envelopes and must reach the said Trustee not later than 3 o'clock P. M., on December 15, 1919. Notice of purchase of bonds will be mailed on December 16, 1919, and the bonds so purchased should be delivered to the Trustee before the close of business December 22, 1919, on which date interest thereon will cease. In case more bonds are offered at the same price than the Trustee can purchase, it will be determined by lot which bonds shall be taken. The right is reserved to reject any proposals in whole or in part.

SUGAR

Based on indisputable facts indicating an exceptionally strong future for the sugar industry, public interest in the securities of sugar companies has been strongly in evidence the past few months.

We are identified with two sugar companies—one that is prominent among producing companies and the other prominent among refineries. The future of both companies is particularly bright. Their securities offer an opportunity for investment, returning incomes that are attractive when compared with the safety of the principal amount invested.

CANDY
STOCKS

Stocks in the leading Candy enterprises of the country have had a remarkable advance during the past year. This is due to the splendid prosperity enjoyed by the industry and its bright outlook for the future. While many of the Candy stocks now listed on the different exchanges may advance in price from their present market levels, it is our recommendation that investors who are seeking the greatest safety, together with the best chance of quick profit taking, should give first consideration to such an issue as American Candy Company shares now being offered at a low underwriting price. The common stock is earning about 25% after all taxes on the present offering price and will, in our judgment, attain a much higher market value in the near future. Application will be made to list this stock on the Chicago and St. Louis Stock Exchanges. Write for descriptive circular giving details and showing earnings during the past 20 years.

Burk Pipe Lines & Refining Company
PAR VALUE $100

Issued as of November 1, 1919

Dividends payable semi-annually, May 1 and November 1.

Preferred as to both assets and dividends.

Transfer Agent: Guaranty Trust Company of New York

CAPITALIZATION

|---|---|---|
| Cumulative 10% Sinking Fund Preferred Stock | $ 400,000 | $300,000 |
| Common Stock | 1,000,000 | 600,000 |

PURPOSE

The proceeds of this issue will be used to retire a loan made by interests identified with the Middle States Oil Corporation. So vital was the need of a pipe line that this company advanced the funds required for the rapid completion of the Burk Pipe Line—a significant factor in determining the necessity for this project.

PROPERTIES

With gathering stations in the heart of an oil field of 100,000,000 barrels potential production, the Burk Pipe Line with its 16,000-barrel daily capacity has been offered long term contracts far in excess of its maximum carrying facilities. Two 55,000-barrel steel tanks will be located near the company's 78-car loading racks situated on the Fort Worth & Denver City Railroad 13½ miles from the gathering stations.

EARNINGS

Conservatively estimated net earnings for the first year of operation, after setting aside 25% thereof for a Sinking Fund for the retirement of this stock at 105, should be equal to 12 times Preferred Dividend requirements. The end of the third year of operation should show earnings in excess of 100% on the common stock.

To the Holders of the above mentioned securities.

Announcement is hereby made by the Committee as follows:

1. The certificates of deposit issued under the Plan and Agreement of Readjustment for first preferred stock, second preferred stock and common stock of Maxwell Motor Company, Inc., have been listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

2. In order to conform to the requirements of the Stock Exchange with reference to listing, the time for the deposit of securities under the Plan and Agreement is hereby extended to and including DECEMBER 13, 1919.

3. A majority of the stock of Maxwell Motor Company, Inc., and a majority of the stock of Chalmers Motor Corporation has been deposited under the Plan and Agreement.

4. In order to enable the Committee to carry the Plan into effect further deposits of securities are necessary. The agreement between the Committee and the Bankers for the purchase by the latter of $10,000,000 of Notes to provide additional cash working capital for the New Company as set forth in the Plan has been extended to December 15, 1919. As the raising of this new money is essential for the interests of the security-holders of the present companies, the Committee urges the immediate deposit of securities in order that the agreement with the Bankers may be carried out. Securities should be deposited with the Depositary, Central Union Trust Company of New York, 80 Broadway, N. Y. City.

BUYERS HAVE POWER TO PIN PRICES DOWN

BUY ONLY FOR PRESENT USE

Brick Manufacturers and Dealers, Fearing Runaway Prices, Put Brakes On.

Heroic measures are being taken by common brick manufacturers and dealers to stem the stampede for basic building materials in this market.

So acute is the menace of a runaway price movement for Hudson River common brick, for instance, that the manufacturers, with hardly an exception, representing the important producing plants from here to Cohoes, returned to their desks last week from the Newburg conference firm in the belief that they should do everything in their power to keep the price of this building commodity at the present level of $18 a thousand wholesale, dock New York. To do this it was decided to make a general appeal to architects, contractors and owners now in the market for common brick to restrict their purchases to the requirements of building operations actually proceeding or under contract to proceed.

If the price of common brick reaches a stage of inflation the price course upward of other basic building materials will be appalling for the prospective builder to contemplate, for the simple reason that with the shortened hours of building material production it is not possible for other commodities to supply this market to meet the additional demand upon their already limited supply.

The true situation along the Hudson River is that the total quantity of brick on hand is greatly below previous estimates. Conditions have brought about a great shortage of coal.

There are numerous plants that have not yet been able to get any coal at all with which to burn their 1919 brick production, and a brick is not a brick until it is burned. There is such a small percentage of Hudson common brick of the 1919 manufacturing season so far burned that it develops on later counts only a fraction of what previous estimates had indicated.

The seriousness of the situation is further emphasized by the action of the Association of Building Material Dealers of New York, which sent out last week letters to consumers requesting an expression of their attitude toward the efforts the dealers are making to repress indiscriminate purchasing at this time with a view to holding prices at present levels, or whether they prefer to continue to buy brick upon the former open market plan and take a chance on a runaway price movement.

It was too early Saturday for any great number of replies to have been received, but the few that had come in up to that time expressed vigorous support of the dealers' efforts. The association arranged a purchasing committee to keep tabs on any effort to stampede the price of brick to a point above $18 a thousand wholesale, New York.

Surveys shows that the coal supply menace is already becoming a serious one with the brick industry and further aggravates the situation with regard to supply. It is a certainty that practically none of the 1919 brick along the Hudson River can now reach this market before June or July of next year because of the reduction of coal supply. The New Jersey brick manufacturing plants, using almost exclusively soft coal, also are affected.

Further evidence of the necessities of the moment lies in the fact that conditions here have resulted in bringing Staten Island brick into Manhattan, which has not been the case for many years. The supply, however, is limited as compared with the flow of brick into this market in former years, and does not alleviate the Hudson River price danger to any great extent.

The contractor who has been sitting back and smugly satisfying himself that there will be more construction than all the building industry of New York can take care of next year is beginning to realize that conditions of building demand are going to be made up of other factors than that of merely supplying the deficiency of space. The stampede that the Dow Service Daily Building Reports warned the Council of National Defense of when the war bars were let down on building construction soon after the armistice was signed, is developing and the biggest minds in the manufacturing and distributing end of the building material market are applying their thoughts to the question of how to stem the rising tide of building material prices and thus keep the construction market open to the general trade instead of to the financially powerful few, interested in huge projects requiring great quantities of general basic building commodities. Had not labor troubles, strikes, lockouts, &c., intervened, this stampede would have developed last Spring.

This stampede is in the ascendency now because the labor situation in the building industry here is being adjusted to a harmonious conclusion and the spirit of free buying is in the air. But the factor of credits is beginning to operate in this market in a really big commercial way in the building trades, which puts the price situation in the basic building material market squarely up to the consumer and places in his hands the full power of keeping the price of building materials within the reach of all. Whether the firms or individuals with unquestioned credit and unlimited bank resources will be able to buy up the available meagre supply of brick at prices that may easily go to $22 to $25 or even higher levels, and thus make building construction impossible except only to the most affluent interests, is the problem.

The price situation with regard to other materials is without change this week.

Protective Committee of Holders of 4% First Refunding Gold Mortgage Bonds Due July 1st, 2002

OF THE

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company

To the holders of bonds secured by the

4% First Refunding Mortgage of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company:

The company has defaulted in the payment of interest on the above mentioned bonds, and an action to foreclose the mortgage is pending.

At the request of the holders of a large number of these bonds, the undersigned have consented to act as a Committee for the protection of the interests of all of the holders of the above mentioned bonds who shall become parties to a deposit agreement which the Committee has executed and lodged with the Franklin Trust Company, No. 46 Wall Street, New York City, and No. 166 Montague Street, Brooklyn, New York, the depositary therein named, from whom may be obtained, at either of its offices, copies of said agreement.

The mortgage which secures your bonds constitutes a preferential lien upon much of the most valuable assets of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

An attempt has already been made to subordinate the lien of your Mortgage to nearly Twenty Million Dollars of Receivers' Certificates authorized to be issued for the benefit of portions of the Rapid Transit System.

Through the efforts of the Trustee of your mortgage and certain bond-holders this attempt has been defeated, but the fact that it was seriously made and earnestly pressed suggests that other like attempts may hereafter be expected.

As the foreclosure action proceeds, many questions will arise seriously involving your interests, which can be adequately protected only by your united action.

The Committee therefore invites all holders of the 4% First Refunding Gold Bonds of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to deposit their bonds with coupons due July 1, 1919, and all subsequent coupons attached, with the above-named Depositary, thereby signifying their acquiescence to the agreement already executed by the Committee. Such deposit should be made as promptly as possible.

Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued for all deposited bonds. Application will be made at once to list the certificates of deposit on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Committee or its counsel will be glad at any time to answer inquiries from bond-holders, and to obtain for them such information as is procurable.

EXPORT AND IMPORT

I am an OFFICER AND MANAGING DIRECTOR of a large Export and Import concern successfully conducting business throughout the world. Fresh and powerful interests representing several millions of dollars have just now acquired control, and as this may bring about undesirable friction of management, I would prefer to withdraw before such condition arises. I have a first-class successful record and know every phase of my business. My salary alone is over $10,000 per annum. If you have a suitable and legitimate proposition in Export and Import business, kindly reply as concisely as possible. D 713 Times Downtown.

PROPOSALS.

BIDS ARE REQUESTED BY THE Virginian Power Company, Charleston, W. Va., for subletting the construction of the following named transmission lines which are included in contracts between the United States Government and The Virginian Power Company as contractor.

(a) Government line No. 2, approximately thirty-three and eight-tenths (33.8) miles in length, from the Cabin Creek Junction Plant of The Virginian Power Company to the U. S. Naval Ordnance Plant at South Charleston, W. Va., this being a single circuit, 66,000-volt, steel tower transmission line.

(b) Government line No. 24, approximately six and one-half (6.5) miles in length, from the Charleston substation of The Virginian Power Company to the substation of the U. S. Naval Ordnance Plant at South Charleston, W. Va., this being a double circuit, 44,000-volt, steel tower and wood pole transmission line.

The necessary rights of way and the material which will be a part of the completed lines to be furnished by The Virginian Power Company. The sub-contractor will be required to load, unload, distribute, and erect all material necessary to complete the lines, and to furnish for this purpose all superintendence, labor, tools, plant or equipment.

One total lump sum bid is desired for all the above. Bids will be opened at the office of The Virginian Power Company, Charleston, W. Va., November 25, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids. A certified check for 2 per cent. of the total amount of the bid is required.

Plans and specifications may be examined at the office of The Virginian Power Company, Charleston, W. Va. Contract forms can be obtained at the same address.

PUNTA ALEGRE SUGAR COMPANY

To the Holders of First Mortgage Six Per Cent Convertible Twenty-Year Gold Bonds of Punta Alegre Sugar Company, Maturing July 1, 1935:

Notice is hereby given that in accordance with the right reserved to the Company by the provisions of certain Indenture of Trust and Mortgage, dated July 1, 1915, securing an authorized issue of $1,500,000 of First Mortgage Six Per Cent Convertible Twenty-Year Gold Bonds of the Company, maturing July 1, 1935, the Company by action of its Board of Directors at a meeting held October 15, 1919, has called for payment and retirement on January 1, 1920, all of said First Mortgage Six Per Cent Convertible Twenty-Year Gold Bonds outstanding on that date. Holders of such bonds will be entitled to receive on January 1, 1920, in full payment of the principal amount thereof a sum equivalent to one hundred ten per centum (110%) of such principal amount, upon surrender of such bonds, together with all unmatured coupons thereto appertaining, at the office of The Merchants National Bank of Boston. Interest on such bonds due and payable on January 1, 1920, will be paid in the usual course upon presentation and surrender of coupons representing such interest. By the terms of said bonds and said Indenture of Trust and Mortgage, interest upon such bonds shall cease to accrue on and after January 1, 1920, unless payment of the sums to which the holders thereof may be entitled to receive shall be refused by the Company upon due presentation of said bonds for payment at the office of The Merchants National Bank of Boston.

The privilege of converting such bonds into shares of the Common Stock of the Company may be exercised by the holders of such bonds at any time before the expiration of ninety days after January 1, 1920, and after the expiration of such ninety days the right to convert said bonds will terminate. Holders of such bonds who deposit the same for conversion, after January 1, 1920, and before the expiration of such ninety days, will be entitled to receive the shares of stock and cash which, under the terms of said bonds and said Indenture of Trust and Mortgage, such holder would have been entitled to receive had such bonds been deposited for conversion on January 1, 1920.

Bonds forwarded to The Merchants National Bank of Boston for conversion or payment should be accompanied by a written statement specifying whether the same are forwarded for conversion or for payment. Registered bonds must be accompanied by a written power to transfer the same, executed by the registered holder, or be registered as payable to bearer before such bonds will be paid by the Company.

MERCHANTS DRAFT ECONOMIC PROGRAM

Committee of New York Association Urges Co-operation of Employers with Workers.

PLEA FOR PUBLIC RIGHTS

National Prosperity, Instead of Selfish Aims, Recommended by Prominent Business Men.

Proper thought and effort on the part of employers and employes, looking toward evolutionary improvement in fundamental industrial relations, with care that each step shall be a real advance and not have to be retraced, is suggested to the Merchants Association by its Industrial Committee of prominent business men in a report which emphasizes the duty of the employer to take the lead in the application of sound principles.

Such evolution, says the report, made public yesterday, is retarded by these three features of our industrial system:

1. The short-sighted determination too often found on the part of employers and employes selfishly to get maximum results without consideration by either of the interests of the other, or of the public as the controlling motive in industry.
2. Lack of understanding and mutual confidence of employers and employes.
3. The law of supply and demand as the determining factor in fixing wages and conditions of employment.

Many of the results of this third factor, it is contended, are unfair and prejudicial to the interests of both employer and employe and are socially undesirable.

For National Prosperity.

In view of what it finds to be the detrimental influence of these foregoing features, the committee recommends the recognition by both employers and employes that the determination to achieve national prosperity rather than to enforce maximum selfish returns should be the controlling factor in industry. Arguing for this, the report says that the community has the right to insist that industry be carried on in the interest of all, rather than for the sole benefit of those directly engaged. The parmanent welfare of all depends on national prosperity, which is impossible without maximum production at minimum "per unit" cost without impairment of proper living standards for employes or ability of employers to earn a reasonable return on investment. In this connection the report, after setting forth reasons for the common interest of employers and employes, says that the demands and actions of both become unwarranted when they handicap the industries of the nation in competition with foreign industries.

The second recommendation is for the establishment of a recognized and permanent method of conference between the employer and his employes. This is urged as a definite arrangement under plans jointly worked out, the mere willingness of the employer to hear employes with grievances being pronounced insufficient. The following matters are suggested as necessarily included in the subjects of such conferences: Wages and working conditions, including steps to promote continuous and permanent employment, especially in the case of the introduction of new machinery and new processes, and plant conditions affecting health and general welfare of workers.

Law of Supply and Demand.

A third recommendation is for the limitation of the economic law of supply and demand as a basis of labor policy by the utilization of a more human doctrine. This, says the report, will likewise be a matter of evolution, but it suggests immediate recognition of these principles, which it says will modify the application of the law to a large degrees and are essential to the development of the human doctrine:

1. All wage earners, skilled and unskilled, in return for a fair day's work, have a right to a living wage sufficient to insure the workers and their families the opportunity to live in health and comfort in accord with the concepts and standards of American life.
2. Continuity of employment at normal wages should be maintained up to a point where permanent prosperity and stability of the business—rather than immediate profits—would be endangered thereby.

"Recently much interest has been shown in plans of sharing in profits and participation in management," the report continues. "Many of these plans are undoubtedly valuable if properly developed and given their proper place. They deserve the careful attention of employers. However, your committee desires to point out that they are merely aids, not remedies. Any plan the introduction, continuation, and final interpretation of which rests solely upon the volition of the employer will not entirely eliminate dissatisfaction, because it lacks the elements of certainty and permanence, and there is no power of enforcement on the part of the employe.

"Any plan of profit sharing or participation in management to be of permanent value must receive the unqualified approval of both employer and employe.

Special Appeal to Members.

"In closing, your committee suggests that the Merchants Association of New York make a special appeal to its members and to employers generally to realize that the employment function in management is not second, in either importance or complexity, to any other phase of business activity; to give diligent study to the problems of industrial relations and to the development of a proper labor policy; and to put the relations between employes and management under the direct supervision of a separate department of the business headed by a trained member or officer of the firm or corporation."

J. H. Gannon, Vice President of the Butterick Company, is Chairman of the committee. The other members are Frederic G. Achelis of the American Hard Rubber Company, Gerhard M. Dahl, Vice President of the Chase National Bank; John F. Galvin, William Goldman, President of Cohen, Goldman & Co.; J. Newton Gunn, President of the United States Tire Company; E. K. Hall, Vice President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company; J. W. Lieb, Vice President of the New York Edison Company; W. H. Milnor, Louis B. Schram, President of the India Wharf Brewing Company; H. C. Seaman, Secretary and Treasurer of the E. W. Bliss Company; Robert H. Simon, Walter C. Teagle, President Standard Oil Company of New Jersey; C. G. M. Thomas, Chairman of the Board of the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power Company; W. F. Wells, Vice President Brooklyn Edison Company.

The report was written by a sub-committee headed by Mr. Dahl, approved by the full committee, and indorsed unanimously by the Board of Directors.

Towne Plan to Prevent Strikes.

The Towne plan for the prevention of strikes by employes of public service corporations has been submitted by the Merchants' Association to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States with a request that a referendum vote be taken upon it by the national Chamber. If the referendum shows approval of the plan the national Chamber is asked to draft a bill carrying out the plan to be introduced in Congress.

The plan points out that the functions of railroads and other public utilities are exercised only by virtue of public authorization, which delegates to the operating corporations certain powers belonging to the public in order that the public's necessities may be served. In order to get immunity from interruption in service due to strikes it is proposed that the tenure of service of employes shall be regulated by law, so that each person who voluntarily enters employment shall be legally obligated by contract to continue for a specified time. During this time he may not quit or be discharged, except as provided in the contract.

CONDEMNS "SCALPING" EVIL

Klaw Says Ticket Speculators Should Be Taxed Out of Business.

In a discussion of theatre ticket speculating Marc Knaw contends that lack of sincerity in one or another quarter has always been at the bottom of failures to end the "scalping" evil. He says the pretense on the part of some agencies and managers that the public will not go to the box office is not founded on fact and that it is only because they have learned that tickets are not to be found there that they go to speculators and agencies. He instances the long lines before the ticket windows at moving picture theatres as evidence that even prosperous persons are willing to stand in line for tickets if they know they will be served fairly and in turn.

Mr. Klaw expresses the opinion that the present law, limiting the agent's charge, is illegal since it fixes the price for which a man may sell his own property, and draws a parallel between ticket sellers and hotel newsstands, which charge from 3 to 5 cents for a newspaper, though the publisher fixes the price at 2 cents. He asserts that his proposal to the Legislature several years ago that the speculators be taxed out of business is the only solution and turns to a discussion of cut-rate tickets, which he declares are another evil, as the theatre will learn through hard experience. Mr. Klaw reiterates his belief that it will be to the interest of all to abolish both practices and sell theatre tickets only at box offices, and he cites instances of his own failure to circumvent speculators.

ARREST WOMAN SCALPER.

First of Her Sex Accused of Theatre Ticket Speculating.

One woman and three men were arrested last night by Detective Cassidy, of Police Headquarters, charged with violation of the city ordnance respecting theatre ticket speculating. The woman, who described herself as Celice Ginsberg, 28 years old, a dressmaker, of 9 East 107th Street, was the first woman ever arrested on this charge in this city.

The men gave their names as Solomon Reisberg, 30 years old, a laundryman, of 61 East Thirty-fifth Street; Leo Pacis, 25 years old, a presser, of 359 Grand Street, and Bernard Davis, 24 years old, a salesman, of 297 East 170th Street.

The four offenders were later arraigned before Magistrate Ten Eyck in the Night Court. Reisberg was fined $10 and the other three received suspended sentences. Detective Cassidy said that the four were selling theatre tickets in the street in front of the Hippodrome.

CANADA LOAN TWICE TAKEN.

$600,000,000 Subscribed to Victory Issue—$50,000,000 More Likely.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 16.—Canada's Victory Loan has been a wonderful success. The Government asked for $300,000,000 and subscriptions received amount to $600,000,000 with the probability of $50,000,000 more when all returns are received.

The Dominion, including this loan, must borrow over $800,000,000 before 1922. The present loan leaves only about $200,000,000 to be borrowed next year. The loans are required for foreign trade credits, soldiers' land settlement, railway, Canadian harbor improvements.

PROPOSES MORTGAGE BANK.

Representative Hill Introduces Bill to Relieve the Housing Situation.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Congressman Hill of Binghamton has introduced a bill creating a Federal Mortgage Bank, which would make loans to corporations which lend money on city mortgages, the loans to be secured by the mortgages.

The Secretary of the United States Treasury, the Controller of Currency and the Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank would be ex-officio members of the bank, and with two others named by the President, with the consent of the Senate, would be the directors. The stock, earning 7 per cent. cumulative dividends, would be sold to the general public at $100 per share. The intention of the bill is to relieve the housing situation in large cities.

EDUCATION TO CURE UNREST

G. W. Perkins and Labor Leaders Urge More Schooling.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16.—George W Perkins, financier, and Dr. Charles Stelzle, prominent labor unionist, agreed today at the Third World's Christian Citizenship Conference that new mind and lack of information for them were fundamental causes of unrest, that the closest co-operation between men and educational institutions and industrial enterprises and public service was an absolute necessity.

Dr. Stelzle blamed the laboring man for bad social conditions because, he said, "the working man's vote is just as effective, if not more effective than any other man's. If he hasn't the nerve, if he is too lazy, if he's too indifferent, then he doesn't deserve to have conditions changed."

"The world is headed in the direction of a change," Mr. Perkins said. "Education and inventions in the scientific world are gradually working toward these changes. And from the steady advances we are learning that the man of the future cannot live for himself alone. There must be a frank, square deal for every one. If labor expects a square deal it must give a square deal, turning out honest work in an honest fashion. Co-operation of individuals and nations must come. Competition brings success to one and failure to the other."

Representatives of the forty-one nations attending the conference indorsed a plan of action appealing to all the nations of the earth to base their governmental life and legislation upon the principles that apply to the individual, approving the League of Nations, urging arbitration and conciliation for the adjustment of national difficulties, subordination of self-interest to the public welfare in the industrial world, direct representation of the employer, worker, and community in the management of industry, free and obligatory instruction of children, and control of immigration on ethical and scientific principles.

Ten Thousand Dollars

The capital of concerns we are now factoring ranges between ten thousand and ten million dollars. Yet the service rendered the smallest is identical with the service rendered the ten million dollar enterprise.

Ability and energy are the requisites we judge.

Mill owners, merchants and mill agents are now considering the renewal of contracts with factors and commission houses.

Before making your decision there are certain matters we want to lay before you.

HELP WANTED—Male.

SALESMEN,
HERE'S THE OPPORTUNITY
YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR.

We have room in our organization for a number of live wire salesmen, accustomed to interviewing men of affairs, who can prove from past performances that they are capable of earning from $5,000 to $10,000 a year. If you are such a man, we will give you the opportunity of making more money during the next six months than you ever made before. And after that, if your work has been satisfactory, you may step into a permanent position in our merchandising department, as a district manager, on a basis of remuneration which will insure your financial independence during the remainder of your active business life.

We are a manufacturing corporation with a nationally known product, protected by a patented process which is considered as important to the automotive industry, from an economic standpoint, as the Bessemer process was to the steel industry.

We want real salesmen, who possess tact and initiative, to call on motorists in New York and vicinity (with cards of introduction) and take subscriptions to our offering of 8 per cent. preferred stock, with a common stock bonus. Stock selling experience helpful, but not necessary. We instruct you in our school for salesmanship. Commission basis. If you think you can qualify, write us for an interview. Address R 250 Times.

"SALESMEN."
IS YOUR INCOME $10,000 PER ANNUM?
WHAT ARE YOUR FUTURE PROSPECTS?
IS YOUR PRESENT BUSINESS PLEASANT AND AGREEABLE?
HAVE YOU THE AMBITION TO DIRECT OTHERS?
HAVE YOU A GOOD PERSONALITY?
WOULD YOU FOLLOW A DIRECT SELLING PLAN IF $150 TO $300 COMMISSIONS WERE PAID YOU WEEKLY?
IF SO, AND YOU ARE IN EARNEST, CALL AND INTERVIEW OUR SALES MANAGER.
WE HANDLE LISTED DIVIDEND PAYING SECURITIES IN A HIGH-CLASS MANNER.
CALL BETWEEN 10 AND 12 A. M. AND 2 AND 4 P. M. SUITE 303-4-5-6, 5 COLUMBUS CIRCLE.

SALESMEN.
Are YOU QUALIFIED to earn $16,000 or more per year?
We are expanding our business throughout the United States and Canada and need fifty or more capable men to represent us as branch managers in charge of sales offices. These men will draw large salaries, plus a bonus commission. Their work will be of the pleasantest character, but they MUST be WORKERS. Your WORK is our WORK and your SUCCESS our SUCCESS. If you are a real HE salesman, you may enter our organization at this time, while we are placing our securities, and not only realize a large income now, in commissions, but enjoy an opportunity of securing a lucrative position for the balance of your business life. We shall be glad to see you today at 3 O'CLOCK PROMPT.

The Straight Line to Your Greatest Market

Are you getting your full share of the farm trade that comes from the 25 Billion Dollars the farmers of the United States earned this year?

More than two-thirds of this agricultural wealth—more than two-thirds of the buying power of the American farmer—more than two-thirds of the big farm market—is in the sixteen states of the Money Belt served by the Capper Farm Press.

The Capper Farm Press reaches more than one farm family in every three in these states—and they are mighty good customers for every manufactured commodity.

The direct way of reaching this trade—the most effective and most economical way—is thru the medium which farm folk look upon as their very own — the farm paper which they regard as a member of the family. It is the straight line to your greatest market.

The Capper Farm Press gives more than a million farm homes in the Money Belt a farm paper service that is different—distinctive and localized.

Divided into five sections, with five editorial staffs, it keeps in close touch with its people. It is "home folks" to them. It is a part of their daily life.

And thru our branch offices we keep in close contact with trade conditions, with distributors and dealers, and thus are in position to render exceptional service to the manufacturer who seeks to develop rural trade in this "Garden of Billions."

Don't take it for granted that you are already reaching this rich market. Its possibilities are too great to be left to chance. It will repay careful analysis. Let our Research Bureau help you investigate its further possibilities for your product.
